American Dairy Goat Enthusiasts Gather At National Convention

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — Dairy goat lovers from across the country gathered at the Clarion Convention Center here this week for the annual meeting and convention of the American Dairy Goat Association (ADGA). A total of about 450 people, including more than 60 youth, attended the seven-day event.

Among convention highlights was the youth banquet Tuesday evening and the selection of a new American Dairy Goat Association youth representative for the 2002-2003 term.

Jennifer Linton of Port Deposit, Md., was chosen out of four finalists to take the place of 2001-2002 youth representative Rebecca Potosky of New Jersey. Heather Arts of Athol, Idaho, was selected as the new alternate.

In her winning speech, Linton recalled the hardships she faced when she first began raising Nubian dairy goats. She spoke about the inspiration provided by her mentor, a local woman experienced in dairy goats who encouraged Linton to keep going despite discouragements.

Among Linton's early setbacks with dairy goats was the loss of her first kid in a barn fire. Other difficulties included a strenuous birth that resulted in a caesarean section. Through these experiences, her mentor was always available to give encouragement as well as hands-on and technical help. "She taught me all the basics," said Linton.

Linton, 16, now tends a herd of about 20 Nubians and has five years of experience in goat care. She is a member of the Cecil County 4-H Explorers and a student in the Keystone National High School, a correspondence study program. Her parents are Laura and Glenn Linton of Port Deposit.

Youth at the convention participated in a variety of activities, such as a soapmaking contest and quiz bowl tournament. Seven quiz bowl teams were tested on their understanding of dairy goats as well as their ADGA knowledge. The winning team consisted of John Arts of Couer D' Alene, Idaho; Natalie and Ariana Marsh of Parker, Colo.; and Ben Rupchis of Sperryville, Va.

In its 98th year, the ADGA is primarily a registry association and boasts a total of 15,500 members in numerous countries throughout the world, according to Joan Vandergriff, convention committee chairwoman.

While many members raise dairy goats as a hobby, the ADGA also has plenty of resources for commercial goat dairies, Vandergriff said. She also noted the ability of goats to provide affordable, farm-fresh food for people, an especially attractive trait during economic downturns.

"When times are tough, people have more goats," she said.

Dairy goat products available in select stores and restaurants across the country include raw milk, yogurt and ice cream, as well as soaps. Cheeses, however, are the chief products made from goat milk. These include fresh, ripened, French, dessert, pre-

Russia Requires More For U.S. Poultry Exports

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — New requirements for exporting poultry to the Russian Federation were the topic Monday for a gathering of approximately 25 poultry producers and allied industry representatives at Kreiders Restaurant here.

At the poultry management and health seminar, Dr. Cheryl Hall, poultry health programs coordinator, USDA/APHIS, from Washington, D.C., updated the audience about the changes that have come about because of recent requests made by the Russian Federation.

Export to the federation generates approximately $600-700 million annually.

Since Russian citizens buy dark meat — mostly leg quarters, not as popular in the U.S. — the outlet is important to the poultry industry.

"We pay a much more reasonable price for poultry because the poultry industry can market this by-product, if you will," she said.

Recently the Russian Federa-

'All American Fair Power' Theme For Nov. Convention

TIMONIUM, Md. — "All American Fair Power" is the theme for the Maryland Association of Agricultural Fairs and Shows Convention Nov. 1-2 at the Holiday Inn in Timonium.

A number of speakers will address topics ranging from enhancing fair security to improving fair partnerships and relations.

Some 300 conventioneers are expected to attend this year's event, hosted by the Carroll County 4-H/FFA Fair. Convention attendees will notice the traditional three-day confab has been shortened to two days. All of the seminars and workshops will be Friday, Nov. 1 and Saturday, Nov. 2. The MAAFAS annual meeting will be 3:30 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 2.

The trade show promises to be

Farmers Seek Disaster Aid

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Pennsylvania Farm Bureau is urgently seeking weather disaster assistance from Congress.

With only about a week remaining in this session of Congress, Farm Bureau is calling on its members to contact their legislators for support.

"Time is running out for Congress to provide emergency aid to address crop losses because of the worst nationwide drought in many years," said Pennsylvania Farm Bureau President Guy Donaldson. "Farmers need to contact their members of Con-

CATTLE Compared to Thursday, the bulk of the slaughter steers sold fully 1 00 higher Buyer interest in the higher quality steers definitely increased, specially after Thursday's light interest in the High Choice and Prime steers A firmer futures Board, along with packers already gearing up for the quickly approaching holiday season brought a bearish attitude back into the finished market Tuesday's supply was fairly light, although what was on offer was mostly higher quality stock with buyers not showing a lot of interest in the over or under-finished supply like they did on Thursday There were not enough finished Holsteins on hand for a market test as the majority of the very light run either went back on feed or would have been graded Standard The fat slaughter heifer supply increased much to the buyers' satisfaction, with a higher undertone noted on the run The quality of the heifers on offer was fairly impressive, with very few of them overfinished or aged Compared to Monday, lean slaughter cows sold mostly steady on a good run Breaking and Boning cows sold weak to instances 50 lower on a light test Cow prices continue to fluctuate on both sides of steady, with buyer attendance usually the deciding factor There was a very light run of slaughter bulls, and a trend was not established The supply included 39 percent steers 6 percent heifers, 53 percent cows, 1 percent bulls, and 1 percent feeders

New Holland Hog Auction

NEW HOLLAND, PA
October 14, 2002
Report Supplied By Auction

HOG RECEIPTS: 696 head, last Monday 552; last year 1236.

Compared to last Monday, barrows and gilts sold fully 1.00-3.00 higher on a very good run. Bidding started out moderate to good as buyers tested the waters, however, as the quality increased buyers through caution to the wind and dove right in. Bidding was very active right up to the end, especially on the fancy straight hogs. The Western terminal hog markets are moving hogs .50 lower to kick off the week, from 31.00-32.50; with the Eastern pork buyers beginning to pay a little more so they can stock up for the quickly approaching holiday season.

New Holland Feeder Pig Auction

NEW HOLLAND, PA
October 16, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

FEEDER PIGS· WEDNESDAY 246, LAST WEEK 395, LAST YEAR 409.

Compared to last week, a feeder pig trend was not established as 100 percent of the run went to slaughter. Bidding was very sporadic, as lighter weight number one pigs sold weak to sharply lower; with heavier number ones holding about steady on the comparable weights. However, the number two pigs sold steady to firm on the comparable weights. The recent pseudo-rabies outbreaks still has the state locked down, which translates into no out of state feeder buyers. Therefore, the slaughter buyers were able to procure them a little cheaper as they begin to stock up for the holiday season. Receipts were hampered by the first Nor'easter of the season, which brought heavy rains into the area turning most low lying areas into small ponds. Most farmers are not complaining about the recent increase in moisture, as the county was well behind its usual precipitation. All pigs were weighed and graded on arrival and sold by the hundred weights.

New York Broilers/Fryers

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity on ready-to-cook whole broiler/fryers was mostly fair as dealers remained cautious and kept orders in close balance. Offerings of all sizes were at least adequate for current needs. Retail and distributive draw was seasonally light. The market tone was about steady.

Final report of prices negotiated for trucklot sales of ready-to-cook ice-packed broiler/fryers, to be delivered to first receivers, New York, for delivery the week of 14-Oct-2002: US Grade A: Majority 44-46, wtd. avg. 45.45; 22 loads. Composite: Wtd. avg. 47.32; 45 loads.

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity remained light as trading mainly centered around committed product and the lackluster demand warranted a cautious and selective posture. Offerings of breast items were available, with spot discounting noted to stimulate sales. Dark meat cuts were fully adequate. Wings were readily available and attractively priced. Tenderloins were ample. Movement through retail and distributive channels was sluggish. The market tone continued barely steady to weak on wings, and no better than steady to barely steady on the balance.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds remained light to fair at best. Seller offerings were adequate to ample and were more readily available on the 3.5 and 4.0 pound sizes. Live supplies were moderate; weights were light to heavy, mostly desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were moderate to moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 47 to 61 cents. Trade sentiment was barely steady. In the parts complex, all cuts were at least adequate for the disappointingly light to fair and generally unaggresive buying interest.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

Wheat bids continued their upward momentum supported by spillover strength from Tuesday. Corrections were made in corn and bean pits as traders saw Tuesday's sharp advances a little overdone. Harvest progress has corn and bean bids under pressure at the moment. Corn is listed at 37 percent complete and soybean harvest was estimated at 53 percent finished. A small overnight export sale of corn to Taiwan was positive. Wheat 3 to 14 cents higher. Corn steady to 1 cent lower. Sorghum 1 to 2 cents lower. Soybeans 1 cent lower.

FARMING, FINANCING AND WORKING TOGETHER

Remember when being efficient was all it took to be a successful farmer? With some help from mother nature, being efficient is still the key to successful farming. And that, by itself, is a tough job.

Today's farmer has to know financing and marketing as well as production. And today, as in the past, The Ephrata National Bank is here to help.

We've been financing local farming since 1881 and plan to for years to come.

Next time you need some honest advice on financing your farming operation, see your friends at The Ephrata National Bank.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC — THIS WEEK WITH

FULL HUNTER'S MOON, OCT. 21

DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME ENDS

Since April, we've been adding an hour to our days for Daylight Saving Time Now, on October 27, at 2 00 A M , we "fall back" and lose an hour as we slide into the dark days of autumn and winter Ancient Druids worried that the Sun might disappear entirely over the course of the winter and leave them in complete darkness From these fears came the ritual bonfires and candlelightings (jack-o'-lanterns) that are part of many holiday celebrations today, all originally intended to help bolster the Sun's energies and dispel evil spirits

TIP OF THE WEEK

Before using candles, put them in the freezer; it will make them burn longer.

PUMPKIN MOLASSES PIE

2 piecrusts (9 inches), unbaked
3/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
3/4 teaspoon cinnamon
3/4 teaspoon ginger
1-1/2 cups puréed cooked pumpkin
3 eggs
1-1/2 cups light cream
3 tablespoons molasses
whipped cream (optional)

Preheat oven to 400°F Bake pie crusts, weighted with pie beans, for 10 minutes Remove weights, prick crusts, and bake for another 10 minutes Cool Combine sugar, salt, spices, and pumpkin In a separate bowl, beat together eggs, cream, and molasses Combine two mixtures and beat Divide filling between pie shells and bake for 10 minutes Reduce heat to 350°F and bake for 30 minutes, or until a knife comes out clean Cool Serve it with whipped cream, if desired

Makes 2 pies.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Watch The Processors, Retailers

We agree with Ken Bailey in this week's Weekly Dairy Market Outlook column on page A16: this is a capitalist economy. You can't regulate profit. You can't regulate bottom lines. If you would try, the results would be interesting, if not disastrous, and would impinge on all sorts of freedoms.

Bailey, in his weekly dairy market column, is trying to find some logic to the extremely low prices milk producers are suffering right now — with actual decreases in store-bought dairy products. (Though we haven't seen any.) We draw your attention to the paragraph where Bailey writes:

"Whole milk prices for major urban markets in the U.S. have actually gone down 5.7 percent during the months June-August of this year when compared to the same months a year ago. On the other hand, lower federal order prices (regulated by the federal government) meant fluid processors paid farmers 30 percent less for their milk. Someone is keeping this difference." (Emphasis ours.)

What happened when other commodities went through similar strange times? Why is almost nothing being written about the profit-taking by the retail food industry, placing pressure on the processor-suppliers, which in turn is placing additional pressure on our producers?

The farmer is beset by all sorts of regulations. You wonder what types of regulation retailers are going through.

We could easily advocate the use of "maximum allowable margins" — but how would that work? How could you dictate, by law, that only so much could be made in profit by a retailer from ice cream or chocolate milk? Or how much the retailer would be "allowed" to charge the processor for prime rib? Or a minimum guaranteed payment, by law, from the pork processor to the producer?

One solution: farmers need to be the retailers. Direct marketing has worked in Pennsylvania and surrounding states. Get the price you deserve for the product you produce. Direct marketing is a true "farmer" economy.

In the meantime, see what the processor does with your product and find out, exactly, what their margins are.

Now Is The Time

By Leon Ressler

Lancaster County Extension Director

To Apply Strawberry Weed Control

Kathy Demchak in Penn State's Horticulture Department reports a Section 18 emergency exemption was approved in June 2002 for the use of Spartan 4F (sulfentrazone, from FMC) on strawberries in Pennsylvania. This exemption is for the control of common groundsel, a problem in a number of growers' fields. This material is similar to Goal in that, while it inhibits establishment of new weeds, it will also burn foliage that it contacts.

The second window for its use during this year is when the plants are dormant in the fall, Oct. 15-Dec. 15. Copies of the notification were sent to each county extension office along with a recordkeeping form that should be filled out and sent in to The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture as listed on the form.

Four to eight fluid ounces of Spartan 4F can be used per acre per application (an application could have been applied at renovation), with a yearly maximum of 12 ounces used. Applications can be made to the entire field as a broadcast spray or as a treatment to only those areas where targeted weeds are present or expected. For the material to be effective as a preemergent herbicide, rainfall or irrigation is required for activation. If 0.5 to 1 inch of rainfall or irrigation is not received within 7 to 10 days after application, a shallow cultivation should be used to lightly incorporate the herbicide. The material should not be used if the soil is saturated or if heavy rainfall is predicted to occur within the next 24 hours. A 105-day preharvest interval must be observed. Because this material can leach to groundwater under certain conditions, this material cannot be applied on soils classified as sand, which have less than 1 percent organic matter.

To Recognize Benefits Of Using Integrated Pest Management (IPM) In Sweet Corn

Ed Rajotte, Pennsylvania IPM coordinator and Penn State professor of entomology, reports that in just one year, Pennsylvania vegetable growers realized more than $13 million in economic and environmental benefits by using IPM tactics in their sweet corn crops.

Integrated pest management, or IPM, aims to manage pests — such as insects, diseases, weeds, and animals — by combining physical, biological, and chemical tactics that are safe, profitable, and environmentally compatible.

A recent study conducted by Jason Beddow, graduate student at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, found that IPM in Pennsylvania sweet corn crops produced economic benefits of about $6.7 million and environmental benefits valued at about $6.8 million in one growing season. "This research makes it clear that IPM provides significant economic and environmental benefits to the state," said Rajotte, who served on Beddow's advisory committee.

Pennsylvania growers plant more than 20,000 acres of sweet corn annually, ranking the state among the top 10 nationally in sweet corn production. But this $25 million crop is at risk to such devastating pests as the corn earworm, fall armyworm, and European corn borer. As part of the project, Beddow surveyed sweet corn growers to collect data on the growers' use of selected production practices, with an emphasis on pesticide use.

Respondents included both large and small farms, ranging in size from 2.5 to 2,500 acres. The results of the survey indicate that the majority of respondents use several IPM tactics in their sweet corn operation. Ninety-two percent of respondents reported rotating at least some of their sweet corn with other crops, and 77 percent and 91 percent, respectively, said they scouted for insects and weeds before deciding to apply insecticides and postemergent herbicides.

More than 60 percent of the growers cultivated sweet corn fields to control weeds. When the practice was used, it was employed on an average of 51 percent of sweet corn acreage. Overall, the technique was used on 26 percent of acreage.

An important component of the Pennsylvania sweet corn IPM program is a telephone hotline (800-PENN-IPM) and related Website (http://pestwatch.cas.psu.edu) that provide statewide scouting information for important sweet corn insect pests. Exactly half of the respondents reported calling the hotline. Users of the service made an average of 4.7 calls to the toll-free number over the course of the growing season.

According to Beddow, the adoption of IPM practices may result in a combination of cost increases and decreases. For example, IPM adoption is expected to decrease the cost of chemical pesticides as nonchemical controls are substituted for pesticides. However, implementation of IPM practices will increase some information-gathering costs, such as labor costs for scouting.

IPM adoption may influence returns via price premiums or changes in yields. "Adopters spent less on chemicals and chemical applications and spent more on scouting and trapping when compared with nonadopters," Beddow said. "Overall, adopters in the sample spent $100 less than non-adopters per acre of sweet corn. Assuming a constant price of $2.25 per dozen ears, per-acre total revenue for adopters in the sample was $279 greater than that of nonadopters. The difference in net revenue between adopters and nonadopters was $295."

Beddow's research can be viewed on the Web at http://scholar.lib.vt.edu/theses/available/etd-09272000-14340016/. A NEW COVENANT

Background Scripture:
Jeremiah 30 through 31.
Devotional Reading:
Hebrews 10:11-18.

"Covenant" is a term hardly used today. If we hear or read it, it is usually a fleeting reference in a sermon, worship service, or religious literature. We are also likely to refer to the act of Christian marriage as the making of a covenant. If the state regards a church wedding as a legal contract, why do we use the word covenant instead?

In my dictionary, "contract" and "covenant" are defined in almost identical terms. But as Christians use "covenant," it has a rather different connotation. While both "covenant" and "contract" indicate an agreement between two or more parties, "covenant" usually signifies the presence of God as a party to this agreement. Furthermore, while a contract indicates value given for value received, a covenant suggests that each of the parties will go much beyond simple quid pro quo.

This was certainly true of the covenant between God and Abraham. The people constantly failed to hold up their end of the agreement, and the covenant continued only because of the grace of God that always goes infinitely beyond the letter of the law. Whereas a contract is based upon the letter of the law, a covenant is always based upon a relationship in which we get far more than we deserve.

Not Our Invention

Christians often make the mistake of thinking that the New Covenant is an invention of the New Testament. The first chronological mention of it is in Jeremiah 31. This is one of the most important passages of the Old Testament and Jeremiah's single most important contribution to the Jewish and Christian religions. Some have called it "the high-water mark of the Old Testament."

As almost all of Jeremiah's prophecies are dark and gloomy. Jeremiah 30 and 31 are sometimes called "the little Book of Comfort," because Jeremiah promises that God will eventually restore Israel and Judah to their lands and homes. Even more important, the covenant which the people so thoroughly violated will be replaced by a new covenant that goes far beyond the original one. Instead of being inscribed in stone, it will be written upon their hearts as an inward and individual covenant: "And no longer shall each man teach his neighbor and each his brother, saying, 'Know the Lord,' for they shall all know me, from the least of them to the greatest..." (v. 34).

What's Essential?

As Stanley Brite Frost puts it, "Circumcision, the ark, the temple, the city, the state, prophet, priest, king can all go . . . since they are not essential."

So what is essential? People will do what is right, not by external compulsion but by inner conviction and desire. Thus, some 600 years before the birth of Christ, we find a new direction, an immediate and direct relationship between the individual and God.

Later, although he didn't use the term "New Covenant," the prophet Ezekiel made a similar promise to the people in exile: "A new heart I will give you, and a new spirit I will put within you; and I will take out of your flesh the heart of stone and give you a heart of flesh" (Ezek. 36:26). And on the night of his Last Supper with his disciples, Jesus gave his disciples the cup, saying, "Drink of it, all of you; for this is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins" (Mtt. 265:27).

Forgiveness is the key to the New Covenant. The fellowship with God that was broken by Israel's repeated rebellion is restored by the complete forgiveness of sins. So the New Covenant will be based, not upon sinlessness, but the grace of God: ". . . for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more" (v. 34b).

The slate is now wiped clean, and this is grace, because the people have certainly not earned it. They never could and neither can we.

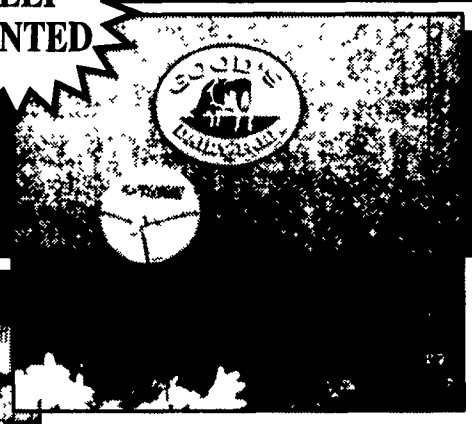
HELP WANTED

"The biggest benefit is the labor savings."



"My only regret is that I wish I had made the pit under the barn deeper."

"In my previous barn, I scraped two times a day; and I was tired of it, not to mention the danger to the cows if a cable snapped. I thought I would not be able to justify the additional cost until my builder suggested a design change which brought the cost down relatively close to the original design.

The biggest benefit to me is the labor savings. Two people can handle all the chores for our herd. I save money not only on labor but also on repairs.

The cows' hooves are healthier, and they show heat better because they are not afraid of slipping. During the five years with slats, I have not lost a single heifer from slipping. The cows stay much cleaner, even with my misting system for cooling them. The water has a place to escape."

"Bio-Zyme w/Miracle II"

Bio-Zyme Soil Inoculants
A Proven Help For Your Soil
→•Is a product formulated to improve soil structure, plant growth and quality crops
- Adds living soil micro-organisms whose productive microbial processes provide essential nutrients for plant life
- Microbial activity builds HUMUS (organic matter)
- Increases root growth and mass, seed germination and emergence by reducing soil crusting
- Provides an optimum soil environment of plant health
- Easily applied using various irrigation systems spray, trickle, overhead, drip and surge
- May be soil and foliar applied
- Extensive field tests prove an increase in production
- Environmentally friendly

Directions for Use:
→Bio-Zyme Soil Inoculants are to be used as part of your normal soil program usually one pint to the acre, one to three times per year The best times to apply are in the fall about a month before frost, in the spring after temp is 50 degrees regularly, and can be foliar applied up to boot or bloom stage in the late evening or early morning
For household plants, yard and garden use, mix at the rate of 1 tsp per gallon of water for soil drench or spray

Note:
Soil Inoculant + 20-20-20 is the exact same formula as the Soil Inoculant w/Humus but with NPK added Not recommended for those who wish to remain strictly organic

Bio-Zyme Waste and Odor Control
→•Is an organic enzyme bacterial system to control your animal waste and odors
- Is an organic water and pond treatment
- Used in septic systems
- Breaks down solid waste and promotes composting
- Reduces flies and mosquitos, therefore aiding in controlling disease
- Promotes a healthier work environment

* Mixture Ration and Application Rates sheet available

Bio-Zyme Citrimate Disease Central
→•Is a product designed to control diseases on fruit trees, nut trees, citrus trees, shade trees, vegetables, lawns, rose bushes and houseplants

Directions for Use:
Apply with a spray mixture of approx 1 qt to 5 gal of water spraying the crop to the point of runoff Also apply to soil underneath the trees The best time to apply in the fall is after dormancy, about a month before frost In the spring after the leaves appear or anytime the trees or plants are under stress due to disease

Miracle II Product
STRUCTURED WATER ENERGIZERS
→• Contains tubes with Miracle II Soap and Neutralizer
- Cleans and energizers your drinking water or rain water
- Used in industrial applications such as swimming pools, greenhouses hog finishing houses feed lots dairies & farms
- Changes the water ions from positive to negative
- Increases the PH factor in your water

Testimonial:
We had just been hearing good results abgout the Water Energizers on the conference calls and decided to put one on the rain water line because the water had been having such a bad odor this past summer We thought it's time to get the cistern cleaned out again which is always quite an ordeal and smelly and the opening to the cistern is inside the store at Glick's Natural Products
Anyway, this past Tuesday P M , Oct 1st, we got a plumber to install a Water Energizer The following morning the water had no more bad odor! We could hardly believe our noses but there simply was no bad smell left and it felt silky clean Normally when using the shower bath it wasn't a good experience due to the bad smell, but on Wed morning it was quite pleasant and refreshing - what a relief
Simeon Stoltzfus, Millersburg, PA

Notes:
The company told us the Water Energizer is maintenance free and will last a lifetime There are no parts to replace and no power required to run the Water Energizer The water simply flows through the Water Energizer and as it makes contact with the tubes containing Miracle II Soap and Neutralizer, the water changes
In a recent test in a commercial greenhouse, one side of the greenhouse was set up with its normal watering system and the other side was up with a Water Energizer The crops on the side of the greenhouse with the Water Energizer were ready to harvest & ship a full eight days to two weeks sooner than the crops without the Water Energizer
It was also reported that lawns became greener and healthier after watering with Energized Water
With swimming pools it was reported that the maintenance bill was $200 a month less I believe this was due to needing less chemicals

Prices:
Residential Size $900 (fits 3/4"-1 1/4" water pipes)
Commercial/Industrial Size $1500 (fits 2" plumbing)

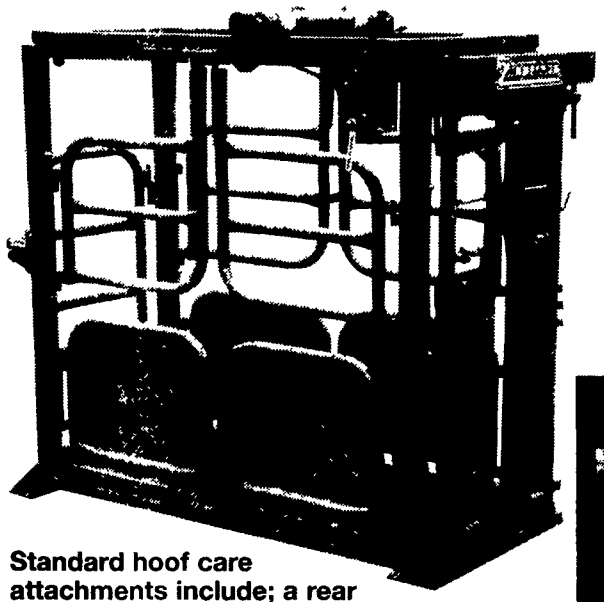
Combination Hoof Care/Vet Chute

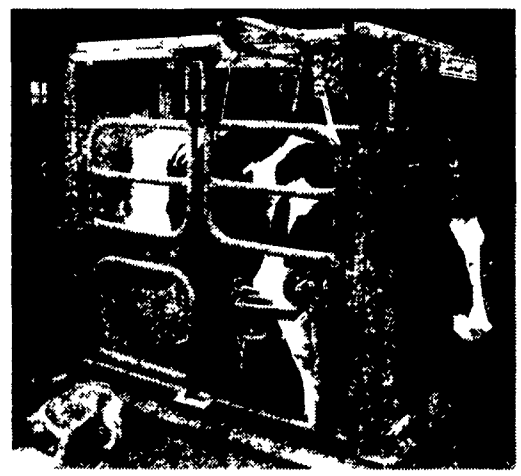


This highly versatile equipment can be used to secure a cow safely and efficiently for foot care or veterinary services.

Side panels and gates easily replace hoof care accessories to create a vet chute where almost any common vet procedure can be performed.

Standard hoof care attachments include; a rear splatter board, rear foot winch, two front foot winches and a full width belly band and winch to lift the animals weight off their feet. All winches have heavy duty friction brakes providing constant, positive holding action.

ALL STEEL PARTS ARE POWDER COATED USING THE PBZ FIVE-STEP PROCESS.



Once in the chute with the belly band winched into working position, the cow is safely secured for foot treatment

RETAIL DAIRY PRICES RELATIVELY HIGH

- Cheese, ice cream prices above year ago.
- Whole milk, butter down some.
- Milk ingredient costs down 30-40 percent.

Dairy farmers are noticing that retail prices for many dairy products have not fallen nearly as much as their milk checks. In fact, some dairy products such as cheese and ice cream are actually higher than a year ago.

I have often been asked to explain this and have for the most part avoided it. Here's why. First, many dairy farmers did not go back into the grocery stores last year to compare retail prices. Ice cream, for example, went up in price, but not nearly as high as butterfat prices. Remember $2.44-per-pound butterfat prices? Many ice cream processors saw their margins squeezed because they could not fully pass along all of their costs.

Retail milk prices have followed a pattern over the years. They haven't always gone up as high as the increase in raw milk costs (Class I prices) when milk prices are rising, and they don't go down as fast either when milk prices are plummeting. That may be because consumers don't like big swings in their milk prices (neither do farmers).

Another reason why I haven't focused on retail milk prices is because the year-to-year changes in those prices have often been at or below the rate of inflation. And besides, we live in a country with a capitalist economy. Processors and retailers can sell their products (farmers don't own it at this point) at whatever price they can get away with. They just have to make their customers happy.

But not everyone is happy at the moment. Dairy farmers are facing three crushing blows: 1) low milk prices, 2) rising feed costs, and 3) drought conditions that have limited their feed production.

Also not happy are consumers. They are facing a tough economy right now and are worried about their economic futures. In addition, they are paying more for milk and dairy products than the ingredient costs would suggest.

For example, during the period June-August 2002, retail prices for ice cream and natural cheese rose 1.4 and 6.7 percent, respectively. That is a modest increase in retail prices for ice cream, until you consider two things. First, ice cream prices last year were ex-

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Several 'Firsts' For Manheim Farm Show Exhibitors

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — It was a time of "firsts."

That is, there were two first-time champions for both supreme and reserve swine exhibitors at last week's Manheim Community Farm Show.

Taking home a first for a champion was Joanna Rohrer, Manheim, with her first champion hog in six years of exhibiting. And it was also a first-time champion for reserve winner, Brian Nolt, also of Manheim.

Johanna, 14, is the daughter of Beth and Dudley Rohrer. Johanna is in the ninth grade at Manheim Central High School. Her 250-pound Blue Butt gilt, nicknamed "Cyclone" from her favorite part of science class, was purchased from the Pfautz family in Lititz.

Johanna sold the grand champion hog for $3.50 per pound to Manheim Auto Auction, represented by Bob Slade.

Johanna noted she walks the gilt every night and spends a lot of time — about a half hour to 45 minutes every day — walking and exercising it to keep the hog "lean and free-moving," she said.

Brian Nolt, who exhibited a 238-pound medium weight champion Blue Butt gilt, purchased the hog from Jim Martin Show Pigs. Brian sold the hog to Wes Ferguson, sales representative for Engle Printing and Publishing, for $3.10 per pound.

Brian, 12, is the son of Dale and Sandy Nolt, Manheim. Brian attends seventh grade at Lititz Area Mennonite.

Joelynn Donough, Manheim, exhibited the grand champion lamb, her first supreme champion at Manheim. She sold the 128-pound homebred Suffolk wether, nicknamed "Dexter" (from the character on Cartoon Network), for $3.75 per pound to Fulton Bank, represented by Lowell Fry and Mike Firestine.

Joelynn, 15, is the daughter of Ed and Larue Donough, Manheim. Joelynn, a freshman at Manheim Central High School, said she trains the Suffolk homebred wether, spending a lot of time in preparation — about two hours each day. She has exhibited at New Holland Farmers' Fair and plans to show at state Farm Show.

Derick Bollinger, Manheim, showed the reserve champion market lamb, the reserve champion heavyweight weighing 134 pounds. The ewe was purchased at a sale in Eaton, Ohio, and sold as a breeding ewe. Late last week, the lamb sold to Manheim Auto Auction at the livestock sale, represented by Rick Budnyk, for $3 per pound.

Derick, 18, son of Gene and Carol Bollinger, Manheim, is a 2002 graduate of Manheim Central High School and is a freshman at Delaware Valley College majoring in large animal science. The Manheim FFA member is also on the state 4-H and FFA livestock judging team, which won at the state level and is advancing to national competition.

At the sale, Brian Geib, Manheim, exhibited the champion goat, which weighed 80 pounds and sold for $6.10 per pound to Manheim Auto Auction, represented by Bob Slade.

Reserve goat, exhibited by Derek Spayd, Mount Joy, sold for $4 per pound to Engle Publishing, represented by Wes Ferguson, sales representative.

Grand champion steer, exhibited by Cody Musser, Mount Joy, weighed 1,197 pounds and sold for $2.60 per pound to Dorothy Metzler. Reserve champion, weighing 1,254 pounds and exhibited by Ryan Donough, sold for $2 per pound to Hoss's Steak and Seafood House, represented by Rob Billet.

Pa. 4-H Forestry Team Shines In National Competition

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania's team in the 23rd annual 4-H Forestry Invitational this summer finished higher than any Keystone State team ever.

The four-day event was held at Jackson's Mill State 4-H Conference Center near Weston, W. Va. The Pennsylvania team, made up of four teen-agers and four adult volunteers, finished sixth out of 16 teams.

Team members were Chad Atwood, 17, of Warren County; Emily Dunkerton, 15, of McKean County; Candy Eggler, 18, of Clinton County; and Rick Hecker, 14, of Clinton County.

The team was coached by Dave Miller of Warren, Pa. Other adults involved in training and coaching the youths were Pam Snook of Sugar Valley, Ann Dunkerton of Smethport and Bob Domville of Warren.

Team members earned the right to represent Pennsylvania at the invitational by scoring in the top four at the state contest held at Laurel Haven, Pa., in May. For these young adults, the opportunity to compete at the invitational rewards years of hard work in 4-H forestry and other conservation-related projects and club activities.

The event, which is sponsored by International Paper Foundation, is composed of a number of individual and team events. These include tree identification, tree measurement, forest insect and disease identification, compass traverse, topographic map use, forest stand evaluation, and the forestry bowl — a fast-paced event fashioned after popular television quiz shows.

Invitational participants also test their knowledge of forestry facts in a written examination The students compete for individual high scores and overall team awards.

The team from Alabama took top honors at the invitational. Alabama also had the top three individual high scorers. A team from Arkansas earned second place and Louisiana placed third.

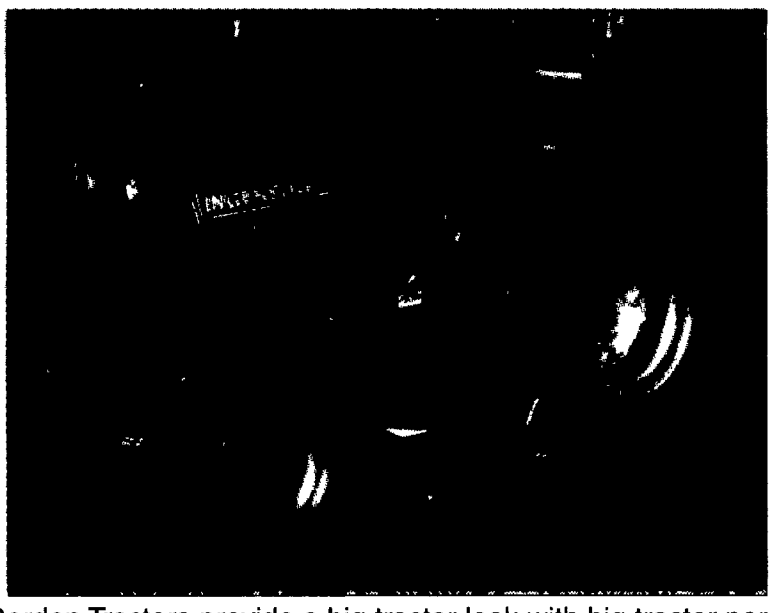
The Tractor of a Lifetime!



Ingersoll 4000 Series Garden Tractors provide a big tractor look with big tractor performance. A longer frame and 16" wheels provide increased traction, higher ground clearance, and a smoother ride, for handling those extra big jobs.

Ingersoll's patented agricultural-grade hydraulic system provides an oil only link between the engine and the transmission, providing power for the two-speed transaxle and eliminating the need for belts, shafts or pulleys, and has power to spare for operating the hydraulic lift, power steering, and a whole range of hydraulic attachments.

Hoober Inc. Continues Long-Standing Relationship With Farm Show

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — "The Pennsylvania Farm Show is unique in the fact that there is animal agriculture represented long with the equipment. There is very few places you can go to do that.

"The difference will be even more so now with the new facilities — with added space not only for animals but also equipment," said Tom Yohe, general manager, Hoober Inc, a business that will be exhibiting at the upcoming Farm Show.

"Farm Show kicks off the season," said Charlie Hoober, president, Hoober Inc. "In November and December it slows up, and then Farm Show really kicks it off," he said.

"We get to talk to customers about their plans for spring," said Yohe.

"Farm Show also generates some service work because we get a chance to as our customers whether their stuff is ready to go," said Hoober.

The business will be occupying more space than previous years. They are planning to have equipment on 3,200 square feet adjacent to the Case IH lot in the exhibition hall of the complex.

The extra square footage is critical, said Hoober, because "getting a lot of equipment indoors is very important, since that will draw the people."

The event is a "Pennsylvania showcase of agriculture to not only the ag community, but consumers at large.

"We just felt it was important to be there with equipment so people from the city could see what equipment costs, and what it takes to get the job done," said Yohe. "It's very important for the public to understand the importance of the mechanization of agriculture."

The show provides a chance for Hoober representatives to demonstrate to farmers new tools to lower cost and enhance production, according to Hoober.

"We like to take employees, and keep them exposed to the latest things in agriculture, so we give them a half day off to go to the show," said Hoober. "It keeps them on the cutting edge."

Yohe believes that the Farmer Days will be beneficial. "This year, during Farmer Days, we're excited about the fact that people directly involved in production agriculture will be able to park at no cost during those three days."

Besides exhibiting equipment, Hoober employees will be conducting demonstrations in the arena and a possible seminar on new Case IH combines, according to Yohe.

"We go because our customers go — we go to meet our customers and show them what's new," he said. During the designated "Farmer Days," "all of our ag salesman and parts salesmen from the Pennsylvania stores will be there," he said. The booth will be staffed, though not as heavily, throughout the show.

"As a dealers, we have exhibited at the Farm Show since '77 or '78," said Yohe. "The first two years we were there we had to have our equipment outside, we couldn't get inside. We were in a storage shed with a heater."

Approximately 170 employees work at the business' four stores.

The business began when in 1941 Charles B. (Bud) Hoober signed an agreement to sell International Harvester (IH) Farm Equipment in Intercourse. Later Bud formed a partnership with his only son, Charles B. Hoober Jr, in 1965.

In 1976 Charlie and Bud opened Hoober Equipment Inc. in Sudlersville, Maryland.

The business purchased White Bros Supply Company in 1982 and moved the business to Middletown, Delaware.

C. B. Hoober & Son Inc. purchased Inch Equipment, the Case IH dealer in McAlisterville, in February 1996.

On January 1, 1997, C. B. Hoober & Son in Pennsylvania and Hoober Equipment Inc. in Delaware changed their names to Hoober, Inc.

As of July 10, 2002 Hoober, Inc added a fourth store in Seaford, Delaware.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
October 16, 2002
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.3260-1.4280 delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.3464-1.4484 mostly 1.3668-1.4280.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .9850-1.0300; Class III - spot prices - .8700-.9250.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This week - 200, Out 0; last week - In 166, Out 0; last year - In 67, Out 0. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week - In 0, Out 0; last week - In 0, Out 0; last year - In 127, Out 0.

Regional Milk Market Administrators announced the following, September 2002 uniform prices: Northeast $12.20, Mideast $11.09, Southeast $12.56, Florida $13.97, and Western New York (a state order) $11.71 at the base city or county in the orders. (For the Northeast, Mideast, and Western New York orders, statistical uniform prices are reported.)

Milk production is about steady in most sections of the region. Some New England contacts feel that their milk output may be at the low point of their annual cycle. Historically, milk production reaches its low point in November or late October in the "north country." Some much needed rain has fallen in the Middle Atlantic area during the past few days and milk output is steady to slightly lower. This drought stricken area welcomes any and all rain they may get.

In the Southeast, the milk flow is mostly steady. Fluid milk supplies are still being reported as tight. There is enough milk to meet Class I needs in most of the region and manufacturing plants are often running on reduced schedules. This is particularly evident in the Middle Atlantic area and farther south. Florida's need for Grade A milk is increasing as winter residents start to show up. This week, milk is being shipped into Florida from Pennsylvania, Michigan, and Minnesota and volumes are up nearly 25% from the past several weeks.

The condensed skim market is generally steady. Supplies may be a little tighter as some producers made NDM rather than sell wet solids. Prices are unchanged, but more producers feel that Class III prices may increase in the near future. The fluid cream market is mixed. Several contacts note the cream volumes are tight early in the week, readily available after Wednesday. The spot prices are higher as last week's CME average price for butter jumped more than three cents. Spot demand for Class II cream is spotty. It's up one day, down the next, but generally fair to good. There seems to be growing interest from some cream cheese makers. Production of sour cream and dips is starting to improve as makers prepare for the "holiday push." Ice cream production is holding up fairly well with many producers still looking for spot cream. Soft serve sales are slowing as the weather cools. Churning activity ranges from moderate to heavy. Some producers are churning all their cream to meet print butter orders. However, reports from some cream suppliers indicate that some butter makers are not paying "too large" a premium at this time. Others, however, are remaining competitive.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER Summary for week ending Oct. 4. TOTAL RECEIPTS: 400,700; last week 341,700. Auctions: 294,200; last week 272,900. Direct: 63,500; last week 64,900. Video/Internet: 43,000; last week 3,900. This week's reported auction volume included only 31 percent over 600 lbs and 41 percent heifers.

Compared to last week, feeder steers and heifers ended the week mostly steady. Early-week trading was slightly higher but took back most of the advancement by week's end, as the cash fat cattle market failed to realize the spark that many had expected. However, the short supply of yearlings continues to hold heavy feeder prices at a respectable level. Calf prices fell on both sides of steady this past week, depending on their proximity to wheat pasture. Oklahoma City livestock markets sold calves 2.00-5.00 higher with the best demand shown for lightweights which traded as much as 8.00 higher. Demand was also good in the Southeast, especially for weights under 450 lbs. Prices on ranch calves in the Northern Plains and Mountain States were weak to 2.00 lower. Midwestern farmer-feeders are not quite ready for a load of calves and wheat grazers would rather order out of the South and sacrifice quality for price. There is a steady flow of cattle trucks heading west, passing empty trucks heading east on their way back for another load. This looks to be the best year for wheat pasture in recent memory, but turn- out dates are still 2-3 weeks away. It will take at least that long to straighten out these shipped-in calves and teach them what a hot-wire is. Backgrounders will spend the rest of this month doctoring sick calves in their T-shirts during the day-time and doing chores in their goose-downs in the evenings. These drastic temperature swings, that are notorious in the Southern Plains during the fall, make preconditioning all the harder. All this is music to the ears of your local animal pharmaceutical salesman.

	CATTLE	CALVES
THIS WEEK	2705	1763
LAST WEEK	2356	1722
LAST YEAR	2285	1485

Compared to last week, slaughter steers sold fully 2 00 higher, to instances 3 00 higher late in the week. Buyers were relatively active in procuring the High Choice and Prime steers all week, and very active late in the week on the average Choice and Select steers Higher bids late in the week could be attributed to the Western feedyards starting to move some dressed sales in the Corn Belt and Northern Plains from 102 00-105 00 on a dressed basis, which is 4 00-7 00 higher than last week The Southern Plains feedyards have yet to trade the bulk of their live cattle, with early sales ranging from 65 00-66 00, which is 2 00 higher than last week However, most feedyards are holding out for 67 00-68 00 dollar money The futures Board still holds a 2.00-3 00 premium to the cash trade, with the October contract at 68 45 on Thursday's close; which is very supportive to the feeder The Holstein steer supply this week was very mixed, therefore a trend was not fully established. Finished Holsteins began the week far from finished, as much of the supply either returned to feed, or buyers sent them to the packing house hoping for them to open up Select On the same note, the Holstein supply late in the week consisted of several lots that definitely had some beef influence in them. Buyers actively pursued these types, with most of them pushing the 60.00 barrier Slaughter heifer runs remain very light, but there was a noticeable improvement in both quality and buyer interest this week; with several individual heifers selling right on the heels of 70 00 Lean slaughter cows kicked off the week trading mostly steady to firm on very good runs, with prices trending .50-1.00 higher late in the week Breaking and Boning cows ended up mostly steady to start the week, but buyer attendance also helped the fleshier cows late in the week as prices trended fully 1 00 to instances 2 00 higher Cow carcass cutout values were nearly 3 00 higher late in the week, which was also a big factor in the increase in bids Thursdays' cow run included nearly 650 head, which was a definite sign that demand is still there considering bids were higher Slaughter bulls sold mostly steady to firm early in the week on fairly good demand However, demand was excellent late as prices were sharply higher when compared to the light runs early in the week This week's supply included 32 percent steers, 7 percent heifers, 43 percent cows, 7 percent bulls, and 11 percent feeders.

CALVES Compared to last Tuesday, veal calves sold mostly steady to 5 00 higher, with the supply comprised of mostly Utility calves Holstein bulls suitable for special-fed veal barns sold sharply lower as the first Nor'easter of the season washed away much of the bullish attitude that was noted over the past few weeks Most of the graded supply struggled to stay above 100 00, with most of the bids late in the week well below 90 00 Holstein heifers also sold with a sharply lower undertone this week The top heifers this week were well below 600 00, which is much lower than what the same heifers a month ago would have brought. And as is to be expected, farmers are starting to keep their heifers at home until some strength returns to the market, as receipts are starting to get smaller Large slaughter calves were not well tested this week

COLD WEATHER SHELTER FOR GRAZING DAIRY CATTLE

Dan F. McFarland
Capitol Region Extension Agricultural Engineer, York

A few years ago I worked with some longtime dairy graziers to expand their stallbarn. Grazing proved very successful for them. Their experience indicated that when the cows were on pasture, production increased, animal health improved, and injuries were greatly reduced compared to when the cows were confined.

In order to expand the milking herd, they needed more room, so they decided to extend the building, build in new stalls, and renovate the existing ones. Along with the stalls, the ventilation system, feeding area, and water system were also improved. Not too long into the cold weather season they noticed that milk production did not drop, animal health remained good, and injuries were minimal.

Pasture offers the advantages of space, fresh air, and a confident footing. These things should not be compromised in shelter. Our climate allows the opportunity for producers to take advantage of grazing for a significant portion of the calendar year.

However, there are times when cows should be protected from weather extremes and pastures protected from cows. Therefore, it is important to develop suitable shelter to protect the herd from weather extremes, maintain good animal health, and not compromise the benefits gained from grazing.

Producers are often disappointed when I explain that the space requirements for seasonal confinement are similar to those for total confinement. Space requirements are determined by the cows — not the calendar. Overcrowded space and/or uncomfortable stalls will soon lead to dirty conditions and increased injuries.

Loose housing or bedded packs have become a popular alternative for some grazing systems. Approximately 80 to 100 square feet of bedded space per cow should be provided. This does not include the area adjacent to the feeding area. Producers find that it is difficult to keep their cows clean when less space is provided. Generous amounts of sawdust, shavings, straw, paper, and/or corn fodder are needed to insure comfort and cleanliness.

Naturally ventilated buildings should be oriented to block prevailing winds during cold weather and provide adequate shade during hot weather. Sidewalls should be of adequate height (12 feet to 14 feet) and have the ability to be opened 75 to 100 percent during warm weather and closed to block cold winds. Gable roof systems should have a ridge opening of 2 to 3 inches per 10 feet of building width.

Bank barns converted to bedded pack shelters typically require fans to insure an adequate air exchange in the animal area.

Two or more water stations are required per group. Water access should be convenient but placed so that cows do not have access to it while standing on the bedded pack, since the area around waterers can be sloppy.

Dan F. McFarland

Providing adequate feed space is also important. Producers using TMRs find that 18 inches of bunk space per cow is adequate as long as all cows have enough time to get to the feeding area. If all cows must eat at once, then 27 inches to 30 inches per cow is preferred.

When building a new structure, consider dimensions that will allow a bedded pack to be easily converted to freestalls (or vice-versa) in the future.

Common obstacles to good production and health in stall barns are the stall structure and ventilation. In most cases, stalls can be modified to provide adequate space for the cows to recline, rise, and rest comfortably without striking the stall structure or interfering with adjacent cows. Comfort and footing of the stall bed can be improved by adding more bedding or adding a more resilient surface, such as a rubber- or water-filled mattress.

Improving the ventilation can be a challenge, but well worth the effort. The importance of fresh, dry air cannot be understated. Good air quality is one of the main benefits of grazing. Why compromise it during weather extremes?

Properly sized, installed, and managed fans, inlets, and controls can provide an excellent air exchange to remove moisture, gases, dust, and other pollutants during all seasons. Tunnel ventilation is an excellent hot weather system, but is not suitable for cooler weather. The rapid air exchange and breeze at lower temperatures can increase stress on dairy cows. Reducing the capacity of a tunnel ventilation system during cooler weather usually results in nonuniform temperatures and air quality in the animal space. Your nose and eyes can be a good monitor of ventilation system performance. If the air quality is undesirable, take the necessary steps to improve it.

Seasonal confinement of dairy cows should not compromise animal health and production. Good shelter design and management will provide a dry, comfortable resting area, good ventilation, good access to feed and water, and a confident footing. Don't let the shelter available to grazing herds during cold (and hot) weather have a negative affect on production and profitability.

For more information on cow comfort and shelter design, contact Dan McFarland at (717) 840-7560.

Shirk Retirement Gala At Farm And Home Center

Shirk is surrounded by past and present dairy agents from around the region. Shirk, who contributed several columns to Lancaster Farming for many years, also was a contributor to the Penn State Capitol Dairy Team's Focus On Dairy column, which continues today. His extension career stretched 41 years. In Lancaster Dairy Notes, Shirk wrote, "I thank you for the opportunity I have had to be involved with the dairy industry and to be a part of your lives. In some small way, I hope I have been able to help enrich your lives as much as you have enriched mine." Lancaster Farming wishes Glenn a wonderful retirement. Thanks, Glenn! Photo and commentary by Andy Andrews, editor

NCBA CEO Seeks Input During Pa. Town Hall Meetings

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania beef, dairy and veal producers who want to discuss key industry issues face-to-face with the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA) will get their chance in late October.

NCBA is working with The Pennsylvania Beef Council and state cattlemen's organizations to hold two town hall meetings in Pennsylvania with chief executive officer Terry Stokes. The meetings will provide open forums for producers to share their views on industry issues with NCBA and state organization leaders.

"I want to hear what's on the minds of producers so that NCBA can better meet their needs," said Stokes. "Producers who come and share their feelings will give NCBA the opportunity to better represent them."

The meetings will help provide input for the future direction for NCBA in the legislative and regulatory arena, as well as in the global marketplace, Stokes said. It will also allow the national organization a chance to share its vision and philosophies with producers.

Two opportunities have been scheduled to meet, listen and share your thoughts with Terry Stokes.

The first meeting is scheduled for Oct. 29 at 7 p.m. at the Lancaster County Extension office located at 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster.

On Wednesday, Oct. 30, Stokes will travel to western Pennsylvania for a town hall meeting and beef lunch at ErReR Hill Farms located at 390 Riggs Road, Friedens, Somerset County. Stokes will speak to and listen to producer comments beginning at 11 a.m. followed by an industry sponsored grilled beef lunch.

For further information or directions please contact the Pennsylvania Beef Council at (717) 939-7000 or the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association at (814) 238-5888.

PMMB Announces September Class I Price

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) announced the prices to be paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers for September Class I milk (beverage) as an average of $14.51 in the western areas of the commonwealth, and an average of $15 in the central and eastern areas of the commonwealth. These prices include the over-order premium of $1.65 per 100 pounds of milk.

Farmers, whose milk production is pooled under a federal order, will receive a marketwide blend price based upon the value of all classes of milk. However, the blend price received will vary as the component composition of a farmer's milk differs from the established benchmarks of 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids.

Funk At Preservation Celebration

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Amos Funk, seated, was a guest at the recent farm preservation celebration at Landis Valley Museum. Funk was instrumental in the development of a farmland preservation program in Lancaster County, which ranks number one in total preserved acres in the country.

Weekly Dairy Outlook

pensive. That's because they rose 6.8 percent from the year before (during these same three months) because of rapidly rising butterfat prices. And butterfat prices this year are down 50 percent from last year. One would expect ice cream prices to have fallen back to their pre-2001 levels. That did not occur.

The same is also true for natural cheese. Protein, the main ingredient in cheese production, fell in value this year. Cheese processors during June August paid farmers 14.6 percent less than the same months a year ago, yet retail cheese prices rose. In major urban markets, natural cheese rose from an average $4.04 per pound for June-August 2001 to $4.32 per pound this year.

Whole milk prices for major urban markets in the U.S. have actually gone down 5.7 percent during the months June-August of this year when compared to the same months a year ago. On the other hand, lower federal order prices (regulated by the federal government) meant fluid processors paid farmers 30 percent less for their milk. Someone is keeping this difference.

Retail fluid milk prices in Harrisburg went down 5.4 percent in October 2002 relative to the same month a year ago. But minimum state milk prices are regulated in Pennsylvania. That means processor margins are fixed by the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board and therefore don't necessarily go up when farm prices fall. That is not the case in other states.

This concern over the farm-retail price spread shouldn't be an issue if dairy product sales are increasing year after year. Processors and retailers have their job to do, and farmers have their job. And if sales are going up each year, everyone is better off. Dairy farmers do well in years when sales are strong and inventories are low.

But this logic does not apply this year!

The latest data from USDA indicates that for the first half of 2002, commercial disappearance of all milk (on a milk fat basis) was actually down 0.4 percent, whereas milk production was up 2.6 percent. For select dairy products, consumption changes for the first half of 2002 relative to a year ago were as follows: butter, up 1.7 percent; American cheese, up 0.3 percent; other cheese, even; nonfat dry milk, down 30.7 percent; and fluid milk products, even.

Strong milk production and weak demand has lead to unusually large inventory levels. The latest USDA report for the month of August indicates that butter inventories are up 95 percent from a year ago, American cheese up 13 percent, and total cheese inventories are up 11 percent. These inventories will likely "overhang" the market next year, depressing future prices for butter and cheese. In addition, the U.S. government has 1.2 billion pounds of nonfat dry milk in government storage, more than enough to meet domestic needs for an entire year.

The outlook for the holiday shopping season is clearly uncertain. Again, it's the economy that has been holding consumers back. But that didn't stop the auto companies from offering good deals to their customers. Many purchased new cars with low interest rates, deep discounts, and other favorable terms. Also, computer companies such as Dell continue to lower prices in order to build market share and increase sales. There are ways for companies to deal with tough economic conditions.

Dairy retailers have a rare opportunity to offer quality dairy products to their customers at favorable prices. The wholesale prices for milk, butter, and cheese are at very low levels. That should translate into opportunities to offer these products to consumers at reduced prices, employ sales promotions, and use other strategies to give the consumer a better deal.

Strong holiday sales this last quarter will do wonders for the U.S. dairy industry, mainly by reducing inventory levels and allowing the market to jump-start into a new year. Farm gate milk prices will then be able to recover early next year if inventories are lower and if the growth in the milk supply slows.

Expo Selects Supreme Champion

MADISON, Wis. — An aged Holstein cow exhibited by Mark Rueth and Kent Van Dyk of Deerfield, Wis., was selected as this year's 2002 World Dairy Expo supreme champion during the 36th event here Oct. 2-6. This is a repeat performance for Paradise, as she was also the supreme in 2000. Robthom Integrity-ET sired the animal named Van Dyk-K Integrity Paradise. Her dam is Van Dyk-K Broker Pansy-ET. The champion produced a 305-day record of 30,500 pounds of milk, 1,181 pounds of fat and 1,052 pounds of protein.

The reserve supreme champion honors went to the champion from the Central National Jersey Show. Blacky Rose of Briarcliffs is an aged cow owned by Justin Burdette, Norm Nabholz and Waverly Farm of Clearbrook, Va. Her 305-day production record is 21,793 pounds of milk, 1,230 pounds of fat and 826 pounds of protein. Briarcliffs Bs Blackie sired Blacky, and her dam is Briarcliffs Lester Louise.

A Red and White cow named Jimdandy R S Glamour Shot exhibited by Kelly Coffeen of Chilton, Wis., was selected as the supreme champion of the junior show during World Dairy Expo. The reserve supreme champion of the junior show was Valligrove Jetway Nora, a Brown Swiss, exhibited by Jodi J. Coppini of Ferndale, Calif.

SOIL FERTILITY: START FROM THE GROUND UP!

Dwane L. Miller
Schuylkill County
Cooperative Extension

Dr. Rick Stehouwer from Penn State refers to soil as the "black box" of crop production, and I have to agree with that. We put things into the box, and we get things out of the box, but no one really knows what happens inside that box. While most farmers are not chemists or soil scientists (myself included), we should still understand the foundation by which most fertility decisions should be made: soil testing.

A soil test performed by a reliable laboratory provides a good estimate of the fertility status of a field. Soil testing should be the basis for any fertilizer application. In order to have a chance at achieving maximum yields, soil testing for agronomic crops should be done every three years.

For vegetables and other high-value crops, an annual soil test is recommended. For each year, a fertilizer recommendation is given for nitrogen (N), phosphate, (P_2O_5), and potash (K_2O). These are the same three main nutrients that appear in all fertilizers.

Recommendations are crop-specific, matching the crop you specify on the soil test form.

The basic soil test also gives an interpretation of the current pH of the soil. Soil pH indicates the level of acidity in the soil. A soil with a pH less than 7.0 is considered an acid soil. High levels of soil acidity (low pH) can reduce root growth, reduce nutrient availability, and affect herbicide activity. For most agronomic crops, a soil pH of 6.0 to 7.0 is ideal for crop growth.

However, the pH tolerance range for various crop species can vary. For example, legumes and barley respond better to a pH range between 6.5 and 7.0, while oats can tolerate a much lower pH (5.5). Soil test recommendations give, based on a specific crop, the amount of limestone required to raise the pH of the soil to an optimum level.

If the test calls for more than four tons of limestone per acre, the application should be split with half of the limestone plowed in and the rest worked into the surface with secondary tillage. For low rates of limestone, or if a split application is not possible, the limestone should be worked into the surface rather than plowed down. This will assure that the surface soil, where the seedling is developing and where the nodulation begins in legumes, has the proper pH.

Many other tests can be performed on your soil sample. Some include organic matter, mercury, lead, and arsenic. These optional tests are available for an additional fee. Fees vary with the test performed.

Fall is an ideal time to have your soil tested. This will allow you to add any limestone to fields that require it, and give the limestone a chance to work its "magic" in the soil until the following spring. Soil test kits are $6 each and are available from and Penn State Cooperative Extension Office.

Here are some soil sampling tips:

- Sample at the right time. The best time to sample is in the fall.
- Take cores from 15-20 spots randomly over the field to obtain a representative sample. Remember: the more spots you sample, the better your sample will represent the entire field. One sample should not represent more than 10 to 20 acres.
- Sample between rows. Avoid old fence rows, dead furrows, and other spots that are not representative of the whole field.
- Take separate samples from problem areas, or avoid them all together.
- Sample to plow depth in cultivated fields.
- Take two samples from no-till fields: one- to a six-inch depth for lime and fertilizer recommendations and one- to a two-inch depth to monitor surface acidity.
- Sample permanent pastures to a three- to four-inch depth.
- Collect the samples in a clean container.
- Mix the core samplings, allow to air dry, and remove roots and stones.

We've only begun to scratch the surface on the topic of soil fertility, but hopefully you'll understand that soil testing is one of the basic building blocks of crop production. You can't expect to achieve top yields without first knowing the condition of your soil. Where else can a $6 investment return so much?

Editor's note: Comments and suggestions are always welcome. Please contact Dwane Miller, Schuylkill County Cooperative Extension, 1202 Ag Center Drive, Pottsville, PA 17901, (570) 622-4225.

S.A.V.E. Hires Executive Director

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.) — Safety Agriculture Villages Environment (S.A.V.E.), has announced it has hired Dee Durham as its new executive director.

Durham joins S.A.V.E. after eight years as the executive director of Preservation Delaware, Inc., the statewide historic preservation organization in Delaware.

She serves on Gov. Ruth Ann Minner's Advisory Council for Livable Delaware and is active in preservation and nonprofit projects.

Chairman Louis Kaplan said "S.A.V.E. is fortunate to have an individual with the qualifications, insight, and energy which Dee Durham brings to our organization. She will operate our office at Willowdale and provide continuity for S.A.V.E. as we bring our two-lane alternative before elected officials and the public in the coming month."

S.A.V.E. is a citizens group working to develop and promote alternatives to PennDOT's plans for a new four-lane expressway along Rt. 41. According to Chair Louis Kaplan, there are better ways to address the safety and congestion problems in the corridor. S.A.V.E. proposes a three-part solution that includes limiting through-bound tractor-trailer trucks in the area, implementing modern traffic calming techniques, and increasing enforcement of traffic laws.

Top Dairy Industry Executives Speak At Dairylea

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dairylea Cooperative Inc. announced that several top executives in the dairy industry were scheduled to speak at its annual meeting Tuesday, at the Holiday Inn in Liverpool, N.Y.

Each year Dairylea invites industry leaders to speak to its membership and agribusiness professionals to provide perspective on the dairy industry.

The program's first guest speaker is Wes Allen, president and chief executive officer of Leprino Foods Company, a manufacturer of mozzarella cheese. Allen spoke about how Leprino Foods began, its growth, the scope of operations, and the company's unique position in the marketplace.

Secondly, attendees were set to hear from C.O. "Tex" Beshears, chairman and chief executive officer of National Dairy Holdings,a dairy processing company. Beshears' presentation is titled "New in the National Marketplace — National Dairy Holdings" and he was set to talk about the history behind National Dairy Holdings, how it was formed, its scope of operations, and how it was able to quickly position itself as a major player in the national market.

The afternoon's last speaker was Gary Hanman, president and chief executive officer of Dairy Farmers of America (DFA), the nation's largest dairy cooperative with more than 23,000 members. Hanman's presentation is titled, "Where are DFA and the U.S. Dairy Industry Going?" and he was to discuss the future direction for DFA, including new relationships and ventures. Hanman also shares his thoughts on the future direction for the U.S dairy industry as a whole.

PMMB Announces September Class I Price

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) announced the prices to be paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers for September Class I milk (beverage) as an average of $14.51 in the western areas of the commonwealth, and an average of $15 in the central and eastern areas of the commonwealth. These prices include the over-order premium of $1.65 per 100 pounds of milk.

Farmers, whose milk production is pooled under a federal order, will receive a marketwide blend price based upon the value of all classes of milk. However, the blend price received will vary as the component composition of a farmer's milk differs from the established benchmarks of 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids.

Russia Requires More For Poultry Exports

tion put new demands on poultry operations in America. Prior to negotiations with the U.S., they demanded that poultry operations be inspected and approved by Russian vets, and the birds must go to plants also approved by Russian officials.

Poultry meat is usually sold when the birds come to market weight, and it is difficult to dedicate farms solely for Russian production.

Consequently, the two countries went into discussion. After 10 days of debate in America about the new restrictions on U.S.-exported poultry, government representatives met again in Moscow for another 10 days to try to come up with a workable certification for producers.

One of the requests from the Russians was that a veterinarian overseeing the flock sign a weekly certificate addressing flock health.

"Because it is not feasible for a veterinarian to visit each flock every month, we proposed that the serviceperson would provide a written report and that will be filed each week," she said.

The serviceperson would also maintain close communication with the flock's veterinarian. These reports answer the concerns of the Russian Federation, said Hall.

"They want to know that certain conditions which may contribute to salomonellosis are routinely looked into," she said.

Servicepersons will now be writing up reports, including notes about compliance with the company's written salmonella control program.

They will also note how and when the problem, if there is one, is corrected. The Russians are also concerned about improper feed additives being given to the flocks.

To address flock health, servicepersons will be checking off a list of possible health problems. If there is a problem, this should be noted in the report, and will show when the vet was contacted.

Answering the feed additives concern, the report should also note the feed formulation and feed tag number for the most current feed. Feed additives are not used in the U.S., according to Hall.

Most reports will also include flock identification, farm identification, date of the visit, and the signature of the serviceperson.

A written company biosecurity program should be kept at the veterinarian's office and regularly reviewed and signed by both the veterinarian and serviceperson, said Hall.

The Russian Federation also expressed concern about avian influenza (A.I.). It is now a requirement to report any positive A.I. serology to the USDA, which in turn communicates to Russia.

Although the Russians do not have testing requirements for poultry, "what is the potential for the industry if we don't test?" she asked.

These new requirements address commercial flocks, which are those typically destined for ready-to-cook/processed meat markets, including broilers, layers, and turkeys.

USDA/APHIS personnel have written letters to the Russian Federation detailing the U.S.'s reaction to A.I. problems, including surveillance, quarantine, depopulation, and cleaning measures.

These letters were meant to shorten the federations required six-month trade embargo on any states with A.I.-positive flocks.

"We're now working on Virginia," she said. The USDA is now writing another letter to see if we can get the state released from trade restrictions.

The USDA is still negotiating with Russia, who may still change their requirements. Hall has planned a trip to Russia in the next few weeks.

Beef Scholarships Offered

DENVER, Colo. — Deserving college students who intend to pursue careers in the beef industry have a chance to supplement their 2003 education, thanks to the Chicago Mercantile Exchange (CME) and the National Cattlemen's Foundation (NCF).

More than $25,000 in cash scholarships and prizes will be awarded to students in the NCF's 13th annual CME Beef Industry Scholarship Program now underway.

Each of 20 students will be awarded $1,250 in the program, with one student selected to also receive the top prize of an expense paid trip to the 2003 Cattle Industry Annual Convention and Trade Show in Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 29 — Feb. 1, 2003.

Students applying for the scholarship may pursue careers in agricultural education, communications, production, research or any another area related to the beef industry. To be eligible, a student must:

1. be enrolled as an undergraduate student in a four-year institution for the entire 2003/2004 academic year. Proof of enrollment as a full-time student will be required to receive the scholarship money.

2. Write a brief letter expressing/indicating future career goals related to the beef industry.

3. Write an essay of 750 words or less describing an issue confronting the beef industry and offer a solution.

4. Obtain two letters of reference from current or former professors or industry professionals.

5. Prepare a cover sheet to include: name, complete current mailing address and telephone number, school name, year in school, permanent mailing address and telephone number.

Materials should be postmarked no later than Nov. 27 and submitted to: Chairman Donald Butler, National Cattlemen's Foundation, 9110 E. Nichols Ave., Ste 300, Centennial, CO 80112.

More information is available at the www.beef.org Web site under the quick links and then scholarship information, or by calling Audrey Potts at (303) 850-3317.

Introduced in 1989 to celebrate the 25th Anniversary of Live Cattle Futures, the CME Beef Industry Scholarship Program continues to recognize outstanding youth in the beef community. The National Cattlemen's Foundation (NCF) will administer the program, read the essays, and select the winners.

Essays will be judged on the basis of clarity of expression, persuasiveness, originality, accuracy, relevance of topic, and the solutions offered. Judges decisions are final. All applicants will be notified of results in January 2003. CME and the NCF reserve the right to publish any or parts of all essays submitted.

11th Conference Features Forestry

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Participants in a conference midweek learned about everything from neighborhood greening to Japanese Knotweed to living memorials to pruning practices from about 20 speakers from a variety of organizations.

Approximately 80 government and forest industry representatives gathered at the Atherton Hotel, State College, at the 11th annual Pennsylvania Community Forestry Conference.

Speakers included representatives of the U.S. Forest Service, USDA Forest Service Metropolitan Initiative, Maryland Department of Natural Resources, Pennsylvania Environmental Council, Pennsylvania Bureau of Forestry, and USDA Forest Service Living Memorial Initiative, among others.

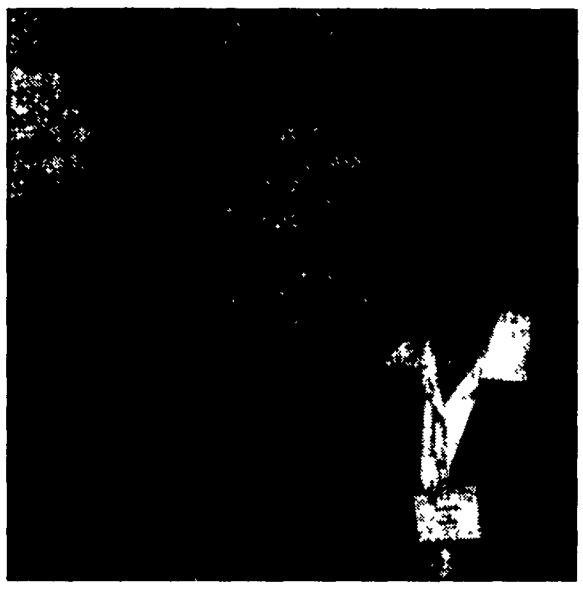
To address urban forest issues, Patrice Carroll, USDA Forest Service Metropolitan Initiative coordinator discussed tools for "neighborhood greening."

David Burke, Maryland Green Infrastructure coordinator, discussed how municipalities worked together in Maryland's green infrastructure program.

The second day of the conference highlighted tree structure, function, and care. Erika Svendsen, USDA Forest Service Living Memorial Initiative, New York City, spoke about trees' role as living memorials.

Dr. Kevin Smith, USDA Forest Service Research Scientist, spoke about recognizing and preventing problem trees. David Schwartz, an arborist from Rhode Island, discussed pruning and Mike McNamara, utility forester, presented proper utility pruning.

Ben Tresselt Jr., Pennsylvania Urban and Community Forestry Council president, opened the conference. He introduced five new urban forestry extension specialists who attended.



At right, Barbara Gray, professor of organizational behavior, Penn State, spoke during the conference. Gray is joined by event coordinator Bill Elmendorf, assistant professor of community forestry in the School of Forest Resources, Penn State.

Barbara Gray, professor of organizational behavior, Penn State,discussed conflict resolution in local government.

"Community conflicts about land use and environmental issues affect us all," said Gray. "We can't turn around where there's not a group with an issue or a township trying to plan something that causes consternation in the community.

"Everyone has to know what's going on and be informed about the choices, and feel as though they've had some say."

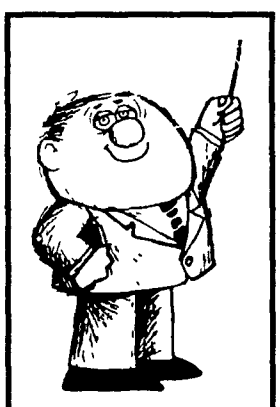
Gray presented five different designs that are possible to use in community conflict. The five processes are in ascending order of community involvement in the final decision.

The first process is a public information meeting. "If you are planning such a meeting, think about ways to get an opportunity for feedback an dialogue" (stations or questions), said Gray.

Agencies get input, either written or by phone, on a proposed plan in the formal review and comment process.

The public presents their commends on a plan in a formal public hearing. The agency overseeing the problems is required to record and consider comments.

All stakeholders — agency and public — have a say in the fourth process, the concensus-building process. Stakeholders meet until an agreement is reached and that is recommended to the agency. Mediation, the fifth process, brings about a joint solution and is a process managed by a neutral third party."Things happen when people come to the table and stop and listen to each other,' she said. "We have to listen deeply in order to come to constructive solutions."



A lesson well learned...

Heat with Corn!
Made in USA

A BETTER ALTERNATIVE
The corn burning furnace has many advantages over wood and coal heat. The large storage bin holds up to 14 bushels of fuel, which is automatically fed into the combustion chamber as needed. There's no need to load the furnace several times a day. The use of corn also eliminates the bark mess, insects, splinters, and handling problems connected with the use of wood fuel, and the dust and dirt from coal. UL Approved.

Four-H Offers World Of Opportunities

Lancaster County 4-H Recognition Night Honors Members

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

ADAMSTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — At the 4-H Recognition Night Tuesday at Weaver's Banquet Hall, 17-year-old Lori Hess walked away with the most coveted 4-H honor — the Superior Achievement Award.

In explaining her outstanding achievements during her nine years as a 4-H member, Lori said, "Four-H offers a world of opportunities."

The diligent 4-H'er took advantage of an astounding number of opportunities by participating in many facets of 4-H such as dairy, leadership, swine, and community clubs and competing at county, district, and state levels.

She said, "Four-H is a big part of my life."

She complimented her parents, 4-H leaders, extension agents, and the Boyd family, who made the award possible by a memorial contribution in honor of deceased 4-H leaders Elmer L. and Pauline Boyd.

The Friend of 4-H Award went to the Lancaster Rotary for their support of the Strawberry Roundup since 1961.

Members earning awards for record form scrapbooks competed at three levels. Loren Hershey, Lori Hess, and Erik Nussbaum earned awards for 7-10 year division; Laura Fellenbaum, Reid Fellenbaum, and Lisa Hershey, 4-6 years; and Erin Bensing, Jennifer Esbenshade, Melissa Fellenbaum, and Luke Hershey for 1-3 years.

Awards were given to the many of the 600 club leaders for volunteering their time to teach the clubs. Most notable are William Dean, 35 years; Dale Smith and Evelyn Hartmann, 30 years; and Kerry Boyd, 25.

Approximately 3 400 4-H members between the ages of 8-18 participate in the Lancaster County 4-H program. Numerous members were recognized for their outstanding accomplishments throughout the year. Tal-

Senior ent winners displayed their skill by providing entertainment interspersed throughout the program. These included Jessica Esh, Erin Bensing, Lindsey Bensing, Christine Keefer, Sarah Bechtel, and Jessica Rayburn.

one of the best yet, according to Jennifer Hankey, associate director. Some 26 new associate members have been signed on in the MAAFS.

"We've got a great group of associate members," Hankey said. "They are all doing their part by becoming involved in MAAFS and putting their support forward. I hope the member fairs and shows will, in turn, support them."

Dennis Hazzard, CFE, chairman of the MAAFS programs and speakers, said he is excited with the subject matter and speaker caliber for this year's convention.

Nationally acclaimed speakers will include Jim DeLoretto from Portland, Ore.; Greg Stewart, IAFE chairman; Vikki Choris from South Florida Fair; Rick Frenette from Ohio State Fair; Sharon Shrock, NICA representative; and Buck Christian, CFE, South Florida Fair.

"We've also got a lot of great speakers, both locally and regionally, on the agenda," Hazzard said. "It's two days packed full of some of the top speakers from across the country."

During the business meeting, delegates will elect two to the MAAFS board of directors a vice president and secretary-treasure. Additionally, items to be covered during the business meeting include information on the Maryland Agricultural Fair Premium Funding freeze and information regarding noise issues affecting many fairs across the state.

Prior to the beginning of the convention on Thursday, Oct. 31, will be the MAAFS indoor exhibit judging school. This one-day seminar, beginning with registration at 8:30 a.m., is designed to certify judges who evaluate various indoor exhibits at local, county, and state fairs.

Farmers Seek Disaster Aid

gress now to support disaster assistance for agriculture."

Farm Bureau is seeking an emergency package that would provide support for crop and livestock losses in years 2001 and 2002. "The House of Representatives must act now," said Donaldson.

Gov. Schweiker has requested disaster declarations for 54 Pennsylvania counties suffering from the state's second drought in the past four years. Crop losses in the drought-stricken counties have been projected at more than $321 million.

Farm Bureau is seeking an amendment to add an assistance package to the long-term continuing resolution which combines funding for government operations for the year.

Farm Bureau is also seeking co-sponsors for H.R. 5383, which would also provide disaster assistance at "such sums as are necessary," meaning pro-rating of assistance would not be necessary.

Farmers can contact their member of Congress by calling the U.S. Capitol switchboard at (202) 224-3121.

Bendig's Red And White Named Expo Overall Sweepstakes Champion

MADISON, Wis. — Spungold Tahoe-Red was named the overall champion of the second Bill Graham World Dairy Center International Sweepstakes at the 2002 World Dairy Expo. Dale and Deanna Bendig of Gettysburg exhibited the Red and White Holstein. The champion will take home prize monies totaling $2,512. For being selected as the overall champion, she received an additional $1,000 on top of the $1,512 she won for being the Red and White class winner.

The reserve overall sweepstakes champion was Response Cheryl exhibited by Stephan, Bradley, and John White of New Castle, Ind. For being the sweepstakes class winner in the Jersey breed she was awarded $1,679.

Other sweepstakes class winners and prize monies won include:

• Ayrshire sweepstakes class winner: Moy-Ayr Trident Malibu, exhibited by Pauline Moyer-Schmidt of Whitewater, Wis.

Start Clean Next Spring with Fall Sprays

If weather delays next springs burndown applications you could wind up with some real weed-control headaches in your Roundup Ready* soybean fields Thats where a well-planned timely fall herbicide application can help

Fall applications provide early burndown of actively growing weeds plus residual weed control to help you plant into clean fields next spring – just like spring burndowns do But with a fall application your fields will dry down faster for earlier planting and insects may be fewer due to less weed vegetation Populations of soybean cyst nematode may also be reduced

Fall applications of Python WDG herbicide at 0 8 to 1 0 ounce 1 pint of 2 4-D and 1 pint of Glyphomax Plus herbicide per acre control tough weeds like purple deadnettle and henbit plus common chickweed mustard shepherdspurse butterweed field pennycress yellow rocket, wild mustards and early flushes of lambsquarters

Make your fall application when soil temperatures have dropped to 50 degrees F and are continuing to fall This will help Python WDG remain stable in the soil until it activates next spring

One more benefit that Python WDG provides is the flexibility to plant corn if market or weather conditions dictate a change Canopy XL herbicide restricts growers to soybeans

When next spring arrives, you can use one 32-ounce post application of Glyphomax Plus to clean up any remaining weeds in your Roundup Ready soybeans Or you can tank-mix 0 3 ounces of FirstRate' herbicide with reduced rates of Glyphomax Plus if common and giant ragweed, cocklebur, sunflowers or velvetleaf are a common weed problem in your fields

For more information about using Python WDG and Glyphomax Plus herbicides in a fall-applied program, contact your local ag retailer

KILE Conducts Simmental Progress Through Performance Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Continuing to celebrate the hard work of Simmental breeders from across North America, the 46th Annual Keystone International Livestock Exposition hosted the Performance through Progress Show for the Simmental breed.

For the fifth consecutive year, Haven Woods Farms, Stoneboro, was selected as the premier breeder of the show. The largest breeder of purebred Simmental cattle in Pennsylvania, Haven Woods also was awarded their third reserve grand champion bull at KILE.

KILE marks the continuation of a successful show season for Haven Woods as they have shown previously this year at the Pennsylvania Farm Show, Ohio State Fair, the Eastern National Show, and the New York State Fair.

Joining Haven Woods in the winner's circle were several other farms. Rising to the occasion was SVJ Farm of Amity with the selection of their winning entry, SVJ MS Dream Girl, as grand champion female. Completing the female champion pair was Tice's Alert Legacy T06L exhibited by Belinda's Bullpen of Alexandria as the reserve grand champion female. Joining Haven Woods' reserve champion bull was the grand champion bull, Lucas Dynamic 85L, owned by Lucas Cattle Company, Cross Timbers, Md.

The premier exhibitor award was presented to SVJ Farm of Amity.

Listeria Often Difficult To Pinpoint

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The largest food product recall in U.S. history recently was prompted by an outbreak of listeriosis, a potentially fatal disease caused by Listeria monocytogenes.

The company in question, Wampler Foods of Philadelphia, voluntarily recalled nearly 28 million pounds of turkey and chicken products and closed its plant in Franconia, Penn., for cleaning. Still, initial reports emphasized that no firm connection had been found between the type of Listeria found at the plant and the type that has caused 120 illnesses, including 20 deaths in eight Northeast states since last summer.

However, difficulty in pinpointing such a link is not surprising, said Ohio State University food microbiologist Ahmed Yousef.

'To establish such a link, researchers need to prove that the DNA 'fingerprints' of the disease-causing bacteria from patients and meat are similar," said Yousef, a professor of food science and technology with the university's Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center.

Bob Simpson installed a 61'x15' Slurrystore® System in 1975. When additional waste storage became necessary, he had no question about what type of system to turn to. In July, Penn Jersey installed a new 123'x19' Slurrystore, which will be used in conjunction with his existing original structure. According to Bob, no other system can match the ease of agitation and emptying of the Slurrystore System.

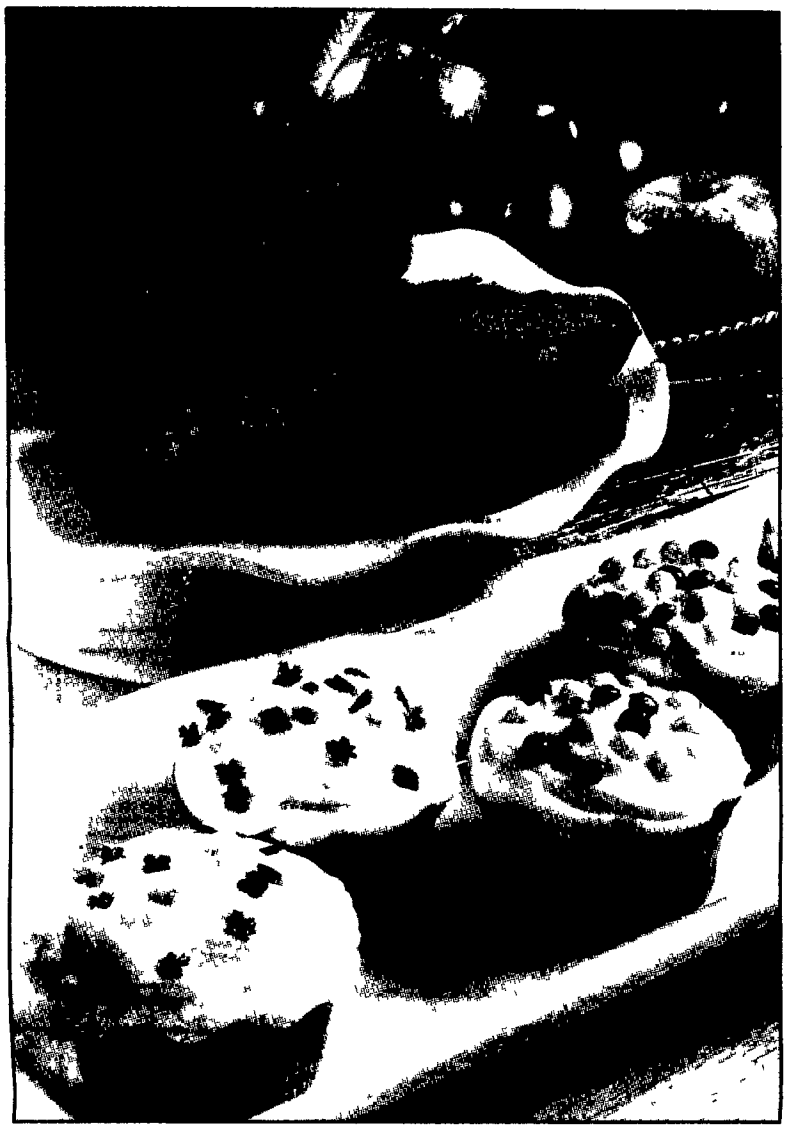
Squash Mealtime Blahs With Pumpkin Recipes



Pumpkin offers savvy appeal to bread, cupcakes, and pie.

While large jack-o'-lantern-type pumpkins can be cooked for pies or other recipes, their flesh is stringy and the eating quality is poor compared to the smaller pie-type pumpkins, often called sugar pumpkins because of their sweetness.

Pumpkins are close relatives to winter squash and most commercially prepared "pumpkin" is actually winter squash. Neck pumpkins (which are really squash), butternut and Hubbard squashes all make tasty "pumpkin" dishes, such as pumpkin pie or pumpkin bread.

Pumpkin or squash can be cooked a number of different ways. After splitting the fruit and removing the seeds and attached strings, the flesh can be cut out of the rind and cubed. The cubed flesh can then be boiled, steamed or microwaved until tender, drained and then mashed. For the smaller squash varieties, the fruit can be cut in half. After scooping out the seeds, the halves should be placed cut-side up in a shallow pan with a small amount of water or simply on a baking sheet, covered with foil and baked in a hot oven until the flesh is tender. The halves can also be partially covered and cooked in a microwave oven until tender. The cooked flesh can then be scooped out and mashed for use in recipes. Or for a quick vegetable a little butter and brown sugar can be placed on top of the halved squash during the baking process and the squash served as is.

Pumpkin and squash are both good sources of vitamin A although squash generally has more than pumpkin. They also have good amounts of fiber and help fulfill the recommended three to five servings of vegetables per day recommended by nutrition experts.

PUMPKIN CREAM CHEESE BREAD

3 cups flour
2 cups sugar
2 teaspoons baking soda
1½ teaspoons ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
2 large eggs
15 ounces pumpkin (cooked and mashed)
⅔ cup vegetable oil

Preheat oven for 15 minutes to 350 degrees Fahrenheit. Stir together first eight ingredients. Lightly beat eggs. Mix the pumpkin and oil, then add to the eggs. Now mix all the wet ingredients with the flour mixture, stirring just to combine. Batter will be stiff. Spoon one inch of batter into the bottom of one 9x5 loaf pan. Put ⅔ of the cream cheese filling into the center leaving ½ inch without the cream cheese filling around all four sides. Spoon the rest of the batter on top of the cream cheese filling. (The remaining ⅓ of the cream cheese filling is not used in the recipe. If the bread recipe is doubled, use ½ of cream cheese filling in each loaf.) Bake for 1 hour and 10 minutes or more as needed. Cool in the loaf pan for seven minutes and then turn out onto a cloth covered cooling rack. Allow to cool completely before cutting.

Cream Cheese Filling:
8-ounce package of cream cheese at room temperature
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup regular sugar
1 large egg
Mix together well.

PUMPKIN-CHOCOLATE CHIP LOAF

3 cups flour
2 cups sugar
2 teaspoons baking soda
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup oil
4 eggs
⅔ cup water
2 cups pumpkin (cooked and mashed)
12-ounce package of chocolate chips

Mix all the ingredients together except the pumpkin and chocolate chips. Blend well. Add the pumpkin and then fold in the chocolate chips. Divide batter into two greased and floured 9x5x3-inch loaf pans. Bake in a preheated 325-degree Fahrenheit oven for about 1 hour and 15 minutes until a toothpick comes out clean.

IMPOSSIBLE PUMPKIN PIE

¾ cup sugar
½ cup Bisquick
2 tablespoons butter
1⅔ cups milk
16-ounce canned pumpkin
1½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 teaspoons vanilla

Beat together all ingredients in blender one minute or in mixture for 2 minutes. Pour into greased pie pan. Bake until set or when knife inserted in center and comes out clean. Refrigerate, cut, and top with whipped cream.

SPAGHETTI SQUASH

3 pounds spaghetti squash

Using a knife, pierce two holes in squash. Microwave on medium setting for 15 minutes. Cut squash in half and let cool 30 minutes.

In the meantime, saute:
1 large chopped onion, until transparent
Add:
1 tablespoons minced garlic
4 leaves fresh basil, chopped
2 tablespoons fresh parsley
16-ounce can diced tomatoes
½ cup red or white wine

Simmer five minutes and keep on low.

Pulling spoon in downward fashion, scoop out squash and separate so that it looks like spaghetti. Add sauce mixture and heat. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and serve.

FROSTED PUMPKIN BARS

2 cups sugar
1 cup oil
4 eggs
1 cup pumpkin, cooked, mashed
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder

Mix together sugar and oil. Add beaten eggs and pumpkin. Add flour, baking soda, spices, etc., and beat until smooth. Line two oblong cake pans with wax paper and bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes.

Frosting:
2 ounces cream cheese
6 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 cups confectioners' sugar

Mix and spread on cooled cake; cut into bars.

Featured Recipe

Yellow crooked, necked, butternut, white round patty pan, and many other varieties of pumpkin and squash abound at roadside stands.

Serve them steamed, baked, and cooked with seasonings of your choice.

If you're like most cooks, you"ll definitely cook and puree some of the varieties to use in desserts.

If you need to save time, use canned pumpkin. It is 100 percent pure, pureed pumpkin that provides tasty success in making pies, cookies, cakes, and in many other recipes.

Libby's provides this easy recipe using canned pumpkin.

EASY PUMPKIN CREAM PIE

15-ounce can pumpkin
5.1 ounce package vanilla instant pudding and pie filling mix
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
2 cups frozen whipped topping, thawed, divided
1 9-inch graham cracker crust
Fresh raspberries (optional)

Combine pumpkin, pudding mix, milk, and pumpkin pie spice in large mixer bowl; beat one minute or until blended. Fold in 1½ cups whipped topping. Spoon into crust. Freeze for at least four hours or until firm. Let stand in refrigerator one hour before serving. Garnish with remaining whipped topping and raspberries. Serve immediately.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

Recently, I attended a Girl Scout meeting. New members were inducted into the troop. This is a new group that meets at a church. My daughter-in-law who started the group is one of the leaders. She has her hands full with 20 lively young girls.

The meeting reminded me of the some 20 years that I spent as a 4-H Community Club leader. We had older youth and only half as many active members. As years went by we had less and less farm youth and more from the suburbs. My daughters helped me plan meetings, and we had varied programs. Some of the places that we visited were Bell Telephone Co., Lancaster Newspapers, W.G.A.L. television studios, veterinarian offices, and plant farms.

The members could choose from many different projects. Our children had bee keeping, flower gardening, strawberries, sewing, and cooking. Our children were also in the dairy club and the pig club. Our daughters held meetings in my new kitchen, and cooked a complete meal each meeting. I stayed out of the kitchen and they cleaned up everything afterwards.

There were many good and bad experiences during those years. We had the experience of selling cookies when ants got into the boxes, and some children never turned in the money they collected. We had the pleasure of hosting other clubs at our farm.

The club was finally disbanded when the suburban members found so many other things to do and did not complete their projects. They had many sports to attend and vacations to take. It is necessary for parents to be involved and to encourage their children to finish a project that they start.

Buying Tips For Pennsylvania Pumpkins

The Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program offers these tips when buying pumpkins:

- Select pumpkins that have a rich orange color with no green.
- Look for a good solid stem.
- For long-term displays, avoid pumpkins with unhealed cuts or bruises.

Raise Your Pumpkin IQ

Raise your pumpkin IQ with the information in these questions and answers.

Q. What spices are in pumpkin pie spice?

A. Pumpkin pie spice is a modern, convenient blend of traditional pumpkin pie spices. Each manufacture's blend will vary. It's also easy to make your own. To make 1 teaspoon of pumpkin pie spice, combine ½ teaspoon ground cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon ground ginger, and ⅛ teaspoon each ground cloves and nutmeg.

Q. Why do I bake a pumpkin pie at two different temperatures?

A. Baking the pie at 425 degrees Fahrenheit for 15 minutes sets the crust. Lowering the heat to 350 degrees Fahrenheit will bake the pumpkin filling evenly.

Q. What's the best way to store pumpkin after the can is opened?

A. Scoop pumpkin from the can and place in a resealable plastic container. It will keep one week in the fridge.

Q. Can I freeze pumpkin?

A. Pumpkin will keep up to three months frozen. Simply scoop it from the original can and place in a resealable plastic container. Since pumpkin expands as it freezes, use a container large enough to accommodate this.

Q. What's the difference between pure pumpkin, solid pack pumpkin and pumpkin puree?

A. They are exactly the same: 100 percent pure pumpkin.

Q. What nutritional benefits does pumpkin offer?

A. With only 40 calories per ½-cup serving, pumpkin is a delicious source of natural vitamins and minerals, including vitamin A (80 percent beta carotene). It's also low in fat and high in dietary fiber.

Family Living Focus

by

Vicki Lewis

Lycoming County Extension

Halloween brings out the spooks and goblins in our neighborhoods.

Because we celebrate it at night, it also causes us to have safety concerns about a variety of things. This year, Daylight Savings Time ends just two days before Halloween. In addition to the usual Halloween preparations, parents and kids will be rushing around in final preparation for the holiday. Roughly four times as many children aged 5-14 are killed while walking on Halloween evening compared with other evenings of the year, and falls are a leading cause of injuries among children on Halloween. Many of these injuries can be prevented if parents closely supervise school age children during trick-or-treat activities.

Here are some tips to help avoid pedestrian injuries:

• Never let children under age 12 go trick-or-treating or cross the street without the supervision of an adult on Halloween night.

•⅛90 each them never to dart out into a street or cross between parked cars.

•Decorate costumes, bags and sacks with reflective tape and stickers.

• Use costumes that are light or bright enough to make children more visible at night.

• Teach children to walk, not run, while trick-or-treating.

• Remind children to stop at all street corners before crossing. Tell them to cross streets only at intersections and crosswalks.

• Teach them to look left, then right and left again before crossing the street and to continue looking both ways as they cross.

Another type of accident that is likely to happen on Halloween is falls. This often happens because of the type of costume or mask the little goblins wear. Here are some tips that are recommended by the National SAFE KIDS campaign:

• Apply face paint or cosmetics directly to the face. It is safer than a loose-fitting mask that can obstruct a child's vision. If a mask is worn, be sure it fits securely. Cut the eyeholes large enough for full vision.

• Give trick-or-treaters flashlights.

• Make costumes short enough to avoid tripping.

• Secure hats so they will not slip over children's eyes.

• Dress children in shoes that fit. Adult shoes can cause kids to trip and fall.

• Teach children not to cut across yards. Lawn ornaments and clotheslines are "hidden hazards" in the dark. Tell your children to stay on the sidewalk at all times.

Children of any age should have a plan for the evening. If older children are going out without adults, parents should know approximately when to expect them home, and they should know not to eat any treat until they return home. Snacking from the trick-or-treat bag can be avoided by giving the children a meal before they leave home. All children should have their name and address and a phone number on a card or note in their pocket in case they get separated from the group.

When you mention this October holiday to any group, they are always ready to talk about their favorite costume from their youth, or some "trick" that they played or that was played on them. It is a time to build happy family traditions and memories.

Have a happy and safe Halloween!

Eighth Annual Fall Harvest At Pepperbox Plans Announced

LAUREL, Del. — An event on the Delmarva Peninsula featuring real horsepower at work is set for Saturday, Oct. 26 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Visitors will be treated to a free ride on a horsedrawn shuttle from the parking area to the event site, where they can see field work done by horses, observe a portable sawmill in operation, help make and taste fresh apple cider, ride a Clydesdale or ride in a wagon pulled by a span of oxen, pet some farm animals, or just reminisce with friends.

Hosted by Ed and Lois Evans on their farm southeast of Trap Pond in the tiny area locally known as Pepperbox, the event draws collectors of farm equipment, classic and antique cars, trucks, tractors, engines and other memorabilia.

Other exhibitions will include basket weaving, wool spinning, chair caning, blacksmithing, and wood carving. A horsedrawn combine will be in operation after lunch. An encampment of Civil War re-enactors, primarily from the 46th Virginia Infantry, Company F, will be demonstrating living history.

Vendors will be set up and will offer their varied wares — ceramics, paintings, jewelry, woodcrafts, baskets, tack, embroidery, candles, and jams.

The carriage museum, an old kitchen, chicken coop, harness and tool sheds will be open to visitors. Two live bands will perform throughout the day, with The Dove starting the day and Lacey and Friends about noon. A parade of horses and antique machinery encircles the activity area at 2:30 p.m.

The Delmarva Driving Club was founded in 1983 to keep the skills of driving horses alive.

For more information or to register as an exhibitor or vendor, call (302) 875-4971.

Baking Tips

• Measure all-purpose flour by first stirring flour in bag or canister, to lighten it. Then lightly spoon (do not pack) flour into dry measuring cup and level with knife or spatula.

• Measure baking powder by dipping measuring spoon into can and leveling with knife or spatula. Use a dry measuring spoon — moisture will affect the baking powder's performance.

• Always start your baking projects with fresh baking powder. Old powder doesn't work as well and could make a difference in the finished product. Trying to save a few cents here could cost you many dollars' worth of other, more expensive ingredients.

• Invest a few dollars in an oven thermometer, then test your oven to see if it's right on, or needs to be set at a higher or lower temperature.

• Use the pan size given in the recipe.

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

Are they gadgets? Gizmos?

Or great, galloping improvements to our lifestyles?

How is it that the array of technical devices being invented — as we speak — come across as whizbang at the onset, only to convince us that we cannot live without them.

Farmers, undeservedly, have borne a historical stigma of being viewed as backward, old-fashioned, slow to change, stick-in-the-muds. In actuality, farmers — today's and yesterday's — and their innovative suppliers have been quick to embrace and adapt to evolving technology, often expanding their capabilities to uses probably never envisioned by the high-sci-fi minds in which they originated.

So we see farmers adapting such innovations as GPS for precision seed planting or satellite imaging to pinpoint field fertility, fungal infestations or soil moisture conditions down to every square foot or so of a large area. They've been even quicker to adapt the more everyday developments of technology — computers, cell phones, pagers, and hand-held palm devices.

All that said, farmers are still farmers.

Constant physical activity is a given for most of them, anything from wrestling greasy parts, wrangling contrary livestock, building up and tearing down of all sorts of projects to doing daily battle with bulky, heavy machinery. Inherent to that a tendency to beat, batter and break all manners of material things, making it not only unsurprising, but downright predictable, that their lifestyles clash with their high-tech helpers.

Everybody, anymore, has a cell phone in their pocket, purse or harnessed to a belt, giving us the ability to never get away from anything. For farmers (and farm wives), this communication system is a welcome technological advance. Even if I have no clue where The Farmer is planting, chopping or combining, a few rings on his cell phone can generally summon him from as far away as distant equipment parts runs or as near as the machine shop.

Unless, as in a tale related to me recently by a friend, your farmers does not answer his cell phone, because it was — unknowingly — dropped under and run over by the skid loader. Even extended warranty agreements probably don't cover skid loader cellular roadkill.

General heavy-duty wear and tear, plus dirt, dust and grease, probably did in The Farmer's first pocket phone. A thief carted off the second. My first became his third, because it was identical to his favored stolen model. Which leaves me trying to memorize menu selections on his replacement, which I ended up in possession of, because he preferred the style phone of which I still had a working model. Got that?

Naturally, each upgrade is new and improved, meaning none of the accessories — chargers, headsets, etc., — are compatible with the prior style. Much like the computer printer dying right after you've bought a double-pack of ink cartridges for it; the new model never uses the same cartridges as the old one. Our next family yard sale may feature unopened printer cartridges, fax rolls, orphaned computer components, and cell phone accessories.

Similar is the tale of another friend's handheld palm device. These big-brained, micromini-computers have a range of uses, including a niche following among dairymen who log herd information in on the run, then upload it to their PC or laptop data base when convenient.

Unless you bash it against a piece of equipment while carrying it along in your pocket, as our friend confessed had happened with his first. A replacement for the broken glass cover would have cost near the price of a new one, which he opted for instead. Then the second one developed internal problems. His third version now lives in a protective cover carried on his belt and has a paid-up service warranty.

Which doesn't cover being beaten against equipment, though, I'll betcha.

While most of us — usually — truly value our technological devices, they will still never totally replace the most tried and true of all farm communication devices.

A note scribbled with a pen from your financial lender, on a feed company tablet, and left stuck near the refrigerator.

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

The map is known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 by 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well--until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Why every angler and boater needs these maps

It is estimated that 10% of all the anglers catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into...there's a sure way to up your odds...simply try new fishing waters. Now, with this map you can find hidden streams and lakes.

Pennsylvania, New York, New England, New Jersey, Ohio and Maryland/Delaware are loaded with great fishing holes...many of them overlooked. Thousands of miles of streams, rivers and lakes are now easy-to-locate on one map.

The 3-foot-by-5-foot Pennsylvania map shows 45,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3 1/2-foot-by-4 1/2-foot New York map shows 65,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3-foot-by-4-foot New England map shows 36,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 2 1/2-foot-by-3-foot New Jersey map shows 8,300 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3-foot-by-3-foot Ohio Map shows 29,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 2-foot-by-3 1/2-foot Maryland/Delaware map shows 12,000 miles of streams plus lakes.

Professor Higbee's® Stream Maps are the first and only highly detailed maps of their kind.

Country Estate Caretaker's Search For Reliable Workforce

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

GLADWYN (Montgomery Co.) — What does Dave Wilder, caretaker of a 68-acre country estate on the Main Line, have in common with dairy farmers?

"Finding a reliable workforce," Wilder responds.

In his years of responsibility for maintaining the private wealthy estate, Wilder has become increasingly frustrated in hiring local labor.

Initially, employees might find maintaining the estate grounds an exciting prospect until it comes to hoisting a weed whacker on their shoulders for three days straight in hot weather — then they quit.

"Kids today don't know the difference between diesel and gasoline," Wilder said of engines that were damaged from inserting the wrong fuel.

"I felt like I was working for them (employees) instead of they working for me," Wilder said of the need to constantly adjust to employee's personal schedules.

About two years ago, Wilder found what he considers a solution to labor problems — hire Mexican labor.

"They're used to manual labor and are willing to work in snow, rain, and hot weather. They take pride in their work, and are flexible and easygoing about schedules," Wilder said.

A few weeks ago, Wilder was notified that he will receive the Greenstar Award for professional grounds management from the Professional Grounds Management Society, a national organization based in Baltimore. The award will be presented at a national conference in Nashville.

"I couldn't have done it without them," Wilder said of his two Mexican employees. Wilder has the highest praise for the employees who don't need to be told when to clean the pool, trim the hedges, and cut up fallen tree branches.

"They are dependable and content," Wilder said.

According to the information provided Wilder, he is not required to provide housing or transportation, only guarantee a job. (Al French, USDA ag labor specialist, said that the rules for hiring agriculture labor is different from landscaping labor. Agriculture labor requires providing housing and has some additional requirements. See end of story for more information).

Wilder said the immigrants usually settle in one of the many established Hispanic communities. People in these communities help the newcomers attain driver's licenses, a car, housing, and other necessities.

Many Mexican immigrants are unmarried, but some are married. Regardless of their marital status, they come to the U.S. to earn money to send back home to family members.

"The Hispanics provide an invisible but crucial workforce for many different aspects of agriculture," Wilder said.

He's right. In many different feature stories about large farming operations, staff members found that many rely on Mexican laborers. Although there are no firm statistics, USDA estimates that 50-70 percent of the agriculture labor force nationwide is migrant workers.

Usually Hispanics speak some English or at least understand it. But Wilder and many other employers find it beneficial to be able to speak some Spanish to assist them in the communication.

Because of his own experiences, Wilder is perhaps more patient and diligent in maintaining successful communications with those of other cultures. After achieving a production agriculture degree from a Virginia college, Wilder served as an extension agent in the Philippines through the Peace Corps for four years.

He knows firsthand what it is like to live in a foreign culture and the suspicious attitude that is often displayed toward outsiders. While in the Peace Corps, Wilder said he was sometimes accused of being a spy for the CIA, among other things.

Wilder met and married his Filipino wife while living in the Philipines. They now have a 9-year-old son. His wife is the florist for Linden Hill and designs many massive outdoor gardening containers on the grounds and fresh flowers for the interior.

Linden Hill was built in 1929 by a Campbell Soup Company tycoon. After the stock market crash, many of the mainline estates fell in disrepair and eventually were subdivided and sold because they were too expensive to maintain. But the beauty of the area continues to be unsurpassed and is home to movie star directors and national sports figures.

In 1999, the present owner purchased Linden Hill. It is one of the few country estates remaining in its entirety and is showcased in the book, "Country Houses of the Main Line."

Dave Wilder stands at the entrance to the country estate that he manages. At right is the country estate's courtyard designed in 1929.

Linden Hill is named after the shade trees with heart-shaped leaves and fragrant yellow flowers that are planted in profusion on the estate.

Wilder had been caretaker at the owner's previous farm in Chester County. It is his job to restore Linden Hill's former majestic grounds with its ornamental gardens and massive trees, and renovate the orchard. The estate's gated entrance leads into the estate lined with Linden trees, originally from Europe.

In addition to the large main home, many other buildings of French-style architecture are maintained on the estate. These include the caretaker's house, a chauffeur's house, and former carriage house.

About 43 acres are in the Woodland Management Plan, which requires detailed responsibility to control evasive plants and harvest trees.

In addition to grounds maintenance, Wilder oversees the care of a Percheron team used for pleasure and parades, a pony, some cattle, chickens, ducks, and deer. He also oversees the owner's 15,000-acre Montana ranch with 900 Angus cows and a Palm Beach property.

With so much responsibility, Wilder needs to depend upon hired labor. Wilder said another plus, in his case, for using Mexican workers is that they are accustomed to horses, which are often used to work fields in their home country, and are able to ride well.

According to Wilder, immigrants are often accustomed to authoritarian supervisors in their country, which can enable unscrupulous employers to take advantage of them, but is a plus when seeking employees who are diligent in following directions.

The legal requirements for employers to follow when hiring immigrants is extremely complex, because regulations regarding using legal immigration for labor are constantly changing. The documentation required is not always clear. Since the 9/11 terrorist attack, laws are even more restrictive.

In pursuing information about legal responsibilities, potential employees often receive conflicting information about taxes, tax identification numbers, and temporary visas.

French of the USDA said that many potential employers become bogged down by the initial red tape, but he recommends the process for finding stable, legal employees.

Complete information for those interested in pursuing Hispanic labor is available at the following Website: www.usda.gov/oce/oce/labor-affairs/h2a.summ.htm or call French at (202) 720-4737.

The estate grounds, including the pool and pool house, are being restored to its former beauty.

Hispanic workers are reliable, diligent, and responsible, according to Dave Wilder, who said that he would not have been able to achieve a national award without their help.

Rural Youth Continue To Make Memories At 65th Reunion

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — All 67 name cards had been picked up and members at their places when the 12:30 banquet time arrived for the 65th anniversary of Rural Youth of Lancaster County (RYLC), which met at the Bloomfield Square Restaurant on Sept. 26.

The RYLC was formed in 1937 for mostly rural young people, most of whom had graduated from 4-H, FFA, and college but had not yet been involved in adult organizations. A number were teachers or were working on family farms.

In 1945 the membership grew from 80 to 140. The entire group met monthly for singing, recreation, and to hear educational speakers who were usually community or state leaders in agriculture, politics, religion, business or education.

Often after the speaker was finished, the group divided into small groups to discuss questions proposed by the speaker. They also published and mimeographed the Rural Youth Newzette which reported plans and activities of the various committees, such as trips to World Fair, recreational leadership, schools, photography, crafts, cooperatives, camps and dramatics. The Newzette Staff reported sending out 250 copies at one cent each for postage. The Dramatics Committee reported performing 15 one-act plays and 22 three-act plays, one of which was presented at Millersville University to a standing room only audience.

Many of the group now have gray hair and bifocals but could remember not only the opportunities for recreation, education and leadership experiences but also social relationships.

When the group was asked how many had found their spouses through Rural Youth, many hands were raised. Records show that at least 68 members say they met their spouses through Rural Youth.

Among those in attendance was Max Smith, former agricultural county agent who sometimes spoke to the group. With Max was his wife, Emmas Plastow Smith.

Anna and Stewart Rentschler served as co-chair of the planning committee along with other members Ida and Allen Risser, and Ann and Carl Diller. Miriam Ulrich, secretary-treasurer, received reservations and paid the bills. Martha Jane and Roy Brubaker keep computer and card files of information. They provided name tags, printed programs and publicity.

Age had not affected the robust singing led by Roy Brubaker. Carl Diller entertained with a harmonica presentation and Ann Diller showed slides of her trip to Australia and New Zealand. Robert Groff from Quarryville was again the capable Master of Ceremonies. Stewart and Anna Rentschler purchased quite a few door prizes to give out.

Some "activities" of senior citizens in their 80s center around memories. Rural Youth continues to make memories of those years enjoyable.

Someone at the reunion said, "We may be about the only product that gets better while the wrapping deteriorates."

A 66th anniversary will be planned for next year.

Workshop Addresses Childcare Legal Issues

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension will be hosting an all-day program "Legal Issues of Childcare" on October 23 with attorney Ronald V. McGuckin.

The seminar will focus on legal and administrative issues that impact the daily operations of child care providers and agencies.

McGuckin has gained a national reputation as "The Child Care Lawyer". Each year he trains thousands of childcare professionals on a variety of issues including personnel, administration, infectious disease policies, confidentiality, and other management and legal issues.

McGuckin represents many childcare agencies and has a general law practice specializing in child care legal issues. He is also the co-author "Current Issues in Child Care," which focuses on legal aspects of operating a childcare. In addition, as co-author, he has introduced the "Second Edition; Model Personnel Policies for Child Care Agencies." As one of the original developers, McGuckin continues his role as the design editor and contributing writer for the National Child Care Bulletin.

The workshop will be held at Berks County Ag Center 1238 County Welfare Rd., Leesport from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Wednesday, October 23. The cost is $20 and includes lunch. Reservations may be made by calling Sue Giachero at (610) 378-1327.

ANSWER — Gail Silveira requested a recipe for a corn, shrimp soup. Thanks to Lee Laverty, Mount Joy, for sending two different recipes.

Corn And Shrimp Soup

1 pound medium shrimp, peeled, deveined, chopped
¼ cup butter
10.75 ounce can condensed cream of chicken soup
10.75 ounce can low-fat cream of celery soup
16-ounce package frozen corn kernels
14.5 ounce can chicken broth
1 cup skim milk
1 pinch dried rosemary
1 pinch dried thyme
Pinch ground nutmeg
Salt and pepper to taste

In a large pot over medium high heat, saute shrimp and onions in butter for about 5 minutes or until oninons are tender. Add cream of chicken soup, cream of celery soup, corn, broth, milk, rosemary, thyme, nutmeg, and salt and pepper to taste. Reduce heat to low and simmer 20 minutes. Serve with French bread. Yield: 8 servings.

Shrimp And Corn Soup

10-ounce can diced tomatoes and green chilies
1 large onion, chopped
½ teaspoon minced garlic
½ cup all-purpose flour
4 cups water
2 pounds medium shrimp, peeled, coarsely chopped, or small, peeled shimp
16-ounce package frozen corn
15-ounce can creamstyle corn
1 bunch green onions (scallions), sliced
¼ cup chopped parsely
Salt and pepper to taste

Puree tomatoes and green chilies in food processor. In a large pot coated with nonstick cooking spray, saute onion and garlic over medium heat until tender, about 5 minutes. Sprinkle with flour and mix. Gradually add pureed tomatoes and chilies and water, stirring to mix in with the flour. Add the shrimp, frozen corn, and creamstyle corn. Bring the mixture to a boil, lower the heat, and continue cooking, stirring occasionally, about 5-7 minutes, or until shrimp turns pink. Add green onions and parsley. Season with salt and pepper.

ANSWER — Sara Ulrich sends in this recipe for readers looking for "an awesome recipe." Sara is a Lycoming dairy maid, who lives on a dairy farm in Elimsport. Her summer was busy working on the farm where work never ends. She milks cows every single day plus Sundays. During this time of the year, there is so much harvesting, but the fun part is being allowed to drive tractor. In the summer, she hauls round bales in to be wrapped. On occasions, she wraps the bales in plastic as well. She writes that it would take a lifetime to tell all the work she did this summer. Work invoves field work and cleaning the barn. There is always something getting broke, so she helps fix it. She also feeds a lot of calves everyday. She is a sophomore at Montgomery Area High School, where she participates in Odyssesy of the Mind, which she loves. Sara also hangs out with friends whenever possible, but doesn't have much opportunity to do so since she milks cows everyday. Nonetheless, as soon as she gets home from school, she sits down to enjoy a tall glass of chocolate milk. She reminds readers that calcium helps build bones, Vitamin D that helps in absorption of calcium, plus there is protein, potassium, vitamin A and B12, phosphorus, and "so much good stuff to make you be the best."

Pudding Cake

Crust:
1 cup flour
½ cup butter
Combine flour and butter and press into 9x13-inch pan. Bake for 20 minutes at 350 degrees.
Mix together:
1 cup confectioners' sugar
8-ounces cream cheese
6-ounces whipped cream
Spread mixture on cooled crust.
Beat together:
1 small package vanilla instant pudding
1 small package chocolate pudding
3 cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Spread pudding mixture on top of cream cheese mixture. Chill in refrigerator.

ANSWER — Susan Mineitsch requested a German apple cake recip with streusel, she remembers, stays at the top of the cake, instead of dropping down like some apple cake recipes she tried. Thanks to Hazel Hann, Needmore, wo sent in this recipe that she writes makes a very moist cake and is delicious.

German Apple Cake

½ cup butter
½ cup brown sugar
1 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
2¼ cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 cup buttermilk
2 cups raw apples, diced

Cream butter, sugar, and eggs until light and fluffy. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk and apples, mixing until smooth. Pour into greased oblong 9x13-inch pan.
Crumb topping:
½ cup brown sugar
¼ cup granulated sugar
½ cup chopped nuts
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Combine topping ingredients. Sprinkle on top of batter. Bake at 350 degrees 40-45 minutes.

ANSWER — Barbara Wiley, Delta, wanted a recipe to can stuffed peppers filled with sauerkraut. Thanks to Lee Laverty, Mount Joy, for sending this one.

Pickled Sauerkraut Stuffed Banana Peppers

3-pounds mild yellow banana peppers
2 cans sauerkraut, drained well
1 cup sugar
3 cups white vinegar
4 teaspoons salt, divided
4 tablespoons oil, divided
8 teaspoons pickling spices, divided
8 dashes turmeric, divided

Wash, cut off tops, and core peppers. Pack each pepper with as much sauerkraut as possible. Put peppers into clean jars. Have ready a solution of sugar and vinegar that has been heated to boiling. Place jars in hot pan or sink of hot water. In separate pot, heat plain water to boiling and pour over peppers. Let stand a few minutes, then pour off water. Add the ½ teaspoon salt, ½ tablespoon oil, 2 teaspoons pickling spice, and dash turmeric to each jar. Pour sugar and vinegar solution over peppers. Seal jars and let cool.

ANSWER — Here are two answers to Luci Essig's request for green tomato mincemeat. Thanks to Joan Dietrich, Kutztown, for sending the first recipe and to Pauline Hess, Lancaster, for the second.

Green Tomato Mincemeat

6 pounds green tomatoes
2 pounds tart apples
4 cups dark raisins
2 cups honey OR 4 cups brown sugar
2 cups apple juice OR cider
1 lemon grated rind and juice
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
½ cup cider vinegar
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 teaspoon ground allspice
5 teaspoons cinnamon

Core and quarter tomatoes and apples (do not peel). Put through food chopper or use a food processor (chop coarsely). Combine all ingredients in a large non-aluminum kettle. Simmer two hours, stirring frequently until thick. This freezes well or may be processed in jars.

Green Tomato Mincemeat

4 pounds ground apples, using peels and juice
4 pounds green tomatoes, wilt these three times in boiling water before weighing ½ pound margarine
1 ground orange pulp and rind
2 pounds raisins
2 tablespoons salt
2 tablespoons cinnamon
2 teaspoons cloves
1 teaspoon nutmeg
4 pounds light brown sugar or half granulated and half brown
1 cup vinegar

Combine ingredients and cook about 2 hours. Pack in jars.

ANSWER — Anna Thomas, Mifflinburg, wants a recipe to make cheese fudge. Here is one from a reader.

Velveeta Fudge

2 pounds powdered sugar
½ cup cocoa
1 cup butter
8 ounces Velveeta cheese
1 cup chopped nuts or ½ cup crunchy peanut butter
2 teaspoons vanilla extract

In batter bowl, whisk together sugar and cocoa. In another bowl, microwave butter one minute on high. Cut cheese into small cubes and add to butter. Reduce power to 50 percent and microwave another minute, or until cheese is melted, being careful not to overheat it. Add to cocoa mixture. Add nuts and vanilla. Mix by hand (muscles) and pour into greased dish. Chill and cut into squares. The cheese can be omitted but it makes the fudge smoother and gives it a mellow taste.

Well Preserved

The Well Preserved news column is prepared by Lancaster County Cooperative Extension. It includes food preservation information and questions.

Cooking Thermometers

Using a food thermometer is the only accurate way to determine the internal temperature of a food product.

Some foods, such as the meat used to make jerky, must be cooked to an internal temperature high enough to destroy any harmful microorganisms.

Other foods, such as jams and jellies made without added pectin, must be cooked to the "jelling" stage which is 220F.

In addition to using a cooking thermometer for food preservation, it is useful for determining the safety of cooked meats, poultry, and eggs and for determining the sugar concentration of candies, syrups, and frostings. There are several types and styles of food thermometers available in a wide price range. Digital food thermometers include the thermocouple, the thermistors, oven cord thermometers, and a thermometer fork combination. Several types of dial food thermometers use a bimetallic-coil to register the temperature. Specialty models include single-use temperature indicators and pop-up timers.

Liquid-filled thermometers are the oldest kind of food thermometer. Thermocouple thermometers reach and display the final temperature the fastest (within two to five seconds.) Because they have a very thin probe, they can be inserted into thin foods, such as hamburger patties, to read the temperature accurately. They are not designed to remain in the food while it is cooking but should be used near the end of the estimated cooking time to check for final cooking temperature. Thermocouples can be calibrated for accuracy. These are the most costly and may be difficult to find in stores.

The thermistor type digital thermometer uses a resistor to measure temperature. The thickness of the probe is approximately one-eighth of a inch which allows it to measure thin foods as well as thick foods. Because the center of a food is usually cooler than the outer surface, place the tip in the center of the thickest part of the food. It takes about ten seconds to register the temperature on the digital display. Thermistors are not designed to remain in the food while it is cooking. Not all thermistors can be calibrated. Check the manufacturers instructions.

Oven cord thermometers allow the cook to check the temperature of food in the oven without opening the oven door. A base unit with the digital screen is attached to a thermistor-type food thermometer probe by a long metal cord. The oven cord thermometer is programmed for the desired temperature and beeps when it is reached. They cannot be calibrated. Widely available in grocery, hardware, and department stores, the thermometer fork combination is a cooking fork with a food thermometer. A temperature sensing device is embedded in one of the tines of the fork.

Some work as a thermocouple and others use a thermistor to determine the temperature, but all indicate the temperature on a digital display or by indicator lights on the handle within two to ten seconds. This style thermometer can be used in most foods by placing the fork at least one-fourth inch deep in the thickest part of the food. The sensor in the tine of the fork must be fully inserted. It should be used near the end of the estimated cooking time. They are not designed to remain in the food while it is cooking.

Thermometer forks cannot be calibrated. They are convenient for grilling. Bimetallic-coil thermometers contain a coil in the probe made of two different metals that expand at different rates. The coil, which is connected to the temperature indicator, expands when heated. This food thermometer senses temperature from its tip and up the stem for 2 to 2 ½ inches. The resulting temperature is an average of the temperature along the sensing area. This sensing area must be completely in the food, or the thermometer will include the temperature of the surrounding air in its average.

The dial oven-safe bimetallic coil thermometer takes one to two minutes to register an accurate temperature. They can be used in roasts, casseroles, and soups but are not appropriate for foods less than three inches thick. They can remain in food while it is cooking to constantly show the temperature of the food while it is cooking. Because heat conducts along the stem's metal surface faster than through the food, the area of the food in contact with the thermometer's tip will be hotter than the area a short distance to the side. It works like a potato nail. Therefore, the temperature should be taken in a second or third area to verify the temperature of the food. Some models can be calibrated.

The dial instant-read thermometer also works on the bimetallic principle. It reads temperatures in fifteen to twenty seconds and is not designed to be left in the food while it is cooking. To prevent overcooking, check the temperature before the food is expected to finish cooking. This probe must also be inserted the full length of the sensing area. To measure a thin food, insert the probe through the side of the food. Some models can be calibrated. These are readily available in stores. Single-use temperature indicators determine when a food has reached its final temperature. They are designed for a specific temperature range and must be used only with foods for which they are intended. The sensors are made from temperature-sensitive materials that change color when they reach the proper temperature. They are designed to be used only once. However, if the desired temperature has not been reached, they can be reinserted until the temperature is reached. These sensors cannot be left in a food while it is cooking. Pop-up timers are commonly used in turkey and roasting chicken. Pop-up thermometers are reliable within 1 to 2F if accurately placed in a food. However, checking the temperature of other parts of the food with a conventional food thermometer is recommended.

Liquid filled thermometers have either metal or glass stems. As the internal temperature of the food increases, the colored liquid inside the stem expands and rises to indicate the temperature on a scale.

Heat conduction in the metal stems can cause false high readings. They are designed to remain in the food while it is cooling. They should be inserted at least two inches deep in the thickest part of the food. Candy/Jelly/Deep fry thermometers, measuring temperatures ranging from 100 to 400F, are designed to handle the extra high temperatures required in making these products. Check the accuracy of a food thermometer by inserting it in ice water or boiling water. To use the ice water method, fill a large glass with finely crushed ice. Add clean tap water to the top of the ice and stir well. Immerse the food thermometer stem a minimum of two inches into the mixture, touching neither the sides nor the bottom of the glass. Wait a minimum of thirty seconds before adjusting calibration.

Without removing the stem from the ice, hold the adjusting nut under the head of the thermometer with a suitable tool and turn the head so the thermometer reads 32F. For the boiling point method, insert the stem of the thermometer into boiling water. Adjust the calibration nut so the thermometer reads 212F. (Remember that water boils at a lower temperature at higher altitudes and make appropriate adjustments.)

Discipline Workshop For Childcare Providers

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — "Let's Talk About Discipline" is the title of the workshop being presented by Penn State Cooperative Extension. All child care providers and interested parents can participate in the workshop at 7 p.m. on Thursday, October 24, at the Penn State Cooperative Extension office, 1100 Claremont Road in Carlisle.

Marg Malehorn, Penn State Cooperative Extension family living agent in Cumberland County, says "Child care providers need a number of approaches to choose when it comes to discipline and young children. What works with one child may not be successful with another child."

According to Malehorn, participants will learn how to redirect a child's attention and when this is appropriate, how to give children choices, and how to teach children to solve their own conflicts with other children.

Child care providers can receive two Department of Public Welfare training credits for participating in the workshop. Continuing Education Credits (CEUs) are also available.

For more information on the program, support materials, and other services from "Better Kid Care Program," call Malehorn at (717) 240-6500. Visit the BETTER KID CARE Website at www.betterkidcare.psu.edu.

Bedford Conducts Farm Safety Day Camp

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — It takes a lot of sponsors, a blue sky, and lots of curious kids for a successful Farm Safety Day Camp. It was this combination that sparked off the second annual safety event for children at the Bedford County Fair Grounds.

Volunteers and donations from businesses and organizations all helped with the success of the day which was attended by more then 120 children.

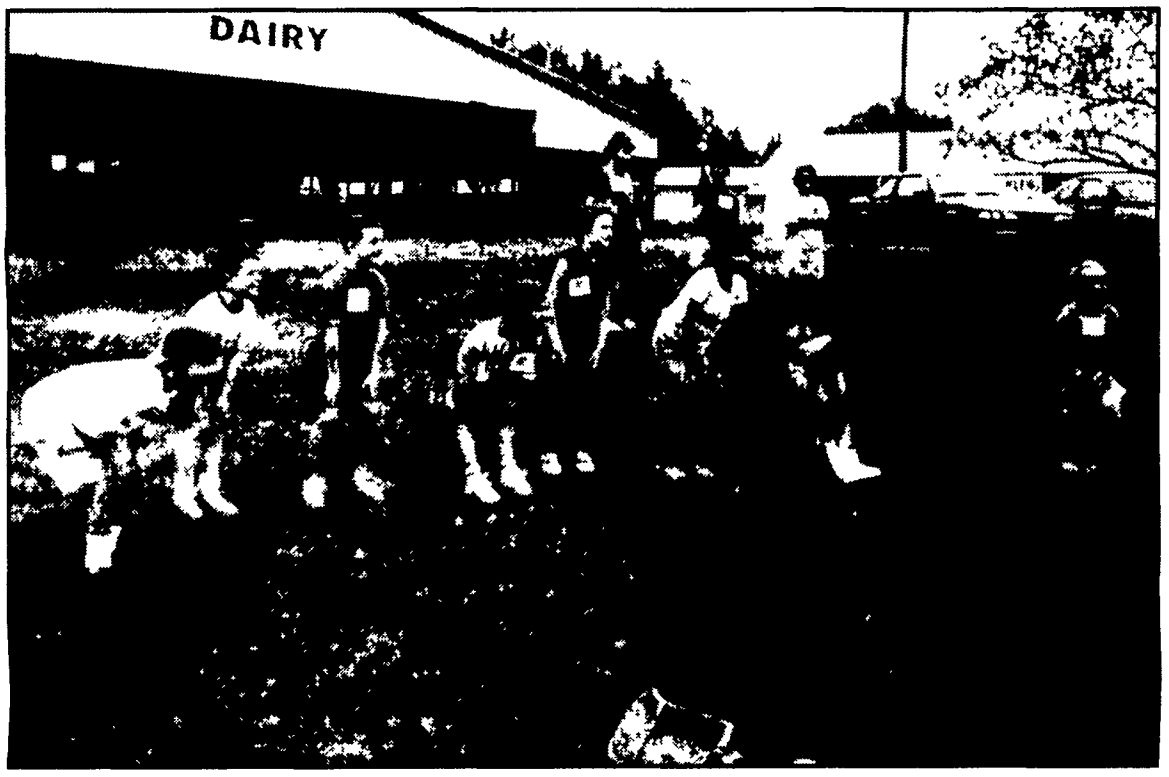
Children were divided, according to ages, into various groups with all groups receiving the same training at different levels throughout the day. Each participant was awarded a bag of goodies and a t-shirt.

Coming from all the schools in Bedford County as well as home schooled, the children were impressed with the First On The Scene: Tractor Rollover.

Members of the FFA Pennsylvania Association served as ushers from one class to the next and entertained those children who might have time between sessions.

Another lesson involved first on the scene: PTO entanglement. Other workshops included storm safety, animal safety, and a safety talk given by the ambulance company.

Dottie Bromley of the Somerset extension office teaches storm safety. Students participating include Daniel Emmell, Josh Felix, Megan Barkley, Mary Boyler, and Janna Bassette.



Kids play a fast game of "Simon Says" between Safety Sessions.

Blair County Events Reflect Old-Time Country Fair

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

MARTINSBURG (Blair Co.) — While many counties in the Commonwealth have large fairs with ferris wheels and trinket stands, Blair County invites rural talent to compete in a series of six small old-time country fairs.

The small towns of Bellwood, Claysburg, Sinking Valley, Hollidaysburg, Williamsburg, and Martinsburg all participate on various scales in country fairs. Martinsburg also hosts the annual Morrison's Cove Dairy Show.

Some of the shows include animals and games such as ice cream making contests. When the ice cream is made and the freezers are judged, spectators are invited to grab a spoon and participate. Another activity is a wheel barrow race.

Whatever the event, it is the anticipation of winning a ribbon and perhaps a few dollars that draws most to these country fairs. They bring their handmade dresses, self-designed needlework, and smooth and sanded furniture. There are stuffed animals and art work in all mediums. Quilt stitches are shown off in pillows, bed quilts or wall hangings.

Large butternut squash, bright orange pumpkins, sparkling red apples, and flowers of all varieties both singular and in floral arrangements brighten up the halls.

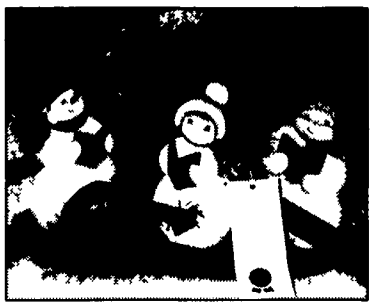
And, of course there is the baked goods including chocolate cakes, cookies, and pies.

It's a time from the past that has not been forgotten in these rural Pennsylvania communities.

The best of the best...top prize went to Donna Yingling of Martinsburg for her daughter's prom gown.

Joe Beyer of Roaring Spring grew these flowers in his grandmother Barbara Beyer's garden in Martinsburg.

Apryl Smith's best of show was a dried arrangement of colorful summer flowers.



Best of show in wooden crafts.

500 Compete At Virginia State 4-H Horse, Pony Championship Show

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

LEXINGTON, Va. — The public address system in the Anderson Coliseum echoed repetitively with these words from a feminine voice: "At the gate...." On deck...." In the hole...."

Riders astride their mounts for the hunter jumping competition during the 41st Virginia State 4-H Championship Horse and Pony Show, were alerted to the order of their appearance to enter the Waldron Arena and complete a series of jumps.

If at first their horse failed to execute a jump, the youth would be allowed two more tries before having to move on. Competitors first completed Course A and then, the more demanding Course B.

Meanwhile, running concurrently in the Wiley and Fletcher Arenas, other events were presenting challenges of a different sort to some 500 equestrians who were eligible to participate in the prestigious Sept. 12-15 show.

These included western showmanship, English showmanship, dressage, driving/gaited horses, gymkhana, working western horse, western pleasure, saddle seat equitation, trail class, hunter showmanship, driving/saddle seat, stock seat equitation, hunt seat equitation on the flat and hunt seat equitation.

Also, hunter pleasure, hunter over fences, hunter pleasure over fences, hunter under saddle, and costume class.

Dressage was judged by Francis Yeardley, Lexington, and Judy Westenhoefer, Bedford. Gymkhana was judged by Don Coats, St. Stephens Church. Hunters were judged by Cathy Cram, Aiken, S.C., and Georgia Fishel, Casanova.

Junior hunter showmanship was judged by Teresa McDonald,

Breaking Free From Emotional Abuse

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Building strong families isn't easy when members have so many different needs. But the recent conference, "Bridging Generations: The Modern Family in Motion," packed an astounding amount of information into the one-day event.

Help was offered for family members from birth through death.

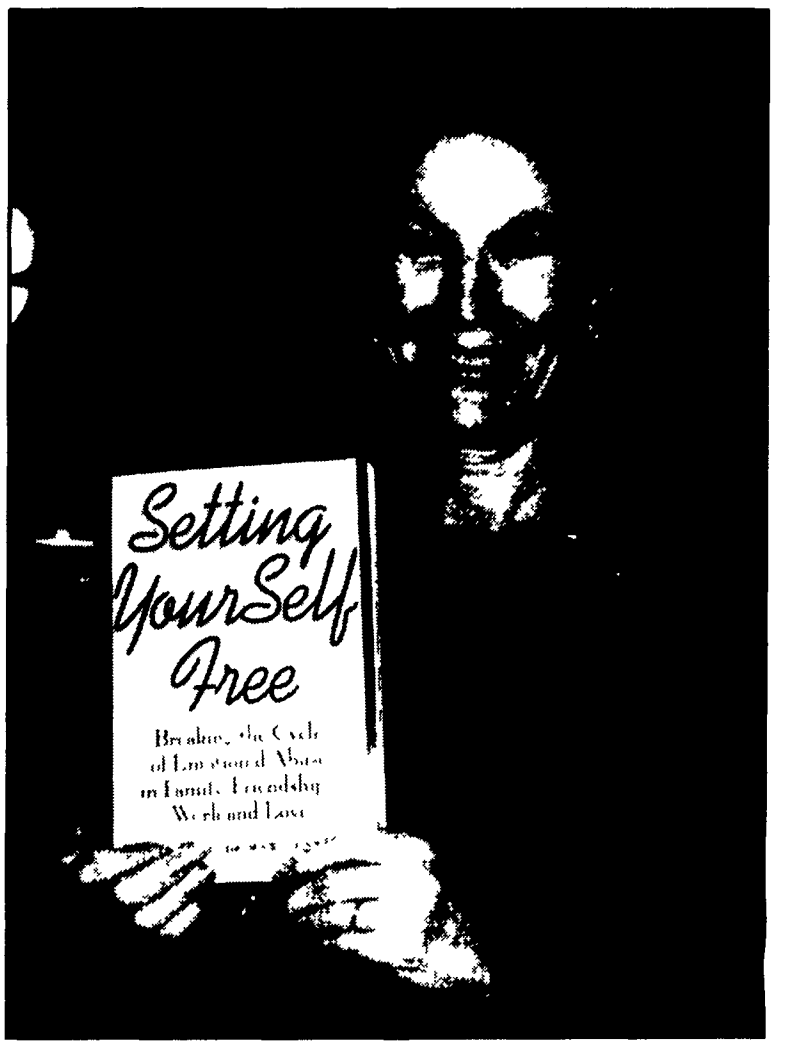
One of the concurrent workshops addressed the five cycles of emotional abuse and how it affects family members for generations. Family therapist SaraKay Smullens said, "When someone is passionate about a subject, it comes from experience."

Smullens said she experienced emotional abuse as a child and watched how it affected each member of the family through several generations. As a family therapist, she sees many victims of emotional abuse with subsequent scarring that affects their relationships at home, in the workplace, and every other place.

Children who grow up in homes where the emotional abuse cycle exists often seek out abuse even if it is in a different form. They carry an inner shame and think they deserve the abuse and feel guilty for not being able to fix it.

Through her research, Smullens identified five cycles:

- Rage — which can also include a silent reaction, creates feelings of terror and helplessness that frightens individuals so badly it keeps them from thinking for themselves.
- Enmeshment is a cycle that takes place in a family with spoken expectation that allows no place for individual thought.
- Rejection/abandonment happens when parents or caretakers withdraw their love, leaving the individual feeling isolated and terrified.
- Complete neglect results when no one cares whether one lives or dies, even if material needs are met.
- Extreme overprotection involves parental compulsion to protect children from difficulties so much that they are not allowed to fail or face life's realities without parents bailing them out.



Family therapist SaraKay Smullens drew on her own experiences and that of her clients to write the book, "Setting YourSelf Free." Smullens identifies and documents five cycles of parental or caretaker behavior that constitutes emotional abuse, how it entraps them in relationships, and how to break free from the ever expanding cycle.

In her determination to understand why some emotionally scarred individuals make it in life and others fall apart, Smullens said, "They have a dignity, pride, and humility that they are a worthwhile person.

"Emotional abuse gets in the way of dignity, and unless we know love, we cannot have dignity," Smullens said.

Those who have dignity had someone who cared about them, even if it was a unconscious realization, which gave them something to build upon.

Smullens teaches intervention to help get the emotionally abused to talk and feel. She challenges people to love and respect the hurting so healing can take place. Smullens encourages jounaling as a way for the suffering to release pent-up emotions and gain perspective.

Often the abusive person does not intentionally hurt a child but does as a result from their own abusive cycle, Smullens recommends clients to role-play by talking to the perpetuator by visualizing him or her sitting in the chair. Then switch chairs and imagine their response.

"Often there can be reconciliation and compassion for one's abusers," Smullens said. "As a person gains insights, pain is released, which empowers clients to break free of victimization."

In her book, "Setting Your Self Free," Smullens enables readers to confront painful emotional injuries and offers step-by-step programs to help put an end to the cycles of emotional abuse that pervade every aspect of victims' lives.

For more information about "Setting YourSelf Free, contact your local bookstore or the publisher, New Horizon Press, P.O. Box 669, Far Hills, NJ 07931.

Penn State extension agents from three counties — Dauphin, Cumberland, and Perry — networked with other human resource services in planning the event, which provided professional credits for social workers.

Information Abounds At Small Farm Expo

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

GILBERT (Monroe Co.) — The threat of rain for both days of the Northeast Small Farm and Rural Living Expo and Trade Show may have affected the attendance numbers but it didn't diminish the interest and enthusiasm of those that visited the various exhibits and educational lectures at this years' Expo conducted at the West End Fairgrounds.

An event geared towards introducing, educating and connecting individuals with the requirements needed for rural and small farm ventures and suppliers it did exactly that as exhibitors answered such questions pertaining to what animals would be suitable for pasture maintenance, what and how to plant on their newly acquired land, where to find sources of supplies just to mention a few of the recurring topics that exhibitors dealt with during the two-day Expo.

In the livestock department many inquiries were made about the various breeds of cattle, horses, sheep, goats and poultry that were on display. Demonstrations were well attended as visitors were introduced to the pros and cons of the various breeds, the needs of each and what is involved in owning, training, and raising each.

Such topics as disposition of the various breeds and species were of great concerns as many of the visitors were newcomers to tending and caring of livestock. Many in attendance have purchased acreage and realize they could utilize grazing animals to help clear or maintain the land but needed guidance in choosing the best suited species or breed for their operation and lifestyle.

One demonstration, titled Livestock Handling, conducted by Bob Mickel, Rutgers Extension Agent from Hunterdon County, N.J. addressed the various breeds of domestic cattle on display. Gwen Wagner of Two Barn Farm, Danielsville, brought her 1,080-pound Belted Galloway steer named Boris to the Expo and explained what steps she uses in calming and halter breaking her steers. Boris was brought to his new home in Danielsville in November 2001 from Southdown Farms in N.J. when he weighed about 600 pounds. Young Paul Wagner, 9, and a third grade student at Moore Elementary School, lead the animal before those in attendance demonstrating how proper treatment can result in an animal that is safe to handle.

In fact Wagner has had great success with Boris on the show circuit being a class winner at the Plainfield Farmer's Fair; Warren County Fair, N.J.; and at the Blue Valley Farm Show. Boris also was a division winner at the New Jersey State Fair. Wagner and her family will be traveling to Louisville, Kentucky this November with Boris to compete at the North American International Livestock Exposition (NAILE).

In their second year at the Expo, B & B Livestock Farm owned by Ben and Carole Przewozny, Glen Gardner, N.J., brought their son Benny's 3-year-old registered Polled Hereford DHF Suzanne J7 with her May 2002 calf, Crackerjack. The calf that the Przewozny family brought to the Expo last year went on to be named the grand champion market steer at Benny's 4-H fair and the calf that accompanied his mother this year is a fine prospect to repeat those honors. The family is well pleased with the Polled Hereford breed's performance and temperament and recommended the breed to visitors of the event.

Representing the Northeast Highland Cattle Association were Tom and Joyce Daschke of Highland Farm, Lake Ariel in Wayne County and Ron and Ruth Galvin of Rainbow Hill Farm, Flemington, N.J. Joyce Daschke took "Lassy," a 13-month-old American Highland heifer into the ring for the Mickel to describe to the crowd. Lassy has been shown by Daschke and did very well at the MidAtlantic Highland Spring show in York and will be traveling to Massachusetts in October to compete at the Northeast Highland Cattle Association show in Springfield.

Emma Schubert, 11, brought her purebred Cheviot ewe and Polypay cross lamb to the Expo. Schubert is a member of the newly formed Monroe County 4-H Livestock Club and received inquiries from five prospective members during the Small Farm Expo.

After Tom Daschke retired from 40 years of corporate employment the couple purchased a farm in Wayne County and knew they wanted to raise some type of cattle. They knew, however, at their age that whatever breed they decided on had to be very docile. They did their research and decided on the Scottish Highland breed. The breed has become so popular in America that now there is an American Highland registry and American Highland Cattlemen's Association.

This is exactly what the Expo is intended to do — help individuals find the breed, crop or venture that suits them best.

Boyd Smith returned again to the Expo and brought several types of ducks and chickens. Always a popular area of the Expo, Smith had many inquiries from visitors that wanted to add poultry to their property but desired more information so they could select something they would not regret later.

Several 4-H members brought some of their animals and did demonstrations. Diana Holder, 16, of Lilac Corners Farm, Slatington, and current president of the Northampton County 4-H Livestock Club, brought five goats: Cashmere, Saanan and Nubian. Throughout the Expo Diana's mother, Carole along with her friend Evie, were carding and spinning Cashmere wool. They had samples of products made from the wool on display as well. Diana is a junior at Allentown Catholic High School and active with her church choir, CYO volleyball and bowling as well as caring for her near 80 goats they have on their farm.

Laura Mazur, 13, of Too Busy Acres near Weatherly, brought a few of her Montadale and Karakul sheep. Mazur is a member of the Carbon County 4-H Livestock Club and currently has about 50 sheep in her flock.

The newly created Monroe County 4-H Livestock Club, only in its second year, was represented by Emma Schubert, 11, and a seventh grade student at Pleasant Valley Middle School. The club currently has five members. Until the two-day event was over they received names of five more individuals that hope to join their club. Erni Schubert is the leader of the club and accompanied his daughter as she cared for the purebred Cheviot ewe and the Polypay commercial cross that she brought.

The Lehigh Valley Horse Council, started in 1980 and believed to be the longest continuously running horse council, held demonstrations throughout the two-day event. Kathy Grube, president of the Council, conducted the Training for Trail demo where she gave points of how to train your horse or desensitize it to make it a safe trail horse. Keeping her and her horse's safety in mind at all times she said she "loves to trail ride just wants to be safe at it."

Grube, involved in search and rescue, uses a bright fluorescent orange saddle pad while riding for visibility, takes her cell phone with her, uses a bell such as found in a parrot's cage attached to the horse's tack and has a small ID tage attached to the bridle with the horse's name and her cell phone number.

Stressing you should desensitize your horse to hazards and situations found on the trail such as vines, dogs, raincoats, and bicycles at home before you hit the trail, she also emptied her cantle bag that she always has attached to the back to her saddle to show items that you should carry to be prepared for emergencies if needed on the trail.

The Holly Corcoran family, Effort, demonstrated two different styles of Arabian horses and two different styles of riding — hunt seat and saddle seat.

The Boyd Gannon family of Mountain View Farm, Kunkletown, brought this pair of Pygmy Zebu to the Small Farm Expo.

A very active family at the Expo was the Boyd Gannon family of Mountview View Farm, Kunkletown, including wife Darci, and daughter Gretchen Gannon-Petit with third generation Michelle and Sarah also riding. The family brought their American Quarter Horses and Pygmy Zebu cattle as items from their tack shop.

Boyd, Gretchen, and Michelle used their horses to do a cutting horse demonstration where they separated animals from the herd. Normally the Gannon family uses their Pygmy Zebu for training the cutting horses but because of their tendency to be more skittish and agile when worked by the horses the family used a group of young Holsteins donated by Delbert Haydt.

Boyd Gannon spends the winters in Florida where he competes in cutting events. Several years ago he became intrigued with the Pygmy Zebu who mature at 400 pounds and only reach heights of 38-42 inches. The Zebu on display at the Expo were friendly and quiet even licking the hands of visitors. The family owns about 10 Zebu that are pastured with a common stockwire fence. The Zebu are low maintenance and can be handled by humans, however, remain agile and active and therefore are more desirable for use with the cutting events than domestic cattle.

Lectures on many topics were conducted throughout the fairgrounds. Free Range Poultry and Backyard Composting were very popular lectures.

The trade show exhibits were well attended and furnished educational literature throughout the event.

The NE Small Farm and Rural Living Expo will be conducted in Warren County, N.J. next year on its first round of rotating locations. The 2003 Expo will be at the Warren County Farmer's Fairgrounds, Harmony, N.J. and the 2004 Expo will be at Delaware County Fairgrounds, Walton, N.Y. after which it will return to Pennsylvania.

Boyd Gannon uses his American Quarter Horse mare, Lenas Jeannie Jewel, during the cutting horse demonstration conducted by his family during the Small Farm Expo.

Jan Martin, Lehigh Valley Horse Council, helps young 4- H member and her family from Hunterdon County, N.J. find a suitable 4-H project animal.

Gwen Wagner of Two Barn Farm near Danielsville tends to her Belted Galloway steer while Ben Przewozny of B & B Livestock Farm near Glen Gardner, N.J. looks on.

Fay B. Strickler Heads National 8,000-Member Organization

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Fay B. Strickler is best known to most of Lancaster Farming readers as the home economist who writes the bi-weekly column "Consuming Thoughs."

In Berks County, she serves as the family and consumer science extension educator — for 30 years.

But Strickler's fame extends far beyond Pennsylvania's boundaries. She is the national president of Epsilon Sigma Phi (ESP), which is the cooperative extensions professionals' organization whose mission is to foster the standards of excellence in the extension system and to develop the extension profession and the professional.

That means Strickler presides over more than 8,000 members (representing faculty, staff and administrators in agriculture, natural resources, 4-H and family living) in land-grant universities throughout the United States and Puerto Rico.

Starting this past Wednesday through today, Strickler conducted the National Council Meeting at the ESP Professional Development Conference in Lexington, Kentucky.

The conference theme, "Call to the Post: Creating Strategies for the Future," highlighted Dr. Ron Crouch, nationally known demographer and head of the U.S. Census data clearinghouse in Kentucky; Keynoter Trena Anastasia from Colorado, who discussed "Generations in the Workplace," and Dr. Phillip Van Hooser, who has an enviable reputation as "The Business Speaker with Uncommon, Common Sense."

Strickler said, "Serving as National Epsilon Sigma Phi this past year has been both a challenging and rewarding experience, which provided a unique opportunity to use my leadership skills on a national level."

One of those challenges resulted from the terrorists' attacks on Sept. 11, 2001, which resulted in the need to cancel the national convention scheduled in New York about a week later.

"The tragic events of Sept. 11 changed the lives of all Americans and tested each of us personally and professionally. As an organization, we also changed, adapted, and became more resilient in order to conduct the business at hand," Strickler said.

Strickler's responsibilities carried a four-year commitment in the leadership roles of second vice president, president elect, president, and as as past president during the upcoming year.

As National ESP President, Strickler is also a member of the Joint Council of Extension Professionals (JCEP). JCEP is a partnership of professional extension organizations that addresses critical issues facing extension professionals and focuses on strengthening the efforts of the member organizations by promoting communication, cooperation and professionalism among all extension educators. JCEP sponsors programs such as the annual Public Issues Leadership Development Conference in Washington, D.C.

Strickler's academic degrees are Bachelor of Science from Albright College and a Master of Science from The Pennsylvania State University.

Fay B. Strickler, Consuming Thoughts columnist for this paper, conducts a workshop as part of her responsibilities as national ESP president for the cooperative extension's professional organization.

Strickler joined Penn State Cooperative Extension Berks County in 1972 following work as home service director, UGI Corporation - Lancaster Division.

During her professional career, she has also served as state president of Epsilon Sigma Phi, and state president of Pennsylvania Extension of Family and Consumer Sciences as well as vice president for Professional Development of the National Extension Association of Family and Consumer Sciences.

Extension Plans Mini-Conference For Childcare Professionals Nov. 9

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — Caring for children is an important job. To learn more about being a successful provider whether at a center or in your home, attend this mini-conference. The half-day workshop series will be conducted on Saturday, Nov. 9, at the Dauphin County Agriculture and Natural Resources Center in Dauphin from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Workshops include the following:

• Putting the Spotlight on Professionalism will focus on understanding the newly implemented Core Body of Knowledge (CBK) and Professional Development Record (PDR). All providers will be expected to maintain their own records of development. Learn how to maintain yours.

• Shake, Rattle, Roll — It's All Music will focus on introducing music in daily programming. Children love to make and hear various sounds; it is a natural part of their early development.

• Making It Easy — Some young children may have physical, mental, social, or emotional challenges as they enter your facility. Learn some practical ways to involve children in activities and to make the transition easier for everyone including the parents.

All workshops have been approved by the Department of Public Welfare training system for up to three hours of certified training. The cost of conference is $10 per person, which covers a hearty morning break. For additional information or to receive a registration flyer, contact Penn State Cooperative Extension, Dauphin County office, call (717) 921-8803.

You ask ou answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to LGOOD.EPH@LNPNEWS.COM

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it. However, if your question requires someone to mail items to you, you must include your address or phone number for publishing.

Virginia State 4-H Horse Show

Also, Patty Kent, Elkview, W.Va. judged saddle seat and Cary Williams, Middleburg, judged stable management. Trail was judged by Don Coats, Stephens Church. Western was judged by Dr. Doug Householder, College Station, Texas.

"There is a tremendous volunteer force that makes this happen," said Dr. Julia McCann, the central coordinator from Virginia Tech. "The volunteer spirit makes this work for the kids," she said. 'We work hard to keep it economical."

She noted that the biggest concern is paying the required stall fees. Thus, the 4-H program is confronted with the necessity of relying heavily on its sponsors and the grants that are awarded by related promotional groups.

Andrea Heid of the Virginia Horse Industry Board said the grants given to the show by the organization coincide with its mission of promoting the horse industry.

"4-H supports the youth leaders of the horse industry of tomorrow," she said. "It's an example of how committed the leaders are."

She explained that given such an opportunity, the resultant education, competition and discipline developed in the young people, are immeasurable. Before 4-H members can rise to the state level they must already possess self-confidence and be good horse persons with a great deal of skill.

Heid said that anything the judges tell them benefits the kids. "The judges comments about reins and hands are important," she said.

A spirit of unity is fostered amongst themselves and they enjoy social activities when the county teams converge at Lexington. They also learn about the right tack, attire, bit and so forth.

Erin McCormick, 18, and Kayla Wilborn, 13, belong to the Hanover County Road Apples Trailblazers 4-H Club.

McCormick's mount for the western pleasure event was Inspire-A-Star, a Quarter horse. A rider with eight years experience, McCormick said she continues to acquire knowledge.

Wilborn, an 8th grader at the Brookland Middle School, rode Winds of Cody for the Hunter Pleasure event. Five years ago she took up riding but competing is something that she waited to do, until the last 18 months. That's why she feels especially good about advancing to the state level.

"It's really exciting coming to the biggest show" she said. She added that learning patience while grooming and bathing the horse and cleaning the stalls, is a great trial, but she keeps working on it.

Since a blue ribbon was awarded to her for the clean stall, she obviously is gaining ground in that department. She, as well, took first in the hunter western pleasure event and merited another blue ribbon in showmanship.

Unless volunteer Debbie Agnew, the show manager, arrives at the site several days early to organize her responsibilities, she would never be able to handle the task at hand. The veteran of 21 years, name-tagged 98 helpers this year.

'The reason volunteers do it is for the kids. They have been through the program and want to give back to the kids. 4-H offers so much to the kids," Agnew said. "They learn responsibility, have life experiences — good and not so good — whether they place or not. If a kid bombs then you tell them, "You did a great job."' she said. 'If the horse gets injured, as hard as it is, it's still a life lesson."

Agnew said she likes to go the extra mile and provide extra-curricular incentives for the kids. An art contest is one of them.

Tucker Hill has attended 38 state 4-H horse shows and arranges the staff of persons qualified to handle medical contingencies. The emergency medical technician began volunteering in 1965 and these days brings in two other EMTs, a paramedic and two cardiac technicians to cover the extensive grounds while the show goes on.

Turtle Trundle Stops At 12 Homes, 12 Churches With A Past

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

WOMELSDORF (Berks Co.) — "Turtle Trundle?"

What is it?

It is a driving and open house tour of historical homes and churches in the Tulpehocken area on Oct. 26, from 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Tulpehocken is an Indian name meaning "land of the turtles." Trundle means motion or rolling. Put them together, and according to the Tulpehocken Settlement Historical Society, the Turtle Trundle offers a way for people to view many historical sites.

The Tulpehocken territory consists of 16 townships, 14 in Berks County and two in Lebanon County, and covers about 322 square miles.

According to Shirley Brown, Richland, 15 families traveling from Scholharie, N.Y., settled in the area in 1723. About 95 percent of the original settlers were of German orgin. They left their mark on the local architecture of both houses and churches.

Tour fee is $15 per person. A detailed booklet containing driving directions and maps will be given to participants, enabling them to travel at their own speed. In addition to the stops, the booklet will describe points of interest along the way such as Fort Zellers, the oldest existing fort, the canal locks, and many other historical homesteads.

Tickets can be purchased prior to the tour by calling the historical society at (610) 589-2527. Tickets will be available on the day of the tour at the Tulpehocken Settlement Historical Society, 116 N. Front St., Womelsdorf.

Tour stops include the following churches:

• St. Elias Church.

• St. Paul's UCC in Millbach, an area which established Lebanon County's earliest German Baptist and Dunkards community.

• Trinity Tulpehocken Reformed Church, founded in 1727, is where Meier is buried in a cemetery across the street from the church.

• Christ Luthern Church, Stouchsburg, established in 1884, and rebuilt after lightning struck in 1887.

• Reeds Church open to display three antique organs, including a Gruber and a Dieffenbach, both made locally.

• Host Church (St. John's) was founded in 1727, the first church in the Tulpehocken settlement and the oldest Reformed congregation west of the Schuylkill. Site includes the sexton house built in 1840.

• Christ Little Tulpehocken Church, Bernville, organized in 1740 by Rev. John Casper Stoever. A log church was used until 1809, when the present stone church was erected.

• North Heidelberg Church, Robesonia, built in 1846. The church houses a Wooden Tracker organ made in Reading by the Boehler Brothers and installed in 1894.

• Old Bellemans (Salem) Union Church, Mohrsville, where a log church was erected in 1746. The present church was built in 1922.

• St. Michaels Church, Hamburg, was erected in 1769 of logs. In 1810 a new building was erected.

• Friedens Church, Shartlesville, was erected in 1870.

• Altalaha Evangelical Lutheran Church, Rehrersburg.

• Trinity United Brethren Church, Mt. Aetna.

The following homes are open to tour participants:

• William Leinbach, Royerstown, coverlet and rug weaver, studio open for demonstration and sales.

• Isaac Meier House, named after the man who laid out the village originally called Tulpehockentown.

• The Postcard Institute, owned by Donald Brown, will have on display thousands of area postcards.

• Marion Township Municipal building, open to display two rooms that hold historical items.

• Conrad Weiser homestead is open for a reduced admission fee. Weiser was a famous Pennsylvania colonial diplomat, statesman, and peacemaker.

• Charming Forge Boarding House, owned by Matt Barnhart, was a popular inn when the forge and Union Canal were in operation. The 1790 section retains much of the original detail. The newer wing was constructed about the time of the Civil War. An 1870 carriage barn was moved from its site in Lancaster to the Barnhart residence.

• Christian Gruber Log/School House (John and Sandra Kauffman) 7326 Bernville Rd., Bernville.

• Charles and Desiree Putt, Collector Road., Robesonia, own the former Kalbach house dated 1800. The barn has a date stone of 1876.

• Henry Gruber (brother to Christian) log house was warranted in 1737 and consists of 204 acres, log bank house, frame barn, smoke house, and log cabin built over a spring. The log cabin will be open for touring. The barn houses Homestead Woodwork, a business owned by Russell and Mary Getz, 1576 Milestone Rd., Robesonia.

• Dave Esterbrook has a restored gas station and memorabilia at his home, 866 Main St., Mohrsville.

• Home of Rick and Sharon Kramer, 343 Godfrey St. Rehrersburg, began as an 1820 log house and was enlarged in 1840 with a frame addition. It is furnished with period pieces.

Cut Glass Not Always As Old As It Looks

Brilliant cut glass is aptly name. It's many faceted sparkle is an eye-catcher in the booths of antique dealers. Usually the prices can be breathtaking as well.

The question is, how old is it really? A high price doesn't necessarily guarantee age or authenticity.

When cut glass was first introduced to Americans at the Philadelphia Centennial in 1876, prices were high. It was new, exciting, and rapidly became the status glass. Its' popularity lasted roughly until 1915 when new techniques became trendy.

Among them are the new Art Deco designs. Now, classified as "antique" a new generation of collectors have rediscovered it. Prices are high for rare examples and for the important name engravers.

Punch bowl on stand made buy the Tuthill Cut Glass Company, Middletown, N.Y., c.1900-1905. Photo credit: New Orleans Museum of Art.

Signatures and rare designs mean big bucks. However, there are many small pieces from bowls to vases and trays that are affordable...and with no signatures.

If they are truly old they are a good starting point for a new collector.

The art of cutting glass had its origins in Rome, in the first century A.D. Artisans first created a clear glass they name "crystal," which was cut into shallow geometric motifs. By the 17th century the Germans "rediscovered" the techniques of cutting glass, that spread to the glass houses of Bohemia. By the end of the 17th century English glass makers used a then, new metal, and lead glass. However, it wasn't until the late 18th and early 19th centuries that English and Irish cut and engraved flint glass became important. So important that it influenced American glassmakers. Many of those glassmakers had emigrated from England and Ireland. By 1876 America's glass industry was well developed along with its own style of cut glass.

The making of fine cut glass begins with a quality hand-blown blank. Many of the intricate patterns used on brilliant cut glass were the result of years of training, skill, and hard work. Most of the glass blowers worked under harsh conditions.

Historical glass house records document that some of the cutters were female.

Considered the finest examples of brilliant cut glass were pieces combining several geometric figures. The cutting completely covered the surface of the glass. By 1906 rising production costs and the decline in popularity resulted in simpler designs. The so-called Flower Period was the outcome.

CLUES: Collectors can recognize pieces from the beginning of the Flower Period. The daisy was an early example, often combined with fans or hobstars.

Problems for collectors arise not only when European pieces are passed off as American, but, when new, pressed pieces are cut over the pressed forms.

Baskets are among the most commonly pressed-cut pieces. They have been on the market since the 1970s. Carefully examination is necessary. First, they lack the brilliance of the American authentic brilliant cut pieces and the sharp edges. When "twanged" they don't respond with a bell tone as brilliant cut glass does.

Some unique forms of brilliant cut glass were made that included lamps, tobacco jars, and even wig stands. Even though today's collectors may not use the cut glass lamps in their living rooms, they do display them along with other pieces.

Since not everybody appreciates the look of brilliant cut glass, there are discoveries waiting to be made. There are many books illustrating and dating the designs of American cut glass.

"Identifying American Brilliant Cut Glass" by Bill and Louise Boggess is an excellent source. Published many years ago by Crown, it can still be found in Museum gift shops.

Heritage Center Museum Of Lancaster County Announces Upcoming Family Workshop

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Heritage Center Museum Lancaster County (located on historic Penn Square in downtown Lancaster) announces its winter workshop scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 18 and 25 in two half-day sessions:

Session A is from 9 a.m.-noon. Session B is from 1-4 p.m. A skilled instructor will teach participants the 18th century art of bronze stenciling on tin. Participants must enroll in Session A or B on both dates to finish their tray. Registration deadline is Dec. 20.

All materials and light refreshments will be provided.

The workshop will be at the Jasper Yeates House Education Center, 24 South Queen Street, one-half block from The Heritage Center Museum.

At this special one-of-a-kind workshop, participants will learn how to bronze-stencil and take home their own finished handcrafted tin tray. The instructor is nationally-recognized folk artist Linda Brubaker. Cost of the workshop is $40 per person, or $35 for Heritage Center Museum members.

Individuals as well as families are encouraged to register. Previous experience is not necessary. To register, call The Heritage Center Museum, (717) 299-6440, or send e-mail to heritage@paonline.com. Space is limited.

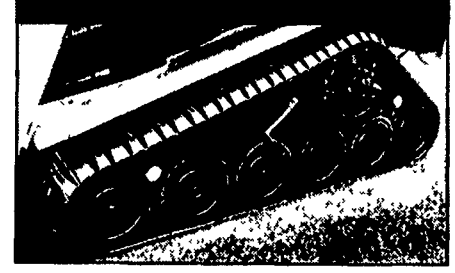
ALL SURFACE LOADERS

YOUR NEXT SKID STEER MIGHT NOT BE A SKID STEER

POSI-TRACK™ R-SERIES

Twenty-four rubber wheels spread machine weight over a large ground contact area, so these machines exert very low ground pressure - ideal on landscapes or soft conditions.



The RC•50, R•50 and RC•30 are an advanced breed of compact machine - the All Surface Loader.

Compact size and revolutionary rubber-track undercarriage allows you to outwork traditional equipment in almost any terrain or application. The R-Series All Surface Loaders are at home in tough excavating jobs as well as on sensitive terrains such as lawns and asphalt.

Add the full range of versatile attachments, easy operation, and rugged uni-body construction for a one-machine work force ready to tackle most any job and most any ground condition.

KNIGHT . . . the REEL Advantage

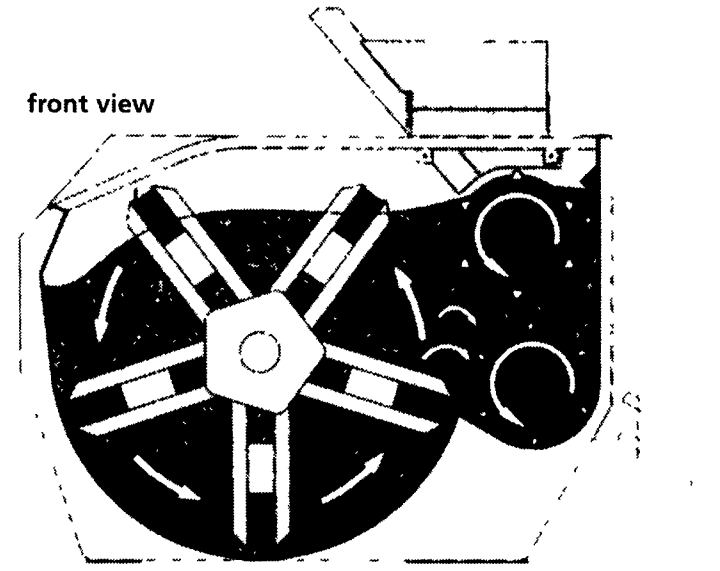
front view



The large-diameter reel provides a gentle tumbling action and the two side augers produce an end-to-end blending action. This unique combination ensures faster mixing and unloading times, and a very thorough mix, even when mixing small batches.

PERFORMANCE

When it's time to use your equipment, you need to know that it's going to be ready for peak performance.

A Preventive Service inspection during your off-season lets you be sure your Massey Ferguson tractors, balers and combines are ready for action, so you can be confident they're ready to go when the pressure's on.

Get more out of your bales!

Now with the all-new TWINE SLICING SYSTEM

- Give ALL your cattle an equal chance at feeding time this winter. Process your bales into windrows
- Blow bedding into the calving pens instead of breaking down bales by hand
- Short on hay? Processing blows away the mold, dust and mildew, reduces stress increases palatability AND, you get more out of the bale!
- Get more efficient use out of low-priced grain by supplementing rations with a Grain Tank Option that lays it right on top
- Reduce hay losses and manure-handling problems next spring.

ALSO AVAILABLE:

Soybean Disease Could Indicate Serious Problems

WOOSTER, Ohio — A relatively new soybean disease to Ohio is being used as a bio-indicator to diagnose a more serious economic problem.

Anne Dorrance, an Ohio State University plant pathologist with the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, said some soybean plants in Ohio are suffering from sudden death syndrome (SDS) — a fungal disease that causes root rot and crown rot and eventually kills the plant. So far in Ohio, every SDS field has experienced problems with soybean cyst nematode (SCN).

"For every field where we are finding SDS, we are also finding high cyst populations. There has been some type of association between the two," said Dorrance. "So we are urging farmers to manage soybean cyst nematode. You manage the pest, you manage the disease — reason being that soybean cyst nematode will cause more economic damage on the crop over time than SDS will."

SDS has only been present in Ohio for about six years, but is slowly popping up in more areas throughout the state. Symptoms are characterized by bright yellow spots on the leaves, with older leaves exhibiting necrotic areas between the veins. About two weeks before normal maturity, the plant will lose its leaves and die. Some of the factors that favor disease development include heavy rains during the vegetative growth period prior to flowering.

Dorrance said that SDS is also associated with poor soil drainage and the majority of the plants being affected are growing near roadsides and field edges where drainage is inadequate.

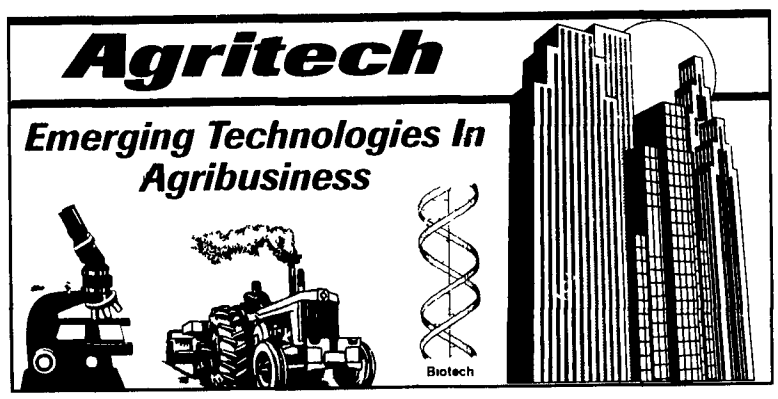
"Growers can help manage the disease by improving soil drainage in their fields. Soybean varieties also exist that show resistance to SDS. Good cultural practices are important in managing SDS," said Dorrance, reemphasizing the need to control for soybean cyst nematode.

"I've said it before and I'll say it again, the best way to manage soybean cyst nematode is crop rotation, crop rotation, crop rotation," she said. "And also plant resistant varieties. Soybean cyst nematode can be present in a field without SDS, but we are using SDS as a bio-indicator for the presence of cyst populations."

Though researchers have yet to determine the association between SDS and SCN, one theory is that cyst feeding on the plant roots weakens the plant and creates wounds from which the fungus can enter.

Dorrance speculates that SDS will continue to spread in the face of high SCN populations and continuous soybean plantings. So far this year, approximately 600 soybean acres are infected with SDS.

USDA Provides Web-Based Tool To Evaluate Base And Yield Options



WASHINGTON, D.C. — Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman recently announced the availability of a web-based tool for producers to use in evaluating base and yield options for direct and counter-cyclical payments under the 2002 Farm Bill.

"This innovative, web-based software will provide landowners with options for estimating farm bill program payments and help them make informed decisions." said Veneman. "The use of this type of advanced computer technology is another example of how USDA is aggressively implementing the new farm bill in an effective and efficient manner."

The new computer-based tool, called the Base and Yield Update Option Analyzer (BYA), helps producers analyze the economic consequences of selecting different base and yield options. It was developed to help farmers make informed decisions from five base options and four yield options offered by the 2002 Farm Bill. The BYA software was developed by Texas A&M University's Agricultural Food and Policy Center (AFPC) in conjunction with USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA).

To use the tool, producers must first enter specific data about their farming operations, such as planted acres and yields for each type of crop grown. Producers can then enter projected crop prices.

The tool will calculate a combination of seven base and yield options and six years of projected payments for each crop covered under the 2002 Farm Bill. The BYA tool is available online at: http://www.fsa.usda.gov/pas/farmbill/tools.asp.

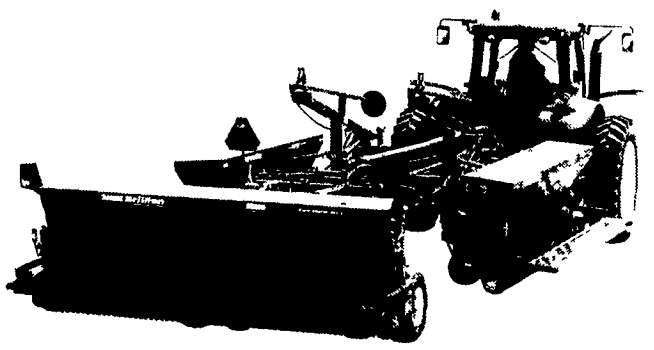
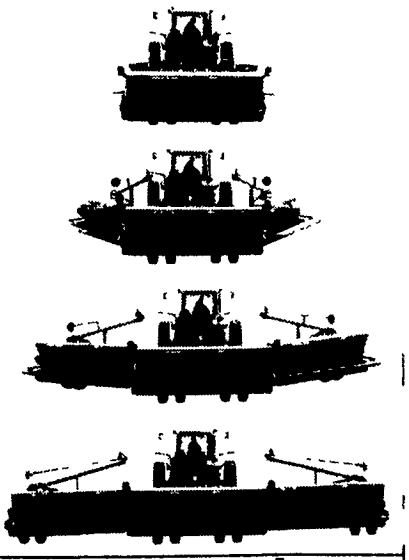
Brillion

TSH-212 Triple Seeder Carrier Seeding Width 36'

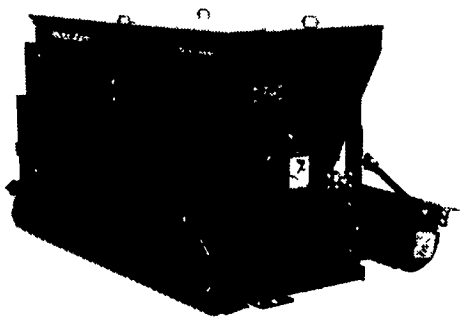




An Electric Clutch on each seeder allows you to turn individual sections on/off from the tractor cab

High Capacity Meters spaced at a nominal 4 1/4" provide uniform placement of seed across the full width of the seeder The shaft is plated for smooth operation and adjustment

BOS Overseeder



This PTO driven, three point mounted overseeder will seed into existing stands of grass and establish new turf. Precise seed placement and seed to soil contact make this the ideal tool for seeding or overseeding fairways and roughs on golf courses or repairing lawns, parks, or athletic fields.

Landscape Seeder

The new LSP-6 Landscape Seeder is the latest addition to the Brillion lineup of landscape turfmaker seeders. The new design brings a 6-foot size to the traditional Turfmaker Series of seeders. With it's single landscape style box that is equipped with the polyethylene blade type agitator, this unit will be able to handle most turf seeds with ease

Your Solution To Muddy Work Site Challenges Or Flotation To Travel On Turf

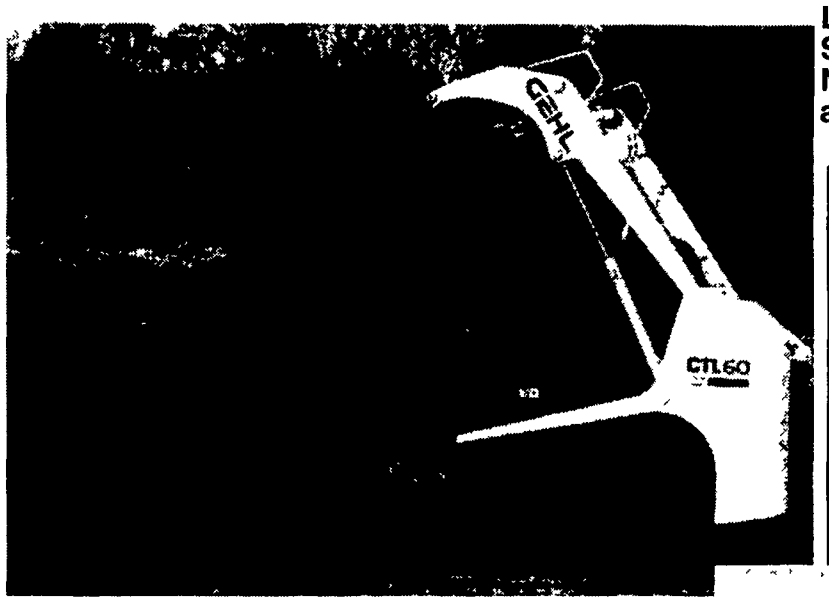
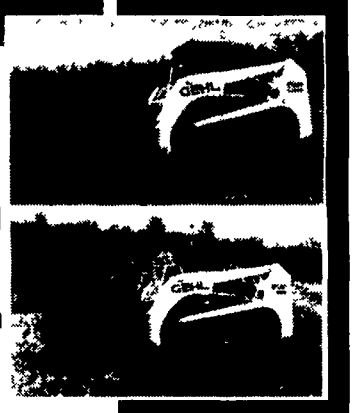
Great To Be Used In Many Applications Such As: Turf Farms, Golf Courses, Landscaping, Snow Removal, Nurseries and Many More





Introducing the new Compact Track Loader from Gehl Company. These brutes perform their best on soft boggy terrain where other machines would only sink. Traction, stability, comfortable ride and fantastic grade climbing capability. It's all here with the Gehl CTL. Choice of two models CTL60 (67 hp) and CTL80 (101 hp).

- High-performance hydrostatic drive pumps enhance breakout capabilities
- Rubber tracks provide less ground pressure on muddy terrain, more digging power in the dry... no tires to go flat
- High ground clearance
- Big, comfortable cab for hours of productivity
- Easy maintenance with tilt-back FOPS/ROPS and swing-out radiator
- Pilot-operated joystick controls

CTL 60 IS HERE!

What's heat forming?
In metal roofing and siding it's the best way to go! Here is why. Everlast heats the paint very hot on their Everlast II product before they cut and form it into roofing and siding. Tests have proven that heating paint before cutting and bending prevents virtually all microscopic cracks in the paint Ask our competition if they heat form. It's important. Normally manufacturers form and cut at room temperature. Unfortunately that cracks the paint causing early rust at formed bends and edges.

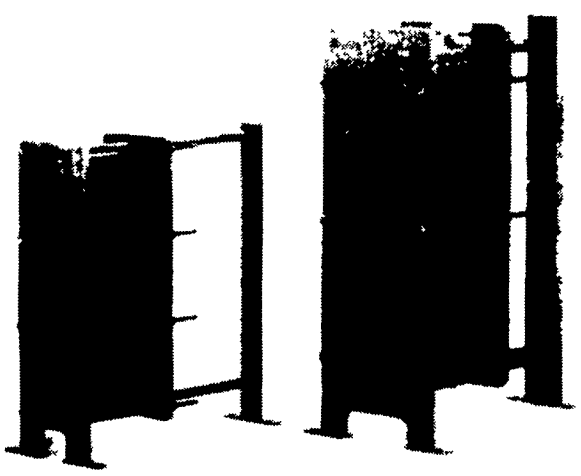
MUELLER DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT



Having Problems Getting Milk Cold?

Consider a Mueller pre-cooler. It's an excellent way to lower the cost of cooling milk. It reduces milk temperature with water pumped straight out of your well. Mueller® precoolers are available in sizes to work with any system. If lower electric bills would make your life easier, call us and ask for more information on Mueller precoolers.

LAPP ENERGY-FREE DRINKER
Proven to Work Since 1984

- After marketing for years our customers tell us it's still the best and unique drinker you can buy today
- Units have non-siphoning all plastic 3/4 water valve
- Units have 3/4 PVC shut off-and-on ball valve right behind water valve
- Drinker lid is designed w/no grooves on top that can encourage bacteria-germs that could seep inside unit
- The Poly-Drinkers are high density urethane foam insulated with drain plugs, proven to work outside in our area.
- Also available with 2 holes.
- We also carry Badger and Ritchie waterers.

ALFALFA SEED $1.55/Lb.
from the Dakota's Trask Family Seeds
- Features grower-to grower direct seed sales
- S D S U tested and researched
- Distributed from Parkesburg, PA
- $1 55/per lb in 60 lb bags
- Varieties S D Common, Vernal and Rhyzoma
- Dakota alfalfas are dormancy rated at 2 and proven to excel in winter hardiness and production!
- Trask Seed is American grown and priced to reflect no corporate monopolies!

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased.

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area harvesting superb alfalfa from South Dakota seed

Fulton County Grower Manages Under Unique Conditions

Drought, Deer, Microclimate Are All Part Of The Mix In Great Cove

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

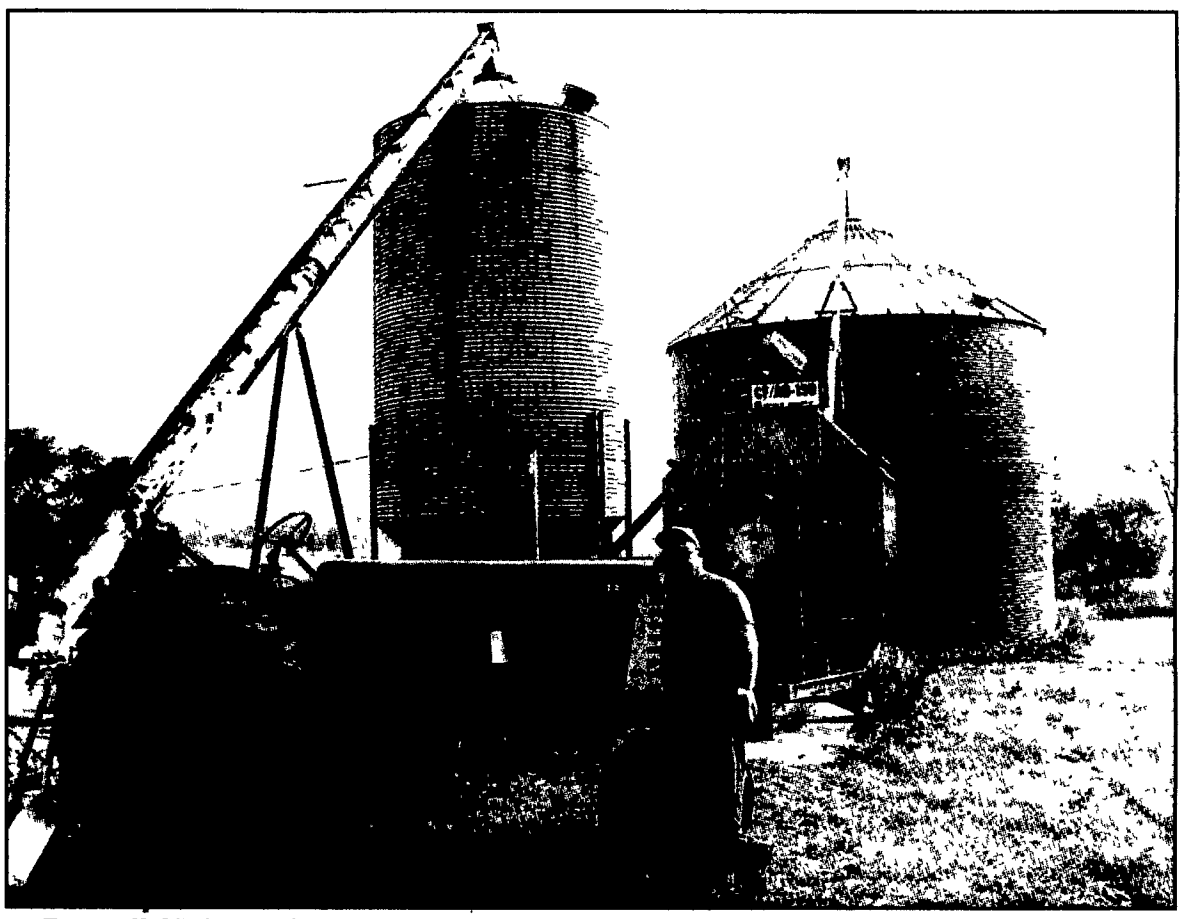
McCONNELLSBURG (Fulton Co.) — Russell McLucas's fields lie just west of the Tuscarora Mountain in a little valley called "The Narrows." It is part of Great Cove, a larger valley in the area north of McConnellsburg, near the Fort Littleton exit of the turnpike.

McLucas faces some unique challenges here, but in 30 years of farming he's developed a variety of ways to deal with them. While corn is one of his main crops — representing about 300 of the 650 acres he farms — he knows better than to stake his livelihood on it.

The list of reasons includes tremendous deer pressure, drought, pests, and often low prices.

As part of a diverse approach, McLucas has made a successful business of growing mixed bromegrass and timothy hay and marketing it in 700-pound round bales, mostly to dairy farmers within a 50-mile radius of his home. He grows some wheat and other

(Turn to Page E2)



Russell McLucas's grain system allows him to dry 25-percent moisture corn for about 7 cents a bushel and store half a year's crop. After initial drying, a forced air system in the large bin runs inexpensively until January.

WINDING DOWN A NASTY YEAR

Mother nature provided many educational demonstrations to those who paid attention this year. We learned again that corn can recover from severe frost in most cases. We found out this year, though, when corn gets frosted of three times, or when it gets to the five leaf stage and is frosted, survival can be reduced.

We learned again that our weather is unpredictable. When it was hot and dry in April, it soon changed to cold and wet in May and June and then back to hot and dry in July and August.

The changing weather patterns resulted in many opportunities for crop stress throughout the season. Early, the rain and cool temperatures in May caused lots of purple corn throughout the countryside. This happened because cool temperatures

Camden Farm Hosts 2002 Va. Corn, Soybean Exposition

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Co. Correspondent

PORT ROYAL, Va. — A Regional Cropping Systems project on Aug. 15 was the featured educational opportunity for some 750 persons who descended on Camden Farm for the 2002 Virginia Ag Expo in Caroline County.

Supported by the United Soybean Board, the Foundation for Agronomic Research and the USDA, the main research of the multistate project is being done on 60 of the 2,150 acres Camden depends on for growing corn and soybeans.

John R. Pratt and Beverley C. Pratt are the owners, but since 1969, John (Johnny) F. Davis has been the man farming Camden and Tommy Hicks is the fellow he depends on to help him do it.

When Jaunsee Terrell, 26 and Jason Stover, 10, arrived on the grounds, their attention small grains and manages timberland as well.

But McLucas has also developed systems that work for growing and handling corn. While he's experiencing his share of drought loss this year, some of the fields are producing moderate to good yields.

"The best word I can give you is 'erratic,'" he said of the corn crop. He noted yield estimates ranging from 11 to more than 150 bushels per acre, with a good part coming in at around 90-100 bushels.

According to McLucas, those figures would be a lot worse without the management practices he employs on his limestone-based soils that contain a lot of alluvial sandstone and shale in the top layer.

The key to maximizing corn yields is the no-till or minimum tillage approach he has been using for more than 20 years. In the past four years, he has switched to a strip-till planter, which works a narrow band for each row.

The difference in soil quality and moisture conservation beween no-tilled and plowed ground is significant, McLucas said. After years of observation, and one recent experience with planting corn in a chisel-plowed field, he is ready to put the plow away.

According to McLucas, chisel plowing opened up the soil to greater moisture loss and contributed to a crop failure.

"Never again," he said of using the plow to prepare corn ground.

McLucas looks over his land in "The Narrows" area of Great Cove.

No-tilling also helps prevent erosion in McLucas's fields, many of which have fairly steep slopes.

For planting wheat after corn, McLucas makes one pass with a heavy-duty disk harrow. It's necessary to work the corn stalks down to reduce disease pressure on the wheat, he said.

In addition to moisture shortages and other challenges, McLucas estimated that deer cause him upward to $30,000 corn crop damage a year.

A possible advantage to farming here is what McLucas calls a "micro-climate," which creates unusually heavy fogs and dews each spring and fall. This phenomenon occurs in a relatively small area of the valley, including the land he farms. According to McLucas, these waterings can contribute significant moisture for crops.

McLucas makes sure of this: the corn he does harvest will be dry, high-quality grain that brings a premium price.

His propane-powered dryer system can dry shelled corn from 25 percent to 17 percent moisture as fast as it is harvested by his four-row Gleaner combines and hauled to the pit where it is augered to the dryer.

"If you start the dryer at 6 in the morning, by 10 at night it will do 4,000 bushels," he said.

According to McLucas, the drying costs about 7 cents per bushel, including propane and electricity to run the dryer fans.

When the corn is dried to 17 percent, it is augered to a 16,000-bushel round steel bin equipped with a commercial aeration setup, which completes the drying process. This is accomplished by a high-powered fan that forces air from the floor of the bin upward through the corn.

Once corn comes into the bin in the fall, the fan runs continuously until January to ensure dry, quality kernels. It takes about $35 worth of electricity per month — a small price to pay, according to McLucas. He doesn't take chances on corn going bad.

"The grain bin people tell me I'm overventilated, but on the other hand, I don't have moldy grain," he said.

McLucas starts harvesting corn at 25 percent moisture in order to head off field losses. By the time harvest is completed, the corn is at about 18 percent moisture in the field, he said.

For hauling corn, as well as hay and small grain, McLucas has another solid system in place. His son-in-law, Donald Truax, runs a trucking business, mainly hauling ag commodities.

Relatively small but filled-out ears are characteristic of McLucas's crop this year.

"I guess you could say it's an in-house trucking company," McClucas said.

In addition to farming, McLucas was recently named secretary of the Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association. He is also hosting field corn trials on a number of varieties this year.

McLucas contracted his entire corn crop this August to ensure the benefit of a relatively high corn market. What does he think of the price?

"It's close to what it ought to be," he said. "It's getting there."

A T-shirt held up at bin door demonstrates significant amount of air being forced up through corn from below by a fan aeration system. The bin here contains shelled corn about six feet deep. McLucas said that even when the bin is full, there is no appreciable loss of air movement.

CORN BITS

Happenings In Other States

The Maryland Grain Checkoff Program was approved for another five years when it passed by an 85 percent margin in a referendum.

The mandatory checkoff states that a farmer must pay an assessment of one-half of one percent (.5 percent) to be collected on the net value of each bushel of grain sold. Funding is used for education, research, and market development. The board appropriates most of the approximately $450,000 collected annually to provide grants to carry out these activities.

One of the grants awarded in 2001 was to conduct a study on the feasibility of a small grains ethanol plant in Maryland.

Illinois Governor George H. Ryan announced in mid-August that he is releasing $280,000 in Illinois first funding to the Illinois Corn Growers Association (ICGA) to support the startup of a new farmer-owner ethanol production facility in Lena. The state already has dedicated about $3 million in state support for the plant, which will use an estimated 14.5 million bushels of corn every year.

ICGA will assist the Adkins Energy Cooperative — a farmer-owned venture — in the development of a state-of-the-art, $68 million production facility that will produce 40 million gallons of ethanol every year.

was immediately attracted to the John Deere 8400 tractor everyone was talking about. A global positioning system had been installed on it. The fellows ascended the track and ensconced themselves inside the 'jolly" green giant, fairly overwhelmed. It was their turn for a few glorious minutes of air conditioned luxury, but the GPS was the best part.

"Its fun, all you gotta do is push a button," said the awed young Stover, doing his best to describe the earthen "orbit" guided by a satellite thousands of miles out in the wild blue yonder.

Terrell, who works for his grandfather near Richmond, was most interested in the light bar. "I like nice straight rows and I don't like skip spots," he said. "I already have a light bar. I have to look at it to know," he said, reporting how much he relies on it.

Davis, himself, upon exiting the same machine was duly impressed after having gone tooling across the field with the GPS guiding the Deere effortlessly.

It was fun while it lasted but the here and now reality — extremely dry conditions — caused Davis to report that the bushels of grain he normally would expect to be harvested, in actuality this year, are fewer than half of what is considered typical output.

"There are a lot of ups and downs in farming business. You have to save for dry years," he said. "One thing, farm prices have gone up because its dry."

Ashe stood chatting, volleys of dust were seen rising on the farm track as another yellow school bus hauling tour passengers from place to place approached. Those aboard prepared to disembark at the starting point when the vehicle, in sandy depths that almost tugged the tires, of course, churned its way back to the loading and unloading zone.

The tours, nevertheless, were extremely informative. From site to site, the crops and soil being researched were observed firsthand and participants came away having gleaned much helpful information from the presenters.

The evaluation of cropping systems in the research at Camden Farm includes (3 crops/2 years) no-till corn, conventional till wheat — no-till double crop soybeans; (4 crops/3 years) no-till corn, no-till full season soybeans, no-till wheat — no-till double crop soybeans; and finally, (4 crops/2 years) no-till barley — no-till double-crop corn, no-till wheat — no-till double crop soybeans.

The above cropping systems have been conducted on the same 3-acre strips (of both highly productive and extremely sandy soils), with three replications of each treatment for five years.

Also, variable rate seeding of corn and soybeans, variable rate nitrogen on corn, and yield mapping at harvest are incorporated into the studies, officials said.

Yield results over the last five years for wheat, barley, corn, and soybeans for each cropping system were discussed, along with soil differences, cropping system differences, and how what has been learned can be applied to other farms in the region.

Corn and wheat were discussed by Dr. Mark Alley, Virginia Tech, who is directing the project. Dr. David Holsouser addressed

Here an on-site display board, among other things, shows the boundaries of different soils to persons on a cropping tour at the Corn and Soybean Expo at Camden Farm. Hearing about what is happening in the Regional Cropping Systems project, now 5 years old, gives them research information to consider with regard to their own operations.

A cropping tour group looking over an open ditch examines unproductive soil in the specimen prepared for the corn and Soybean Expo held Aug. 15 at Camden Farm, Caroline Co. It is evident in cropping systems project that's been under way for five years that organic buildup is already being seen.

In some places, corn planted in mid-May experienced severe rain right after planting. This caused the destruction of soil structure in some fields and also movement of herbicides within the field. This resulted in increased potential for soil crusting and herbicide stress on some crops.

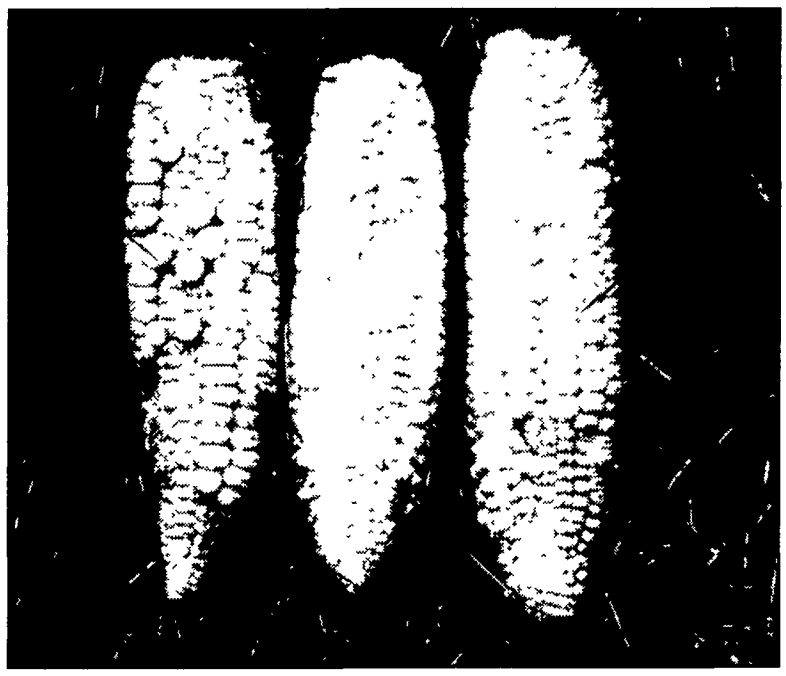
The dry weather in July really seemed to reduce root growth of the later-planted corn and also reduced the plants' ability to recover from any corn rootworm damage. In wet or normal years, we often get some good root regrowth on rootworm-damaged plants, but that did not occur this year. This was compounded by the fact that in some fields, root systems were not well developed because of the early cool, wet weather and stress.

The effects of the dry weather were exacerbated by high temperatures. Data from the Lancaster weather station showed 31 days in July and August had highs of 90 degree or above. This compares with a long-term average of 17. High temperatures have multiple negative effects on corn plants. High temperatures increase the evaporative demand on the crop, can reduce pollen viability, and increase the respiration of the crop.

Related to the heat stress, I noticed much more poor pollination this year. I also observed fields where the interior parts of the field seemed much worse than the perimeter. I attribute this to additional heat stress in those areas during the critical reproductive stages of growth.

Later in the season, I observed premature plant death in the worst parts of drought-stunted fields. This only happens in the worst conditions. In some fields with decent ear development, the ears drooped over prematurely and grain fill ended early. This also is unusual. Normal maturing crops progressed through silage and grain harvesting stages two to three weeks ahead of normal. This was likely due to the 200-300 excess growing degree days that we accumulated in most areas of the state this year.

My observations also showed wide variations in field-to-field performance this year. Factors that I think helped this year were early planting, long-term no-till, a history of manure application, good weed and insect control, and crop rotation. Also, selecting the right hybrid for the situation seemed to be important for me again this year. Several farmers told me they thought subsoiling helped to develop a better root system and subsequent growth under the drought conditions. They could be right.



Poorly pollinated ears such as these were common in corn fields in Pennsylvania as a result of high temperatures and drought stress during silking.

What should we do for next year? I don't think we should undertake any knee-jerk management responses to the drought this year. Instead, I think a long-term plan to build our soils, build some diversity into our cropping systems on marginal soils, and continue to evaluate the genetics that are out there for the combination of high yield and good drought stress are good ideas. These are strategies that should pay dividends in the future.

Perry County Hosts Soil, Crop Field Day

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

MILLERSTOWN (Perry Co.) — Approximately 100 producers and industry representatives gathered at a Perry County Soil and Crop Management Field Day in August.

The event was conducted at the Charles Beaver Farm in Millerstown. The day included no-till information, an overview of field crop trials, soil quality lectures, and equipment demonstrations.

David Dumm, corn planter technician for Binkley and Hurst, discussed steps to ensuring a good stand of corn.

"The planter needs to be in A-1 shape," said Dumm. A quarter inch depth could make a difference in making sure the corn is up at the same time or not, he said.

Producers should make sure the planter has tight row units to maintain even depth and coverage of the seeds. All seeds should germinate within a 48-hour window, according to Dumm. If a plant gets behind, it actually becomes a weed, taking nutrients from stronger, older stalks and further spreading the work of insects that are pollinating the crop.

Producers need to get down from the tractor seat to thoroughly check their crops. "Get out, dig some seed, and make sure you're getting the spacing you want and the depth you want," said Dumm.

In addition, adequate blade diameter is imperative "to get that true 'V' for even seed depth and quick germination," he said.

Producers should also figure on spending three hours in the off season going over their planter, checking items such as the drive train and clutches, according to Dumm. The planter should be level and the seed tubes, for example, need to be in shape, not worn through or riddled with burrs that might "kick the seed around," he said.

"You have one chance, for the most part, to put the crop in. This is one of the most important pieces of equipment on farms and one of the most overlooked," he said. "If you don't have the crop in right, you can't make up for it later in the year."

Beaver, host of the day, told participants about a few of his no-till experiences. He began no-tilling corn in 1974 and has no-tilled his fields in entirety since 1980.

He has noticed that with no-till techniques, he has reduced erosion, conserved moisture, increased organic matter, and reduced machinery expenses. Also, he believes that his ground can carry planting, harvesting, and manure equipment more days without compaction than conventional farming. He has needed less lime and fertilizer and his crops now stand better.

Beaver recommends to drain wet spots in fields where it is possible to make ruts in the spring. He also sprays the fence rows to control weeds. In addition, he applies turkey and chicken manure in the fall after the temperature drops below 50 degrees.

Corn seeds with early vigor, gray leaf resistance, drought tolerance, and flex ear are ideal for no-till situations, he said.

To prevent erosion, Beaver occasionally plants across end rows on slopes. He also advises no-till farmers to side-dress nitrogen and starter at planting time.

Sjoerd Duiker, Penn State agronomy, points out the increased soil quality created by no-till practices.

Charles Beaver, Millerstown, describes his own no-till experiences.

Sjoerd Duiker, Penn State agronomy department, also touted the benefits of no-till practices. Working the ground opens up the soil and allows carbon (organic matter) to escape, according to Duiker. No-tilling the crop helps to keep organic matter content at the soil surface very high.

Duiker recommends cutting the crop a little higher during harvest time to leave an adequate amount of residue.

Additionally, "earthworms and crop roots will do the job for us," he said. "When roots decompose, they leave holes behind for occupation by other roots."

Duiker also recommends monitoring surface acidity with a pH test. To test the pH, he said, take several samples from a designated area and mix the soil in a bucket before taking a reading.

Joel Myers, USDA NRCS, said that "if your soil quality is low, make sure it is in shape before no-tilling," he said. Besides having the soil in shape, farmers should plan ahead and not begin with a large field.

"Make the commitment and try it for several years," said Myers, noting that the area no-tilled could be increased over the years.

Tillage research on Maryland's Eastern Shore was discussed by Ron Mulford. Dr. Bobby Grisso discussed equipment technologies used in the study, variable rate seeding and variable rate fertilizer applications, and also light bar navigation systems.

Dr. Rod Youngman had specific information to share about the plots at Camden and the evaluations of corn seed treatment, control of soil, and above-ground insect pests.

Other tours showed the replicated large plots of corn seeded with a Great Plains precision drill, comparing 30-inch rows with twin rows planted on 30-inch centers. Liz Rucker, Harry Behl, and Dr. Dan Brann fielded questions.

Andy Swiger, dean of the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Virginia Tech, said Davis and his co-workers are using the latest technologies to produce grain crops efficiently on Camden Farm.

"A very high standard of management is always evident by the straight rows of almost weed-free crops, with only water as a limiting factor to yields," Swiger said.

The dean also observed that the type of research happening on 60 acres is one way that producers can learn the impact of changing a number of practices on crop yields over a number of years.

"It is interesting to note that two of the cropping systems are continuous no-till, a practice that is gaining acreage in eastern Virginia," he said.

Swiger noted the grain drying and storage facilities at Camden. "Mr. Davis is using these grain facilities to market bread wheat to mills in Virginia."

Eric Randolph, president of the Virginia Corn Growers Association, offered encouraging words. "Sometimes it is difficult to be upbeat about farming in years like this. Each of us is doing battle with the heat and the drought and it often seems that we are on the losing side. Events like this one give us an opportunity to think beyond this season as we view the exciting knowledge and innovation that are coming our way."

As far as the Virginia Soybean Association, president David Barnes called the research lead by Alley "excellent."

"This study...is part of a multistate program to improve yield, profitability and environmental integrity of the small grain, corn, and soybean production systems in our area."

Camden itself is a Rappahannock River Plantation listed on the Virginia Historic Landmark Register. Named in honor of Charles Pratt, the first earl of Camden and champion of the American cause in England during the Revolutionary War, it has been home to the Pratt family since 1790.

The present manor house, built in 1859, is a national historic landmark.

PCGA Elects New Officers

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — At the recent board of directors meetings in Landisville, the PCGA board elected three new officers.

Guy Wagner of Bethlehem was re-elected president, Jeff Werner of Fredricksburg was re-elected vice president, and Russell McLucas of McConnellsburg was elected new secretary-treasurer.

Mike Kuhns stepped down after a term as secretary. The board is grateful to Mike for the excellent job he did.

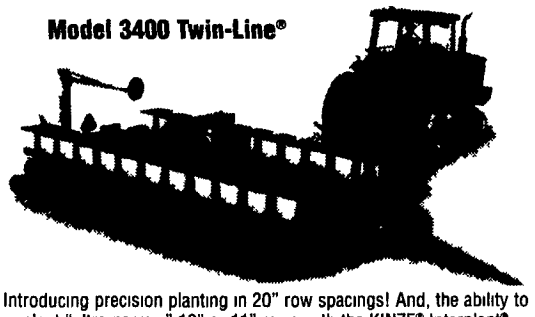
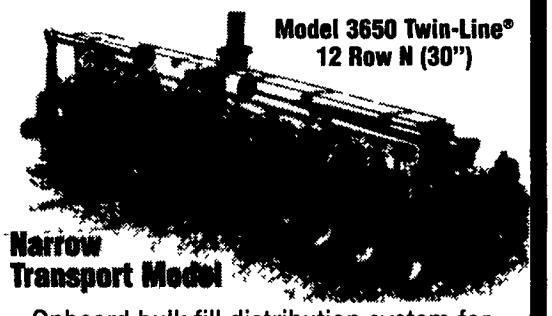
With New Bulk Fill System

Model 3400 Twin-Line®



Introducing precision planting in 20" row spacings! And, the ability to plant "ultra-narrow" 10" or 11" rows with the KINZE® Interplant® System Plus, in-line transport as narrow as 11'3" (12' 7" with the Interplant® Package and no till coulters)

Model 3650 Twin-Line® 12 Row N (30")



Narrow Transport Model

Twin-Line® Planters...from the field to the road in seconds

KINZE's Exclusive Rotating In-Line Transport: the only system that offers you narrow transport on large planters equipped with narrow row Interplant® or fertilizer options As narrow as most tractor duals

The unique, patented hydraulic "lift & rotate" system features a rugged, heavy-duty stainless steel clad center post (on both 3500 and 3600 models) which rotates on large tapered bearings seated at the base of the post (Model 3400 uses a parallel linkage system with dual lift cylinders)

- UHMW plastic pads glide up and down against the smoothly machined surface Absolutely no lubrication is required (3500 and 3600)
- A self-contained counter-balance valve in the lift cylinder provides additional safety when the planter is in the raised position The planter will not lower without hydraulic pressure from the tractor (3400 and 3500)
- A Spring-loaded latch/hook secures the planter while it's in the fully raised position by locking the toolbar in place (3600)

KINZE Seed Meters

The Most Accurate And Dependable Seed Metering Systems In The Field! For Corn.

- Highly accurate. The KINZE® Finger Pickup Metering System delivers unequalled spacing for your valuable corn crop
- Reliable. Convenient. No plates or seed discs to change when planting different seed corn sizes or shapes And, you have none of the adjustments required with air or vacuum systems!
- Economical. Gives years of low-cost, low-maintenance service

Record Crop Insurance Enrollment For 2002

Eugene Gantz
President Ag Risk Strategies, Inc.

Pennsylvania producers purchased about 2,400 new crop insurance policies for 2002. Corn policies accounted for 47 percent of the increase. This increase in enrollment is estimated to result in $222 million of protection in force, covering 1.1 million acres. About 50 percent of the eligible acres are insured.

All of these progress indicators establish new records for Pennsylvania.

The popularity of crop revenue coverage (CRC) continues. Fifty-seven percent of the buy-up corn policies are CRC. If current corn market trends continue, many CRC policyholders will receive a coverage increase in the neighborhood of $20 to $30 per acre without an additional premium cost, depending on their historical yield and coverage choice.

Montgomery County Opens First E85 Station

EDGEWATER, Md. — With the national push to support alternative fuels, drivers in Montgomery County will be able to join the ranks as the first E85 station in Montgomery County opened to both the government and private users in May.

County Executive Douglas Duncan opened the new station, at 16640 Crabbs Branch Way in Rockville at the county's refueling facility.

The opening of this alternative fuel station demonstrates a strong commitment by the county to use E85 as an alternative fuel. E-85 is a mixture of 85 percent ethanol and 15 percent gasoline. Ethanol is a renewable fuel made from corn, wheat, barley or any starch-based product. It has become the front-runner in the quest for seniority in the fuel industry.

Though E85 really is not new (the Midwest has been producing E85 for several years), its presence on the East Coast is just beginning. Several states are in the planning stages for ethanol plant construction making its availability even greater. Automakers are doing their part to promote the expanded use of E85 by offering a growing list of vehicles known as "flexible fuel vehicles" for the consumer.

Currently, the 3.0-liter Ford Taurus, 3.0-liter 2WD Ford Ranger Pickup, 2000 Chevrolet 2.2 liter S-10 pickup, 4.0-liter Ford Explorer, 4.0-liter Ford Sport Tracs, 3.3 liter family of Chrysler, Dodge and Plymouth Mini-vans and the GMC 2.2-liter Sonoma Pickup, GM Suburban, and Tahoe can all be purchased capable of using E-85. These flexible fuel vehicles can run either on E-85, 100 percent gasoline, or any combination in between. All the major automakers are including more vehicles in the coming model years, which would include the E85 option. These vehicle options provide the caring consumer with the opportunity to use alternative fuel and make a difference without any incremental vehicle cost.

South Central Agribusinesses Open Doors To Tour Guests

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

SHIPPENSBURG (Franklin Co.) — PennAg Industries Assocation organized a July tour to three agribusinesses in the Shippensburg area.

About 50 guests participated in visits to Cumberland Valley Cooperative, a recently-built Wenger's feed mixing facility, and Four Seasons Crop Care, Inc.

Scott Hodgson, sales and nutrition manager at Cumberland Valley Cooperative, led the group on a tour of the independent feed and farm chemical product and service co-op originally formed in 1929. In recent years, the co-op consolidated from eight former locations throughout the area to the one in Shippensburg. The facility employs 22 workers.

"We build everything from the ground up," Hodgson said of the feed mixing part of the operation. About 80 percent of the feed is formulated for dairy purposes, including "niche" custom-formulated feeds. Average batch sizes are 1½ to 2 tons.

Four years ago, after offering fertilizer and chemical products without service, the cooperative "got into the application business," Hodgson said. This was the result of deciding, "We need to offer a service or get out totally." This year the company covered about 18,000 acres.

Offering both feed and fertilizer puts the co-op in an ideal place to handle to handle increasing nutrient management concerns, according to Hodgson.

"That puts us in a wonderful position for five or 10 years down the road," he said.

Ray Leiby led the group through the Wenger's mill, which was built two years ago. The facility moves out about 4,000 tons per week of pellet and mash feeds for livestock, with a capacity for handling up to 10,000 tons.

Precision, efficiency, and custom mixing capabilities are highlights of the computer-controlled technology at the mill.

"We really have an infinite amount of formulas when you come down to it," Leiby said.

Variability in the feed mixes run at 4 to 6 percent, while the industry standard is 10 percent, according to Leiby.

Rounding out the tour was Four Seasons Crop Care, Inc., a company specializing in custom fertilizer and chemical applications in south central Pennsylvania and several Maryland counties. Ken Sands started the business 10 years ago and continues to run it along with Wilma Rebuck, vice president, and 17 employees.

Sands said he believes in "true teamwork" when it comes to running the business.

"As president, my job is absolutely no more important than that of a part-time truck driver," he said. Together, the Four Seasons workforce covers more than 60,000 acres, using a total of six applicator machines, along with support vehicles.

By mid to late summer, the busy season is past and Sands is already planning and setting goals for the coming year.

Conference Set

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Mark your calendars. This year's Corn and Soybean Conference is being planned for Feb. 7, 2003 at the Holiday Inn in Grantville.

PCGA is working up the program, but this year they hope to have a half day of general topics followed by two in-depth workshops in the afternoon.

At this point, PCGA is considering one workshop to focus on risk management and marketing and other workshop to focus on post-drought, production-related topics.

DROOPY EARS IN CORN

R.L. (Bob) Nielsen
Agronomy Dept.
Purdue Univ.

Ears of corn normally remain erect until sometime after physiological maturity has occurred (black layer development), after which the ear shanks eventually collapse and the ears decline or "droop" down. This year, corn field connoisseurs have reported droopy ears in fields before they reached physiological maturity.

Droopy ears are cute on certain breeds of dogs, but droopy ears on corn plants prior to physiological maturity are a signal that grain fill has slowed or halted. Premature ear declination (the fancy term for this problem) results in premature black layer formation, lightweight grain, and ultimately lower grain yields per acre.

What Causes Droopy Ears?

The few times over the years that I have observed this symptom, severe drought stress has been a common denominator. Similar instances of premature ear declination occurred in areas of drought stress in 1991 and 1995. Under severe drought conditions, but where a sizable ear nonetheless exists, a reduction in the turgidity of the ear shank occurs and the weight of the developing causes the ear shank to collapse.

In some instances, collapsed ear shanks can also result from extensive tunneling by European corn borer larvae. Such tunneling weakens the ear shank, allowing it to collapse, and can ultimately also cause ear droppage from the plant.

Impact on Yield?

Remember that the ear shank is the final "pipeline" for the flow of photosynthates into the developing ear. An ear shank that collapses prior to physiological maturity will greatly restrict, if not totally prevent, the completion of grain fill for that ear, and will likely cause premature black layer development in the grain. If the droopy ears you've looked at have not black layered yet, they will soon.

CORN TALK NEWS
PENNSYLVANIA CORN GROWERS ASSOC., INC.

The timing of the onset of droopy ears determines the magnitude of the expected yield loss. If grain fill were totally shut down at the full dent stage of grain development (milk line barely visible at dent of kernels), the yield loss would be as much as 40 percent. If grain fill were totally shut down at the late dent stage of grain development (milk line halfway between dent and tip), yield losses for the affected ears would equal about 12 percent.

Multiplying the percentage of affected ears in a field by the estimated yield loss per ear will give you an estimate of whole field loss. For example, if 10 percent of the field contained plants whose ears drooped prematurely at the late dent stage, whole field loss would be estimated at 1.2 percent (10 percent of the ears multiplied by 12 percent yield loss per ear).

New Starter Formulation Shows Promise

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — In Penn State studies, ammonium sulfate continues to perform as well or better than conventional starters, offering growers an alternative to high-phosphate formulations.

"There are environmental concerns about applying phosphate fertilizer to soils that already have high levels," said Doug Beegle, Penn State agronomist. "By switching to ammonium sulfate, growers can give corn an early-season boost without adding more phosphate to the soil."

Low-phosphate blends made with ammonium sulfate also cost less than high-phosphate formulations, noted Penn State agronomist Greg Roth. Every 100 pounds of ammonium sulfate supplies 21 pounds of nitrogen and 24 pounds of sulfur.

In 2000, Roth included ammonium sulfate in corn starter trails in Hershey and Rockspring. The soil type was a Hagerstown silt loam, which has traditionally been considered non-responsive to sulfur. "Ammonium sulfate improved early-season corn growth in both locations," said Roth. "At Rock*sping, ammonium* sulfate also increased yields by 12 bushels per acre."

In a separate trial, also in 2000, Beegle worked with county agents to establish on-farm trials comparing traditional starters to ammonium sulfate. On high P-testing soils, ammonium sulfate was as good or better than complete NPK blends, Beegle reported.

Continuing the study in 2001, Beegle and Roth compared ammonium sulfate to a 10-301-formulation in starter applications on high-phosphate soils. Averaged over 21 sites, ammonium sulfate and 10-30-10 had a similar effect on early-season growth. Yield was taken from 19 sites and, again, ammonium sulfate and 10-30-10 produced similar results.

"Both of the starter treatments produced significant yield increases on six out of 19 sites," said Roth. "At three of the six sites, yields were significantly higher with ammonium sulfate versus the 10-30-10 starter."

Corn seedlings still need phosphorus, said Beegle. But with ammonium sulfate in the starter, corn seedlings can get the P_2O_5 they need from the soil instead of from extra fertilizer.

"Sometimes when seedlings are in cold soil, the roots grow so slowly that they can't reach residual phosphate," Beegle said. "By putting nitrogen in corn starter, you're stimulating root growth so that roots can reach residual P_2O_5 easier and faster."

In addition, the ammonium form of nitrogen enhances root uptake of phosphorus.

Ammonium sulfate is safe for pop-up applications, as well as for two-by-two placement, as long as appropriate rate guidelines are followed.

PCGA Recognizes Top State Membership Recruiter

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association (PCGA) recently recognized Carl Cassidy of Spring Mills, as the top recruiter in the organization for the recruiting year of 2001-2002.

Cassidy recruited a total of seven new members for PCGA during the year. Carl is employed as an agronomist with Helena in Warriors Mark.

Last year, PCGA participated in a national recruitment program with NCGA that made available prizes to local recruiters who brought a minimum of five new members into the organization.

Cassidy's prize was a $300 Sears Gift Card.

Syngenta Crop Protection and Syngenta Seeds sponsored the recruitment program along with NCGA. PCGA has 292 members in Pennsylvania. NCGA is a national organization founded in 1957 and represents more than 31,000 dues-paying corn growers from 48 states.

INTRODUCING THE WHITE 8000 SERIES PLANTERS

You've done your research, prepared your field, and picked the perfect seed variety. Now plant that perfect row, with the 8000 Series planter from White With 49 models to match your needs, they're packed with features that save time and plant 4 to 31 rows of corn or soybeans with unmatched precision. The 8000 Series features an improved seed meter design for outstanding accuracy with a wider variety of seed sizes. And standard walking beam gauge wheels along with increased planting depth range of ½ inch to 4 inches give superior depth control over larger surface irregularities. Select models feature "on-the-go" seed rate adjustment from your tractor cab. FlexFrame designs range from 30' to 60' for an "acre-eater" performance from one end of your field to the other.

It's time to plant the perfect row. Stop by your White Planter Dealer today and get it right with WHITE.

Take Time To Join PCGA Now

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Joining the Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association is easier than ever. A one-year membership is just $30. You can now join online at www.pacorngrowers.org or simply fill out the membership form and send to our address.

PCGA is continuing the Membership Incentive Program (MIP) in 2002-2003. The theme of the program is "Try Something New."

Take this opportunity to experiment when you choose your free bag of seed corn. This seed-corn-company-sponsored program entitles any PCGA/NCGA corn grower who plants at least five acres of corn with a 3-year new or renewed membership, to a free standard size bag of seed. This year 12 companies have stepped forward to support PCGA's membership program.

To participate, simply complete the membership form in this issue of Corn Talk indicating the brand of seed corn you would like to try, along with your check for the 3-year membership. You will then receive a certificate for a free bag of seed from the sponsoring company of your choice, along with your membership card from NCGA.

In consultation with the local seed corn dealer, you make the ultimate decision about which hybrid you will receive from the company you have selected. PCGA will send the names and addresses by brand chosen to the appropriate seed corn company's statewide contact person and they will contact you.

In addition, you'll be joining more than 31,000 other growers across the country who are showing their support for the corn industry. Locally, you'll be supporting PCGA's activities such as Corn Talk, our Corn or Crops Conference, and local corn promotion activities.

New Farm Bill And Observations On Corn Futures Prices

Editor's Note: From the Sept.-Oct. 2002 PGP Magazine.

Virgil Robinson
Pioneer Market Analyst

PENNSYLVANIA CORN GROWERS ASSOC., INC.

The 2002 Farm Bill is playing to mixed reviews.

Most notably, the European Union, Canada, Brazil, and Argentina argue this bill will further distort the market signals influencing U.S. production decision. A few competitors have indicated they will "challenge" the bill at the Geneva-based World Trade Organization.

Competitors in the global corn and soybean export market fear "a heightened subsidy war" is taking shape. Sound arguments can be made both to support and dispute the bill.

How this backlash or potential retaliation from various U.S. competitors plays out is unclear. Signals are mixed.

However, one piece of the bill we clearly can isolate and discuss: the change in relative loan rates between corn and soybeans. Under the 1996 Farm Bill, the soybean-to-corn loan rate was 2.8-to-1. With the new bill, it contracts to 2.5-to-1.

As of July 10, it appeared this adjustment likely would encourage farmers to plant more corn next spring. U.S. 2003 corn acreage is anticipated to increase to about 80 million acres compared to this year's 79 million acres. Soybean acreage is expected to decline modestly from this season's 73 million.

Given this "assumption," to what level could Chicago Board of Trade (CBOT) December 2003 corn futures trade? The U.S. is the leader in globe corn production, but we have competition. Therefore, in an effort to answer the above question, let's examine:

- The last few years of the world corn ending stocks-to-use ratios.
- The most current projection for 2002-2003.
- The subsequent behavior of CBOT futures.

Rates Decrease

In each of the crop years beginning with 1999-2000 and ending with the 2002-2003 forecast, the ending stocks-to-use ratios have decreased. Corn supplies have diminished and/or tightened.

A pattern develops when we analyze the ending stocks-to-use ratio for these three crop years with respect of the following year's new crop (December) futures contract. In each of these years, the new crop futures contract has experienced about a $0.30 move from previous summer low to contract high.

Therefore if the December '03 CBOT futures contract establishes a summer (June through August) 2002 low of $2.20, $2.25 or $2.30, there's an argument — based on years of a similar structure — that prior to its expiration it will trade at or near $2.50, $2.55 and $2.60, respectively.

If this pattern holds, grains sellers could see a marketing opportunity that's at least 30 cents better than the summer low before contract expiration. This difference could help growers achieve target price objectives.

MBI International Receives USDA Funding For Ethanol Research

PENNSYLVANIA CORN GROWERS ASSOC., INC.

LANSING, Mich. — MBI International announced it has entered into a cooperative agreement with the USDA Agricultural Research Service (ARS), whereby MBI International will receive $354,000 to conduct research to improve the uses of dried distillers grains and grass biomass in ethanol production.

MBI's effort is part of a broad project initiative between MBI, the USDA-ARS and South Dakota State University to develop new technologies to enhance the value of the by-products of ethanol production.

MBI has been working with Heartland Grain Fuels (Aberdeen, S.D.) for the past few years in an effort to provide new technologies for the ethanol industry to increase profitability beyond conventional methodologies.

One such technology in development is the "quick germ" process of ethanol production, which improves ethanol yield from corn and offers higher-protein dried distillers grains as a by-product.

The collaboration between MBI, USDA, and SDSU will also address the development of technologies that could allow for warm season grasses to use as feedstocks for chemicals, materials, energy and fuels, broadening the range beyond traditional feedstock sources. The entire project initiative of $648,000 includes funding at South Dakota State University and the USDA-ARS facility at South Dakota State.

Senator Tim Johnson from South Dakota is a leading advocate for renewable fuels, particularly biodiesel and ethanol. He was instrumental in passing a Renewable Fuels Title as part of the FY-2002 Farm Bill and including a renewable fuels standard as part of the 2002 energy bill.

"The benefits of this research will help lead to increased renewable fuel production, less dependence upon foreign oil, increased farm income, job creation and economic growth in rural America, and environmental and public health gains. The $648,000 earmarked for value-added ethanol production will help build upon the work I helped start last year at SDSU to conduct research on increased production of ethanol from corn and other biomass crops," Johnson said.

Dr. Kevin Kephart, director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at South Dakota State University, explained that SDSU and many other land-grant institutions are broadening their research, extension, and teaching efforts to include agriculturally-based energy production systems. He emphasized the benefits in working with MBI.

"Agriculture will be a part of the solution to the nation's future energy concerns. Partnerships between land-grant universities, USDA-ARS, and industry as a means of technology implementation will be critical to the success of efforts in ag-based renewable energy. The work and expertise at MBI complements our interests very well and we look forward to working in this new partnership," said Kephart.

Dr. Mark Stowers, president of MBI, said that the USDA project is indicative of MBI's outreach projects with research universities across the country. Such collaboration provides a vehicle for MBI technology to be used throughout the country.

"We are very pleased to be working with South Dakota State University and the USDA-ARS on this project. We believe that this combined effort in South Dakota will make significant contributions to the ethanol industry and will create a technology platform at South Dakota State University to make additional contributions in the future," said Stowers.

MBI International, a private, nonprofit, 501(c) 3 corporation, is focused on the development and commercialization of products via biotechnology that increase farm profitability, bring new food products and pharmaceuticals to market, protect and clean up the environment, and reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil.

As an integral part of its mission, MBI partners with universities and other centers of excellence to complement world-class research with state of the art business and product development expertise. In achieving its mission, MBI creates new jobs and builds new businesses to stimulate the economy.

Interest In White Corn

COLUMBUS, Ohio — White corn, a specialty crop used to make taco shells and corn chips, is receiving greater attention among Ohio growers looking for an alternative to yellow feed corn.

Ohio State University researchers have completed their sixth year of white corn performance trials to assist growers in choosing hybrids that exhibit certain agronomic traits, such as good yields, resistance to diseases and little or no stalk lodging.

"What we are trying to do is provide some baseline information as a benchmark for which hybrids to use — which ones exhibit the best agronomic characteristics and are suitable for Ohio's growing conditions," said Peter Thomison, an Ohio State agronomist.

Thomison said the need for white corn performance trials is increasing due to the gaining popularity of white corn among growers throughout the United States.

NCGA CONTINUES STREAK OF SUCCESS THROUGH END OF FISCAL YEAR

Sept. 30 marked the end of the 2002 fiscal year for NCGA, and the year ended on a high note for the nation's corn grower organization, which has seen some of its most notable accomplishments over the past 12 months.

With FY-03 beginning, NCGA CEO Rick Tolman took a look back at the previous 90 days and outlined some of the key accomplishments:

• NCGA organized 11 farm bill implementation meetings and released the farm bill calculator to further help growers understand the bill and determine how the farm bill affects their operations.

• NCGA closed the year by preparing for its upcoming move to a new facility in St. Louis County as an economic move to increase efficiency and return greater value to members and growers who invest checkoff dollars in the association.

• NCGA is also building equity in the area of research and development by continuing to develop commercial relationships with groups such as Cargill-Dow, Shell, the Department of Energy, and others.

• While the fourth quarter didn't see the completion of a national energy bill with a renewable fuels standard, the bill was passed to conference and NCGA growers not only continue to put pressure on their elected officials to get this issue finished, but to actively defend the bill both in their communities and on a national level.

• A continuing issue for NCGA and the nation's corn growers has been the national and international acceptance of biotechnology. Recent trips to Europe plus participation in the World Corn Congress in Pau, France, have been a step in the right direction.

• NCGA also established a crop disaster task force to address the plight of corn growers affected by adverse weather conditions nationwide.

"We have been very successful this past year at building partnerships and coalitions and finding the common ground with groups for the benefit of the corn producers that we represent. This is an important principle — there is great strength in partnership and coalition," Tolman noted.

NCGA Tops Membership Record

NCGA continues to attract corn growers from all over the country as membership soared to 32,369 in August, an increase of 441 from July 2002 and a 1,165 member increase from July 2001. This record did not stand long as September was another record month with 32,379 members, a 10-member increase from August 2002.

While most associations are experiencing significant declines in membership, NCGA membership grew 1.52 percent for the fiscal year 2001-2002, said NCGA Membership Services Manager Byron Keelin. "Several states also had significant increases in membership this year too," he said.

"Ohio Corn Growers Association added 305 members to its roster a 15.8 percent increase, North Dakota added 206 members a 15.47 percent increase, Illinois added 191 members a 4.6 percent increase."

Other states include Missouri 169 members, Wisconsin 101 members, Minnesota added 215 members, Iowa added 81 members, Michigan added 28 members, and Tennessee added 13 members.

NCGA On the Move: On Schedule And Under Budget

Soon the St. Louis staff of NCGA will move into its new facility in west St. Louis County. According to Dr. Richard Glass, NCGA vice president of research and development, everything's moving according to plan.

"We (were at the building yesterday) and everything is progressing according to schedule," said Glass. "In fact, we're currently under budget for the project, which is always positive."

NCGA Director of Human Resources Judi Segalini said the construction has been fast-paced.

The new address is NCGA, 632 Cepi Drive, Chesterfield, MO 63005, (636) 733-9004, Fax: (636) 733-9005.

Penn State: Pa.'s Precipitation Has Increased

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — At the end of this torrid, drought-ridden summer, it no doubt will surprise many Pennsylvanians to learn that the state receives more rain than it used to. But that's a fact, according to climate experts at Penn State.

"The amount of precipitation that we get here in Pennsylvania has gone up 10 percent in the past century, since 1895 to be exact," said state climatologist and Penn State instructor in meteorology Paul Knight. "It's a well-known fact among meteorologists — we are getting more rain than we used to. Most people don't realize it because the amount of water we use has increased greatly. So the increase in precipitation has barely kept up with the increase in water use."

And even though the current drought is part of a four-year span of below-average precipitation, there is nothing to suggest that Pennsylvania is turning into a mountainous expanse of arid landscape, according to Bryan Swistock, extension water resources specialist in the College of Agricultural Sciences.

"I don't think that anybody is prepared to say that the current drought is really a long-term weather pattern that will end in Pennsylvania getting, say, 25 inches of rain a year, rather than the 40-some inches we get now.

"There is no reason to think that will happen," Swistock said. "We are just in a dry cycle. Even the models of global warming don't have a great deal of strength when they try to predict precipitation trends. The models for global warming say some areas will get wetter and others will get dryer. The ones I have seen don't suggest any significant changes for Pennsylvania."

There are examples of up-to-a-decade-long dry periods in recent history, Swistock points out, such as the parched 1960s and the "dust bowl" era in the 1930s.

Global warming does seem to be showing up in Pennsylvania, Knight points out, but the effects are subtle. Temperatures are averaging about a degree higher now than they were just generations ago. But he notes that scientists are not sure if there is some connection between increased precipitation and slightly higher temperatures overall.

Dr. R.L. Mikkelsen Joins PPI Staff As Western Region Director

NORCROSS, Ga. — Dr. Robert L. Mikkelsen has joined the staff of the Potash and Phosphate Institute (PPI) as western region director. He is based in Davis, Calif., with responsibility for PPI agronomic research and education programs in the states of Arizona, California, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming.

"We are understandably very happy to have Rob as part of the organization. He is a highly respected scientist and educator who also has tremendous knowledge of agriculture in California and the western region," said Dr. David W. Dibb, PPI president. Mikkelsen assumes responsibility for the region following the recent retirement of Dr. Al Ludwick, who had served as western director since 1980.

Mikkelsen was previously associate professor of soil science at North Carolina State University (NCSU) in Raleigh. A native of California, Mikkelsen earned his bachelor's degree in agronomy/soils at Brigham Young University in 1981, then received his doctorate in soil science at University of California, Riverside, in 1985. He was a postdoctoral research scientist and assistant research soil scientist there, before joining the National Fertilizer Development Center at Muscle Shoals, Ala., in 1987 as soil chemist/project leader. In 1991, Mikkelsen became assistant professor of soil science at NCSU, and was promoted to associate professor in 1997.

At NCSU, Mikkelsen was honored as Outstanding Graduate Instructor of the Year in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences. He has served as chairman of Soil Science Society of America (SSSA) Division S-4 (Soil Fertility and Plant Nutrition) and on the editorial boards of Soil Science Society of America Journal, Fertilizer Research, Nutrient Cycling in Agroecosystems, Agronomy Journal, and Journal of Environmental Quality.

Widely known for his research and expertise in nutrient management, Mikkelsen has authored or co-authored numerous research publications and book chapters in recent years. In addition to basic agronomic and fertilizer technology, his research has included nutrient interactions with the environment, animal waste management, and nutrient budgets. He is a licensed soil scientist and is listed in the North Carolina Registry of Certified Professionals in Soils.

Mikkelsen is involved in several professional societies, including the American Society of Agronomy.

NCGA Pleased By Introduction Of Bill To Reform Crop Disaster Aid

WASHINGTON, D.C. — NCGA announced Rep. Sam Graves (R-MO), a member of the House Agriculture Committee, has introduced the Companion Disaster Assistance Program Act of 2002 (CDAP), legislation that incorporates many of the principles and recommendations for crop insurance reform advocated by the NCGA.

CDAP, if adopted, would provide more equitable aid for crop insurance participants who have been hurt by substantial losses from severe drought and floods. Graves introduced the bill, H.R. 5589, recently.

"NCGA applauds Rep. Graves for stepping forward and introducing legislation that provides disaster aid to row crop producers without undermining the progress of the federal crop insurance program," said NCGA Disaster Task Force Chair Ron Litterer, a corn grower from Greene, Iowa. "Rep. Graves' bill, H.R 5589, will help deliver assistance to more producers and, hopefully, encourage greater participation in the federal crop insurance program."

Despite significant improvements made to the federal crop insurance program and farm safety net, economic losses caused by severe drought conditions and floods over the last two years have prompted calls for emergency assistance to help producers rebuild their operations. While the supplemental market assistance provided to row crop producers by the Congress in recent years has proven extremely helpful, depressed commodity prices and an overall weak economy have deteriorated the financial resources of many producers who have operated within the slimmest of margins.

Rep. Graves' legislation would complement the crop insurance program by covering a portion of the uninsurable deductible rather than duplicating the insurance coverage under traditional disaster assistance. Further, NCGA believes CDAP provides an effective means for payments to be delivered sooner because most growers that collect indemnity payments would be eligible to collect the CDAP payments.

ASTA Grain Handlers Database Updated For 2002 Harvest

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In time for the annual harvest season, the American Seed Trade Association (ASTA) has updated its database of grain handlers accepting biotech corn approved in the United States but not yet approved for import into the European Union (EU).

Effective immediately, growers can access the updated database on ASTA's Website at http://www.amseed.org.

"The ASTA database continues to provide valuable service and support for both grain handlers and farmers," said Dick Crowder, ASTA executive vice president. "It's another important tool we can use to meet our customers' needs."

About 3,000 grain handling facility operators nationwide responded in this year's survey that they would accept grain that is not yet approved by the EU. For the 2002 harvest season, close to 1,800 grain handlers have posted their locations and, in some cases, delivery stipulations. This marks the fourth straight year ASTA has created the Web-based database.

Visitors to the database will find information capturing the details of grain handling and delivery policies of many facilities and locations. The data comes from grain handlers throughout the U.S.

NCGA Sends Crop Disaster Aid Proposal To The Hill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) has sent a letter to leaders of the House and Senate Agriculture Committees outlining NCGA's disaster assistance proposal and commenting on agriculture disaster assistance legislation awaiting action in the House and Senate.

The letter, signed by NCGA President Tim Hume, was sent to Sen. Tom Harkin (D-Iowa), chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture; Sen. Richard Lugar, (R-Indiana), ranking minority member, Senate Committee on Agriculture; Rep. Larry Combest, (R-Texas), chairman, House Committee on Agriculture; and, Rep. Charlie Stenholm, (D-Texas), ranking minority member, House Committee on Agriculture.

In the letter, Hume said, "As you know all too well, severe drought conditions and floods have taken a serious toll on farmers and ranchers during the past two years. Despite significant improvements made to the federal crop insurance program and farm safety net programs, economic losses caused by these natural disasters will require additional assistance to allow producers the opportunity to rebuild their operations.

"The supplemental market assistance provided to row crop producers by the Congress in recent years has been extremely helpful," said Hume. "However, five years of depressed commodity prices and an overall weak economy have deteriorated the financial resources of many producers who have operated within the slimmest of margins."

The letter went on to say NCGA recognizes the federal crop insurance program as the primary risk management tool for producers and urged continued efforts to build upon the sizable increase in producer participation and purchases of higher levels of coverage that have resulted from the Agriculture Risk Protection Act of 2000.

"Given the importance of crop insurance to U.S. production agriculture, NCGA urges changes that allow for a more common sense approach as rules are updated and innovative risk management products are introduced to increase coverage for actual losses."

Hume said NCGA is also urging Congress move forward quickly and adopt disaster assistance legislation ensuring timely, adequate aid to those who have suffered significant crop losses.

"NCGA believes that reforms of the Crop Disaster Program (CDP) are needed to recognize individual producer's investments in crop insurance policies and to avoid duplication of federal benefits," he said. "Without changes, the CDP will continue to provide assistance on crops that were insurable with subsidized insurance contracts and target disproportionate levels of disaster payments to low yields that could have been covered by federal crop insurance.

"The fact is growers can still experience a 35 percent crop loss, be impacted by substantial financial losses and see little, if any, payments from their crop insurance policy or the Crop Disaster Program."

NCGA has proposed an alternative approach to crop disaster assistance; one that would complement the federal crop insurance program rather than duplicate the insurance coverage under the current Crop Disaster Program. According to the letter, "NCGA's Companion Disaster Assistance Program (CDAP) would provide more equitable payments to a predetermined percentage of the insurance deductible loss that is not insured. Rather than targeting payments for low yields that could be covered with crop insurance, CDAP would provide greater assistance to crop insurance participants impacted by crop losses as high as 60 percent. Moreover, CDAP would ensure that a producer's disaster payments and indemnity payments do not exceed a crop's expected value."

The letter concluded by saying, "Recognizing the limited time remaining before adjournment, NCGA stands ready to work with you and your colleagues to expedite consideration and passage of a more effective and equitable crop disaster assistance program. We appreciate the exceptional work of this Congress on behalf of U.S. agriculture and want to again offer our support for legislation to assist producers who will suffer significant financial losses as a result of severe weather conditions."

PENNSYLVANIA CORN GROWERS ASSOC., INC.

Got Water? Crop Thirst Depends On Soil Type

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The biggest element in the world of agricultural production that makes or breaks a crop is water.

"The biggest risk to production is not practices like fertilization, but the amount of water present in the soil," said Brian Slater, an Ohio State University natural resources researcher. "The limitation of water impacts a crop's growth potential and does have an influence on other production practices."

Slater and his colleagues are using geospatial technology to map soil water levels in fields and demonstrate how growers can use information on water-deficit areas or saturated fields to better manage their crop. Geospatial technologies include remote sensing, geographic information systems (GIS), global positioning systems (GPS), data recording and analyzing and aerial and satellite photography.

"Knowing a crop requires different management practices even in different parts of the same field as a result of varying water levels can help produce those maximum yields," said Slater.

The first step to realizing a soil's water capacity is to understand the type of soil one is dealing with. More than 480 different soil series have been identified in Ohio, each with a different set of characteristics reflecting how the soil formed.

The amount of water that a soil can hold is dependent upon a variety of factors including: how much rainfall the soil receives during the growing season; the water needs of the crop (corn is more water-dependent than other crops like wheat); what type of production a farmer practices (no-till or conservation tillage provides better soil filtration); and if the soil is situated to receive run-off.

Ultimately, however, it's the size of the particles that make up the soil that determines whether the soil holds onto water or quickly loses it. Clay soils, for example, are made up of fine particles that hold onto water very easily, but make it difficult for plants to access.

"In clay soils, the soil particles have an enormous surface area. The soil absorbs large amounts of water but holds on to it very tightly, resulting in a less available water capacity for plants," said Slater. "As a result, it takes large amounts of water for the soil to reach a water content that is available for plants."

This explains why fields throughout north and northwest Ohio, comprised predominately of clay soils, have been suffering from insufficient rainfall this growing season.

At the other end of the spectrum are sandy soils. Made up of very large particles, they don't hold on to water well and, as a result, drain much quicker.

Slater said the ideal soil is silt loam, a mixture of fine and large particles that offers a range of water holding capacity. "Ohio is fortunate in that silt loam is a common soil texture in the state, and many Ohio soils have a high water holding capacity," said Slater.

Once a grower knows what type of soil(s) his field has, he can then determine the water holding capacity and use that number as a guide for calculating the water needs of his crop. County soil surveys are available from the U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service.

Ohio State researchers have also developed a comprehensive soil property database that growers can access by logging on to http://www.ag.ohio-state.edu/agwatmgt/tables.htm. The database provides detailed soil information, including the available water capacity of every soil series identified in Ohio.

"The database gives growers some indication of what water is available to the plant during a normal growing season," said Slater.

Average water use of a corn crop during pollination and grain fill is about ⅓ inch per day. So, for example, with a water storage capacity of 1.8 inches per foot, a fully-charged silty clay loam soil might carry corn with a three-foot rooting depth up to 18 days during silking and early grain fill stages.

Said Ohio State agronomist Peter Thomison, although corn roots can grow as deep as eight feet, when actively growing, corn obtains 90 percent of its water requirements from the top three feet of the soil profile.

Growers should keep in mind that soil types have varying water capacity depths and different layers of soil types that affect root growth, especially during a period of dry weather.

Put Profits Back into Tillage Management With Krause's Profit-Till System

In 1983 Krause introduced the Profit Till System - based on the principles of soil tilth, crop residue management, plant food availability, and moisture management through proper and efficient tillage practices. 20 years later the Profit Till System still focuses on increased yields, reduced production costs and enhanced profit potential.

The Four Key Elements of Profit Till

CROP RESIDUE MANAGEMENT – Residue management protects soil from erosion by minimizing runoff. Compaction is also reduced by the protection provided by surface residue in heavy rainfall conditions.

SOIL TILTH – Good soil tilth is a determining factor of a plant's potential for root development and accordingly yield potential.

PLANT FOOD AVAILABILITY – A healthy, non-compacted soil environment promotes the growth of a well-developed root system, allowing more contact area with the soil and increased nutrient uptake.

SEED BED CONDITIONS – Plants that get off to a quick and healthy start have the best chance of reaching maximum yield potential.

Krause 7300 and 7400 Rocktlex Discs
NOW IN STOCK FROM 18' TO 31'

The Krause 7300 Conservation Disc is designed for high-speed finishing and lighter primary tillage.

The Krause 7400 Cutting Disc tackles tough primary tillage or seed bed conditioning with equal perfection.

Narrow Transport Width

With a transport width of ONLY 10' 11" the 18' and 21' Krause 7300 and 7400 Discs make transportation easy. A perfect feature for Mid-Atlantic farmers.

Krause 5630 High Residue Field Cultivators
NOW IN STOCK FROM 20' TO 36'
